Davis Wants To Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Davis, a former cabinet minister who resigned as an MLA after being convicted of fraud, said today he will seek the Social Credit nomination in the North Vancouver-Seymour riding.

Davis, 62, resigned the North Vancouver-Seymour seat Sept. 15 after he was convicted of converting first-class airline tickets to economy fares and pocketing the difference.

Davis, former energy, transport and communications minister, said he has represented the North Vancouver area federally and provincially for 15 years.

"I know a lot of people," he said. "I'm going back in there to do a job."

New Zealand Parks Cars To Save Gas

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — Motorists in New Zealand, which already has a ban on weekend sales of gasoline, will have to leave their cars at home one day a week under a government plan to save fuel.

Energy Minister Bill Birch told reporters today that 2.4 million stickers are being printed in seven colors and each car will have to carry a sticker showing which day it cannot be used. Offenders will be fined.

Liberal Crosses The Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — MP Ralph Stewart left the Liberal party for the opposition Progressive Conservatives today, saying he is tired of the socialist tendencies of Prime Minister Trudeau's government where "a few of the elite make all of the decisions."

The 50-year-old MP for Cochrane said he plans to run against Liberal MP Keith Penner for a newly-altered Northern Ontario riding that takes in parts of both their current constituencies.

Stewart had represented the Liberals since first being elected in 1968.

But he said he wanted to wait until the eve of an election to make his move because his constituents had elected him as a Liberal.

Stewart earlier had decided against running in the next election, and he said he sacrificed "a lot of personal security" by changing his mind.

Times News Services

Progressive Conservatives were ahead in the rest of the country, especially the West.

The latest poll showed the Liberals held steady with 39 per cent of the popular vote in February, the same level as in January. The Conservatives slipped two points to 38 per cent while the New Democratic Party gained two points to 19 per cent. Other parties had four per cent.

Undecided voters remained high, at 33 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau told newmen this morning he was still not prepared to set an election date.

The latest survey, described by Liberal campaign strategist Senator Keith Davey last month as "the really important poll," said the Liberals remained strong in Quebec with 60 per cent of the decided vote. The Tories were ahead across the rest of the country with a slight majority in Western Canada and a plurality in Ontario and the Maritime provinces.

The Liberals have completed a slow climb back to the top position from last November's survey, when the Conservatives led the Liberals by 45 per cent to 35 per cent.

The Conservatives led by two points in December and one point in January.

Clark said the only results he wanted to see were on election day. "I would mind being down on election day but that's for the electors of Canada to decide. I think that they are going to give us the chance to form a new government and I'd like to give them that chance to give us that chance."

NDP House leader Stanley Knowles said, however, the poll indicates Canadians are having second thoughts about Clark's leadership ability.

"I think it's interesting that the Conservatives have lost two points, we've gained two points and the Liberals stayed where they are," Knowles said.

"It seems to me that a possible interpretation is that an awful lot of Canadians don't like the Liberals but they're not as sure as they were that Clark's a good alternative and Broadbent is making hay with his campaign about prices and employment.

Senator Al Graham, Liberal party president, said the fact that Liberal strength remained unchanged between January and February indicates the governing party is in a solid, stable position.

But it was clear Canada was in for "a very close election."

Graham declined to predict when he feels the election will be called — the decision is Trudeau's alone to make — but the party was ready any time.

Widow, 82, Beaten, Left Tied to Chair

MONTREAL (CP) — An 82-year-old widow was resting in hospital Tuesday after being beaten unconscious by thieves and left tied to a chair for almost 24 hours.

Doris Shaw, who is waiting to undergo operations to repair broken bones in her nose and around her right eye, said she was making a sandwich Sunday night when the doorbell rang.

"I opened the door and one of two men pushed me out of the way," said the 115-pound woman who lives alone. "I was pushed into the kitchen and bound to a chair by a thick black coil they brought with them."

The bigger of the two thieves kept asking where her money was, she said.

"Using both hands, he punched me over and over on either side of my head and with each slap screamed, 'Where's your money?"

She said she told the men she had no money. They ransacked the house, then left.

The woman tried to manoeuvre herself closer to the phone, but the coils dug into her body, making the attempt too painful, she said.

"I screamed and screamed for help but no one heard me."

After spending the night bound to the chair, Mrs. Shaw heard someone coming.

"I screamed for help but it wasn't my neighbors, it was the big guy again.

"He began shining a large flashlight in my eyes. He kept asking me, 'Where's your money?' "

The man left again. A neighbor found her later and phoned for help.

Mrs. Shaw said she feels safe where she is but is terrified to return home.

Gas Supply Clips Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Fuel shortages have forced two more U.S. air carriers — United and Delta — to cancel hundreds of flights, and airline industry officials are predicting the tight supply picture may endanger some cheap fares and plans to expand routes.

And, at least 26 U.S. oil companies — including most of the big ones — have started limiting supplies of gasoline to dealers and distributors, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

United, the largest U.S. airline, said Tuesday it will reduce its flight schedule 3.4 per cent through March because of fuel shortages. That means cancellation of 38 flights each weekday with 118 flights scrubbed on Saturdays and 141 on Sundays, said spokesman Ed Williams.

Delta said it is cancelling nine daily departures from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Trans World Airlines (TWA) last week was forced to ground numerous flights due to spot shortages. TWA cancelled 24 flights into and out of Kansas City International Airport in the four-day period of Feb. 25-28.

"The idea is to save fuel," said United's Williams. "Shell Oil has told us we can't get our normal supply of fuel temporarily, so we're cutting back through the end of the month."

United will not cancel service to cities with only one flight a day, or to locations where bookings are heavy, he said.

Spokesmen for the Air Transport Association, which represents the U.S. scheduled carriers, said the cancellations represent only a fraction of the 13,500 daily flights nationwide.

However, a Delta official said if the fuel picture doesn't improve, the airline might be forced to delay plans to add flights and routes to its system.

William Jackman of the Air Transport Association said the oil crunch already is leading to higher fuel oil prices and "it's going to be reflected in airline fares."

The U.S. energy department refused to disclose which companies officially have reported gasoline allocations, explaining that the information is proprietary — in other words, a business secret — and cannot be made public by the government, although the companies can do so if they wish.

A number of the companies, but not all, have publicly announced supply restrictions.

Deficits Continue To Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — The deficit in Canada's international spending rose to $5.29 billion in 1978, up from $4.2 billion a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

At the same time, the finance department reported that the federal government spending deficit rose to $9.53 billion in the first 10 months of the fiscal year 1978-79, up from $6.6 billion in the same period a year earlier.

Statistics Canada said that although there was a record surplus in merchandise trade with other countries last year, payments to foreigners for such things as interest on loans and dividends on stocks rose sharply, particularly in the fourth quarter of the year.

In the final three months of the year, the surplus on merchandise trade was $758 million but the deficit in non-merchandise trade was $2.57 billion, up $481 million from the third quarter.

The finance department said government spending deficit for all of the last fiscal year was $9.2 billion and Finance Minister Jean Chretien has said the spending deficit for fiscal 1978-79, which ends March 31, will be $12.1 billion.

Area Economy On Bright Side

The Victoria economy continues to churn up good news with strong retail sales and high employment in the shipyard and sawmills.

But things remain gloomy in the construction industry, local Canada Employment Centre manager Wally Pickering said today.

Unemployment among carpenters and other building trades ranges from 35 per cent to 50 per cent and there is no sign of immediate improvement.

"There is a lot of talk about shopping centres and industrial parks but very little action," Pickering said.

"Construction is the only weak spot in the local economy but it is really bad."

Some skilled tradesmen have had to look for jobs in the forest industry in order to get a regular paycheque. These jobs normally pay less than the building trades.

On the bright side, he said, retail sales in February were very strong. Normally, February is a slow month but this year local consumers were buying heavily in big ticket items like cars, heavy appliances, furniture and sound systems.

This was verified by reports from the banks that Victorians are saving less and spending more, possibly in the belief that another round of price increases is not far away.

The Burrard Yarrows Corp. shipyard was busy and had 150 workers in February. The total this month is expected to go above 500. Work will begin soon on the new provincial government ferry, guaranteeing steady employment for at least 18 months.

Sawmills continue to operate close to 100 per cent of capacity.

The tourist industry is at its low ebb but visitors are expected to arrive in numbers starting with the Easter weekend, April 14. The ministry of tourism is looking for a 12 per cent increase in visitors this year.

The Oakland Industries cannery is still accepting job applications from experienced workers for the herring roe season, although most positions are filled.'

A survey of major stores by information officer Dan Bowes showed brisk sales during February. Managers said consumer confidence seems to be increasing.

Supreme Court Rejects Tree Farm Hearings

The Islands Protection Society (IPS) and two Haida Indians have failed in their B.C. Supreme Court bid to force a public hearing over renewal of a tree farm licence in the Queen Charlotte Island's South Moresby wilderness area.

Mr. Justice George Murray in a ruling Tuesday said that under the new Forests Act, a hearing is not required on an application by Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. to renew TFL 24.

The IPS, together with herditary chief Nathan Young and Gary Edenshaw, had petitioned the court to rule that public hearings are required for the Rayonier renewal.

The petitioners were represented by Vancouver lawyer Garth Evans.

The society, which wanted part of the Rayonier licence area set aside as a wildlife reserve, has criticized the company for environmental problems its logging practices have caused elsewhere in the Charlottes.

Mr. Justice Murray, however, said the plaintiffs could not prove to him there was reason to interfere in the tree farm issue before Forests Minister Tom Waterland makes a decision in the case.

The judge said he agonized for a long time over whether Waterland would be making a broad policy decision in awarding the renewal or whether he was acting as a judge in the case. He concluded that the minister's role was that of a judge.

A spokesman for the IPS said from Queen Charlotte City today that the society hadn't really expected to win the case and isn't too upset with the decision.

"Looking on the positive side — we won all the points of law we brought up, even though the ruling went against us," said the representative.

"And the ruling gives the minister an opportunity to prove he's acting fairly, to be an impartial judge."

The spokesman said IPS members and others concerned with the fate of the South Moresby wilderness will continue to press Waterland to provide adequate protection for the area's environment.

Meanwhile, Charlottes MLA Graham Lea (NDP-Prince Rupert) accused the Socred government of selling out to the multi-national forest firms by not holding a public hearing into the license renewal.

The government and the company are taking a short-term view with respect to the economy, Lea said.

BROADcaster Frum Fires One

TORONTO (CP) — Broadcaster Barbara Frum fired a stinging slapshot at the owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night for his comments on where he thinks a woman's place is.

Harold Ballard said Monday night on the CBC radio network program As It Happens that women on radio are a joke and the best position for a woman is horizontal.

He then hung up the telephone, ending what was supposed to have been a discussion on Ballard's role in the quick firing and rehiring of Leaf coach Roger Neilson last weekend.

On Tuesday's show, Frum — referring to "that unfortunate incident" — read an open letter to Ballard in which she said she realized how tired he must have been as a result of the Neilson incident.

"Many wanted to do naughty things to you. Our more generous listeners thought you should be stoned in the public square."

"But we wouldn't wish such a fate upon you. You already suffer enough by owning the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Hamilton Tiger Cats.

"People have asked me if I was offended. Course not. I don't care what you say — as long as you keep your hands in your pockets.

"Until we meet again on Jock Talk, happy trails to you.

"You're such a joker, you'll appreciate my sign-off, I hope: Your favorite BROADcaster, Barbara."

Ballard said in an interview with a local newspaper Tuesday night that he didn't understand all the fuss resulting from his remarks but in case he was misunderstood he repeated them. Most were judged unfit to print.

StatsCan Security Lapses Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP started an investigation into security lapses involving handling of confidential material by Statistics Canada Tuesday as a Conservative said they were 10 years late.

RCMP Cpl. Bill Kazmel said he planned to meet officials of the Crown agency today after being called in by Industry Minister Jack Horner.

Horner disclosed the RCMP involvement in an interview after saying in the Commons that government fiscal restraints announced last fall are to blame for the fact that boxes of confidential income tax forms were left out in the open for unauthorized persons to see,

Revenue Minister Tony Abbott dismissed this later.

Conservative - Elmer MacKay, who had disclosed the security lapse in an Ottawa building used by the agency, told the Commons warnings written more than 10 years ago noted the lack of security at Statistics Canada and were not acted upon.

The MP from Central Nova in Nova Scotia said a letter written more than 10 years ago to former trade minister Jean-Luc Pepin, said documents had been piled helter-skelter in an unlocked unguarded room. He did not say who wrote the letter.

“Those had to do with health records, an even more serious breach of confidentiality.”

Horner, responsible to Parliament for the agency, said the matter is being carefully examined.

“Whether it was 10 years ago, yesterday or today, it is the duty of all people working with the government to obey the law,” he said in the Commons.

Statistics Canada employees are bound by law on penalty of fines or imprisonment not to divulge confidential information.

Horner said in the interview he thinks a Statistics Canada employee called MacKay and told him of the unattended confidential papers.

But he added the police are investigating the security of documents at the agency and further action will “depend on what kind of evidence they come up with.”

The minister told the Commons:

“The problem really arose with the severe cuts made last fall and some of the cuts in man years that Statistics Canada has had to endure.”

Slides Close Pass

VANCOUVER (CP) — Avalanches closed the Rogers Pass section of the Trans-Canada highway twice Tuesday as well as the road between Terrace and Prince Rupert, the British Columbia highways ministry said today.

The highway was re-opened for a second time and a spokesman said it was mostly bare and wet.

Crews in northwestern B.C. began digging through an avalanche eight metres deep and 125 metres wide this morning that closed Highway 16 between Terrace and Prince Rupert Tuesday night.

Report April 2

A task force on airport management will bring in a report April 2 with recommendations to resolve safety and employee overtime issues at the Pat Bay airport, a union official said today.

Ralph Halliday, regional vice-president of the Union of Transport Employees, said he is hopeful both issues can be resolved to the satisfaction of the 13 firefighters.

If they are not, he added, the firemen will have to look again at the possibility of refusing to work overtime to provide protection for certain flights, like special charter flights, not covered under the collective agreement.

He said the contract only requires the men to provide protection for scheduled flights even if they are delayed and arrive when the men are technically off shift.

Halliday said he is hopeful the task force will recommend that the airport be reclassified from its present “C” category to a “B” which would mean at least four firefighters per shift and 24-hour coverage.

New Hospital Tool

The successful combination of a sensitive gamma camera, a computer and a low-level, short-lived radioactive material called technetium is giving Victoria General Hospital doctors unprecedented information on the functions of the human body.

The computer and the camera each cost about $100,000. The camera was received in late December and the computer in January.

Dr. Richard Mark of the hospital's nuclear medicine department said the computer was chosen because it is the same as those used in large teaching hospitals in Toronto, Montreal, Seattle and Winnipeg, allowing VGH to borrow computer programs developed in those centres to give local patients the latest in diagnostic techniques at low cost.

The technetium, which has as little and perhaps less radioactivity than the ordinary x-ray, is attached to a compound used extensively by a particular organ of the body and injected into the patient. As it decays into the other harmless elements it gives off gamma radiation that is detected by the camera.

Unlike the conventional x-ray, the gamma camera is able to show chemical activity. This allows earlier detection of bone cancer, for instance, or borderline heart ailments.

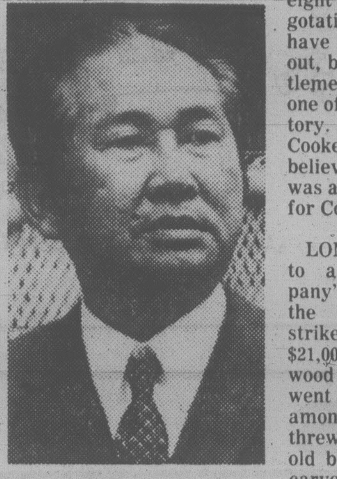
$400,000 Found — And Turned In

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — For a few minutes, Donald Louk was faced with a situation most people fantasize about. There at his feet in two sacks rested $415,000 — and nobody was looking. Louk was on his way to business school Tuesday morning when he spotted the canvas sacks in the street. "The first thing I thought about was whether I should turn in the money or run off with it," he said. "But it wasn't mine. My parents raised me to be honest." Louk, 30, said he stared at the money bags a few seconds, then found a telephone and called police. Police determined that the sacks had fallen out the back door of an armored truck.



LON NOL

. . . eye for opportunity

HONOLULU — Former Cambodian president Lon Nol says there are more opportunities for jobs and education in California, so he's leaving Hawaii for a four-bedroom house in Fullerton, Calif. "Hawaii is nice and the people are friendly but there seem to be more opportunities for jobs and education in California," he said Tuesday.

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Country singer Tammy Wynette is reported getting along well following abdominal surgery at a local hospital. "She's feeling a lot better today," a hospital spokesman said Tuesday. He said Miss Wynette underwent surgery Feb. 28. Doctors have not said when she would be going home.

HONOLULU — Forget elephants. If you want something remembered, call in Carol Neville-Neil. She raised $275 for the March of Dimes Monday in Honolulu by reciting in perfect sequence 2,000 random numbers given to her a week ago. It took her 35 hours to commit the list to memory and 2 ½ hours to rattle it off. Says she, "I don't believe anybody has recalled that many numbers in the same length of time — at least, it isn't in the Guinness Book of Records. I really didn't believe I could do it. The first numbers were the hardest. After that, I kept going faster and faster."

LOS ANGELES — Sports magnate Jack Kent Cooke has agreed to split his property equally with his former wife Barbara Jean Cooke, lawyers for the couple said Tuesday. The property settlement agreement was reached Monday after eight days of court negotations. Exact details have yet to be worked out, but the divorce settlement is believed to be one of the largest in history. One of Mrs. Cooke's lawyers said he believed $100 million was a "ballpark" figure for Cooke's fortune.

LONDON — Thanks to a bankrupt company's ignorance and the British garbage strike, a London man is $21,000 richer. When a wood treatment firm went broke recently, among the things it threw away were three old bits of worm-eaten carved wood that had been used as a horrible "don't let this happen to your house" example. They lay on top of an overfilled garbage can until a keen-eyed passerby spied them and took them along to the Phillips auction firm, where they sold for $21,000 Tuesday. The three worm-eaten, battered bits of wood, joined together, were a panel carved about 1500 in the Low Countries showing St. Hubert at prayer.

ANTIOCH, Calif. — Gene Ballard is bailing out of his marriage but his divorce plans are up in the air. Ballard is to serve divorce papers on his wife, Lynda, on Saturday at about 3,000 metres. Ballard, a carpenter, and his wife plan to skydive one last time together — for old times' sake. They are friends and have been separated for four years. The divorce is uncontested but the in-the-sky ceremony will include Ballard's lawyer. "There have been a lot of marriages in the air, but as far as I know this is the first time divorce papers will be served like this," said fellow skydiver Steven Schlosser.

Luck of the Irish Fails

DUBLIN (AP) — Irish Canadians may have to celebrate this St. Patrick's Day without a shamrock from the Old Sod because of a postal strike in the Emerald Isle.

The strike by about 13,000 post office workers has stopped all mail service and blocked the export of thousands of sprigs of the three-leafed plant traditionally worn by the Irish in honor of their patron saint on March 17.

But the shamrock trade is only one industry hit by the strike which began Feb. 19. Businessmen who were hoping to export a record $6.5 billion from the Irish Republic this year are furious.

"If the government fails to act quickly, exports worth $20 million per day will be exposed to risk," said John Kenna, head of the Confederation of Irish Industry, the country's major employers' group.

The strikers, who include mailmen, telephone operators, sorters and postal counter clerks, are demanding wage increases of up to 37 per cent. They currently earn about $125 for a 40-hour, five-day week.

Because of the strike it is impossible to make operator-assisted telephone calls.

Pitfalls Facing Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are being cautious about President Carter's peace gamble in the Middle East despite more-optimistic assessments in Israel and Egypt.

U.S. sources, even when talking privately, emphasize the pitfalls that may again derail the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty — Carter's unspoken goal as he sets out tonight for Cairo on the first leg of a journey that will last at least a week.

A White House official who asked not to be identified cautioned late Tuesday that at best it will be impossible to conclude all formal action on a treaty during Carter's trip.

The closest thing to public optimism from a U.S. leader came Tuesday when Thomas O'Neill, speaker of the House of Representatives, said: "I truly believe that he (Carter) not only hopes for success but he feels success is there."

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, leaving New York todey to prepare for Carter's Saturday night arrival in Jerusalem, told reporters:

"There is euphoria, not only in this country, but in Jerusalem and Cairo and throughout the world. Now we must be very careful. I am hopeful."

NATO Secretary Defects Carrying 'War Plans'

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany says a defector from the NATO secretarial staff in Brussels brought the Communists war plans of the North Atlantic alliance.

A spokesman at NATO headquarters in the Belgian capital confirmed that Ursel Lorenzen, a West German employed by NATO for 11 years, defected on Monday.

He refused to say how much access she had to the alliance's secrets but reported that she worked in the Office of Council Operations and Communication, which he said helps prepare for military exercises.

Officials will meet this week "to assess what damage she could do," the spokesman said.

The East German news agency ADN said Miss Lorenzen decided to defect because of stepped-up NATO war preparations, including plans for an "atomic attack against the socialist camp" during the Wintex-Cimex exercise now being held by NATO.

But the NATO spokesman said the exercise is "a paper exercise, involves no troops at all," and will conclude in about two weeks.

ADN said another factor in the woman's decision to defect was her learning of the "Fascist past" of NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns, who last month was listed as a member of the Dutch wing of Hitler's National Socialist movement from 1933-36.

Luns, NATO's top civilian official, was foreign minister of the Netherlands for 19 years after the Second World War. He acknowledged he is listed in Nazi membership archives at the Dutch government's War Documentation Centre in Amsterdam. But he said the listing was a mistake and that he was never an active member of the Dutch party.

There was no indication the defection was related to the recent roundup of at least 12 East German spies.

They were fingered by Werner Schiller, an East German security officer who defected in January from the East with a store of secret files. Authorities said another dozen operatives unmasked by the defector eluded police and crossed into East Germany.

Schiller's information led to a spy hunt in West Germany, Austria and France, but authorities say the hunt is concentrated in West Germany, where 3,000 Soviet bloc spies are believed to be operating.

IRA Bomb Cache Bared in Belfast

BELFAST (Reuter) — Police found a cache of at least 40 bombs in this Northern Ireland capital today and said Irish republican guerrillas had intended to use them to attack the city.

Police discovered the bombs, the largest haul of illegal explosives found in Ulster, at a vacant yard in the docks area of east Belfast.

"There is no doubt that the action of the police and the army thwarted a massive and imminent attack on Belfast by the provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA)," a police spokesman said.

"It is clear that the Provisionals had intended to use a large number of men to carry out what was meant to be a devastating attack."

The Sound of Silence

Canadians' ingrained reluctance to appear to be copying American fashion too slavishly has preserved us from some ridiculous excesses. It has also insulated the country at times from some needed changes and overdue reforms.

The strange silence in Ottawa and Victoria over the U.S. ban on the herbicide 2,4,5-T seems to be an example of the latter. The weedkiller is widely used in Canada and the United States in forestry, agriculture and home gardening.

If this commonly available weedkiller is considered by a U.S. federal government agency as possibly contributing to miscarriages among women, then surely the Canadian agencies responsible for controlling and licensing its use should also be concerned.

The Environmental Protection Agency's decision to suspend use of 2,4,5-T was not taken lightly. It was based on comparative studies in three regions of Oregon. The one area where 2,4,5-T was used reported a much higher incidence of spontaneous abortions among women than the two "control areas" where 2,4,5-T was not sprayed widely.

This is the first time the EPA has suspended the use of a herbicide under its special emergency powers. According to an EPA spokesman in Washington: "Prudence dictates EPA to stop use until we have a fuller understanding of this phenomenon and its implications for human health." The implications for the petrochemical industry, farmers, forest companies and herbicide manufacturers are considerable, as 2,4,5-T is widely used throughout the continent.

Sometimes the regulators err on the side of caution but, as the experience with thalidomide demonstrated, that is infinitely more preferable than dealing with the tragic after-effects. The new tranquilizer called thalidomide was licensed for use in Europe but the suspicious Food and Drug Administration kept it out of the U.S. pending further tests. When birth defects began appearing in babies born to mothers who had used the drug during pregnancy, thalidomide was banned outright. Fortunately, few American or Canadian children were affected.

How many English, German or French families wish now that their governments had been even half so vigilant?

Concern about 2,4,5-T did not spring full-blown from this one Oregon study. Its use as a defoliant in the Vietnam war, combined with 2,4-D to make "Agent Orange," was believed to have caused numerous birth defects among Vietnamese living below the spray zones. But the war was 10,000 miles away and 2,4,5-T was not being sprayed wholesale in the U.S.

What do Canadian leaders say? The silence has been deafening; the only local politician to urge a similar suspension was Ald. Robin Blencoe. From B.C. Environment Minister Rafe Mair, from his federal counterpart Len Marchand, not a word. Not even the usual "we-are-concerned-about and we-are-taking-a-careful-look-at" generalities.

The herbicide 2,4,5-T is useful in many applications, but there are substitutes. Public health should take precedence over the convenience of farmers and the forest industry.

That's Q-a-t-a-r, Pierre

It was enough to make a sovereign gasp. Queen Elizabeth reportedly caught her breath momentarily on her recent mideast visit when she was presented with a particularly lavish gift. The Queen — who is custodian of no small collection of jewelry herself — was given a stunning lapis lazuli dish encrusted with diamonds by the emir of Qatar, as well as five strings of pearls.

Prince Philip got a gold sword studded with diamonds and rubies to add to others he picked up in Kuwait and Bahrain. In all, English auction house specialists estimated that the royal yacht Britannia sailed for home with more than $2 million in royal presents.

This haul of swag is all the more amazing in comparison with the relatively skimpy bag of trinkets her majesty carried as gifts for her hosts. One estimate of the value was $270,000. Not a bad deal for Britain's ailing economy.

How soon can we wangle an invitation to the Persian Gulf for Prime Minister Trudeau?

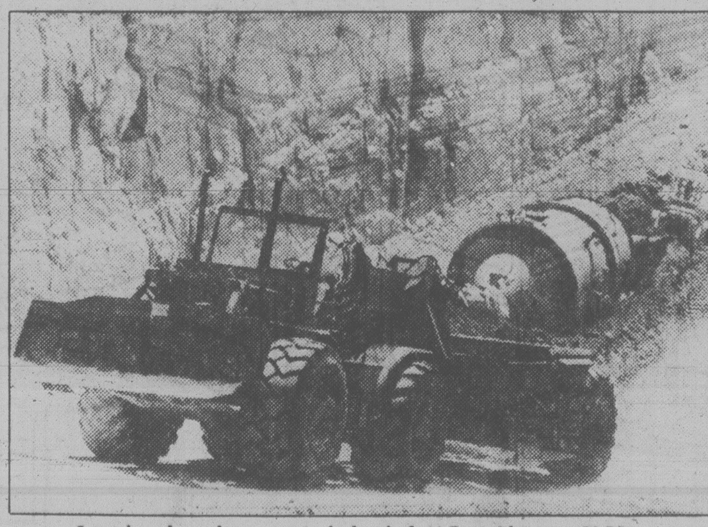
Was Nuclear Ever Safe?

NEW YORK — A lot of Americans either have lost or are beginning to lose confidence in government and industry assurances that nuclear energy production is safe. A few items, published over one recent weekend, suggest the reason why — even though only one of them had anything to do with nuclear energy as such:

☐ The New England Journal of Medicine printed a study that showed leukemia to have occurred at more than two times the normal rate among persons who were under 15 and living in Utah in the path of fallout from about 100 atmospheric nuclear tests conducted in Nevada in the 1950s.

☐ Former U.S. interior secretary Stuart Udall filed 212 claims against the government seeking damages for illnesses allegedly caused by such tests, bringing to 447 the total number of similar claims filed by Udall and others since last September.

☐ Roland Belhumeur, a former worker in the Portsmouth, Me., naval shipyard, said he had a list of 40 co-workers who had died since they were part of a unit of about 75 welders and laborers working on the U.S. navy's early nuclear reactor program. Belhumeur said in 1977 that nuclear workers at the navy yard were contracting leukemia at a rate of six times higher than that of non-nuclear workers.



Low level nuclear waste is buried at Los Alamos, N.M.

Did Nothing

☐ A Freedom of Information suit disclosed that after 200 tons of uranium disappeared in 1968 (apparently diverted from Italy to Israel), neither the European Atomic Energy Community nor the International Atomic Energy Agency did anything to improve their security arrangements, nor did the U.S. do anything but urge them to make changes.

What links these stories is the failure — at least the calling into question — of assurances from government and industry. We were assured by the government in the 1950s that atmospheric nuclear testing was held within safe fallout limits.

The navy is still insisting that its records indicate that no workers at the Portsmouth navy yard received more radiation than was safe. We are told constantly that all nuclear energy production procedures, including security against theft and terrorism, are adequate.

But time and again, instances come to light that cast doubt on these assurances. The most egregious recent example was the disclosure on Jan. 19 that the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission would no longer "regard as reliable" its own nuclear safety study — the so-called "Ramussen report" — which had assured us that the chance of a serious nuclear accident was about once in a million years.

The NRC did not say it now believed nuclear reactors were more or less dangerous than that, but that it now considered the bounds of error greater than the study had indicated. It added that anyone reading the official "summary" of the Rasmussen report might be "left with a misplaced confidence in the validity of the risk estimates and a more favorable impression of reactor risks in comparison with other risks that were warranted by the study." Indeed.

In fact, the official rejection of the Rasmussen report is one more piece of evidence that — aside from the basic questions of nuclear safety — both government and industry have been too careless in their safety studies, too committed as advocates of nuclear energy, occasionally deceptive or misleading in that advocacy and consistently over-optimistic both in their safety estimates and their judgment of the extent to which the public would accept questionable assurances. As one nuclear official put it privately, the nuclear energy industry was allowed to regard the Rasmussen report as its "security blanket."

No Answers

Now the industry is paying the price in reduced public support and confidence and a nuclear energy construction program slowed almost to a standstill. Nothing is needed more, for example, than a credible demonstration of acceptable technology for the safe long term disposal of nuclear wastes, but all we are given is more assurance that the technology and sites will be available by the time the waste problem becomes acute. That just isn't good enough, particularly in light of waste disposal problems already encountered at West Valley, N.Y., Maxey Flats, Ky., and elsewhere — despite, of course, assurances that these facilities were safe.

Molly Ivins in The New York Times recently reported on a nuclear safety test at Mud Lake, Idaho. The scientist conducting it was asked why the test was being done 20 years after the government started licensing nuclear reactors. "That's a good question," he replied. "I can't answer it. You'd have to ask my predecessors."

In fact, the test showed the process in question to be safe. But that ironic fact only makes it a better question still.

Resources Sellout

After reading the articles in the Victoria Times on the B.C. Resources Investment Corporation, one thing comes through loud and clear: three of the original government takeovers were clearly to prevent the mills being taken over by foreign investors — Kootenay Forest Products by Eddy Match, a Toronto-based but British owned company; Plateau Mills Ltd. by the almighty ITT Rayonier of the U.S. and Canadian Cellulose by Weyerhauser, another U.S. company.

The operations have been, especially in the case of Plateau Mills, through union participation in the boardroom, very profitable. Production has increased in some instances by 100 per cent. Even if a person doesn't agree with government ownership, the fact remains that the greatest threat to our province and its future is our inability to be master over our resources and the processing of them.

The latest actions from our Social Credit government on the proposed takeover of MB by CPI can be best described in the words of the former director of the Union Pacific Railroad who said: "What is desired, if I understand, is something having a good sound which will impress the popular mind with the idea that a great deal is being done when in reality very little is intended to be done."

Our government planners do not have the knowledge of the activities of global corporations to make the crucial planning decisions. Thus, the managers of those corporations have become the planners by default. Disclosure requirements are hopelessly inadequate to permit governments to exercise power over the global corporations.

The three obvious forces that can reverse this trend, labor unions, small businessmen and government, are completely inadequate to handle the control of our resources. In the labor unions, a loss of workers means a smaller voice. In business, a loss of participation leads to the same result. That leaves us with government.

It is up to us to vote in a government which has shown, through its actions, that the multinationals can operate and process our resources but they can't own them and expand at will. — Art DeGraaf, Duncan, 3260 Herd Road.

Seniors Centre

I would like to propose that St. Ann's Academy be turned over to the senior citizens of Great Victoria for a nominal fee to do with as they see fit and develop as a centre for the senior people of the province, Victoria in particular.

Senior citizens represent expertise in all walks of life. They cover all trades and professions through administration, trade skills and handicrafts. Be there a need for plumbing, carpentry, landscaping, legal guidance or security, they have the people young at heart and active enough to take on the task. I can envision a centre of gardens, fish pools, aviaries, tennis, bowling greens, and, yes, swimming and sauna. A pioneer museum to display private collections, where skills and hobbies are shared with others and perhaps passed along to the young. Card and billiard rooms, a place where the skilled craftsman can practise his trade; be it a hand-carved bannister rail, ornate cabinet, chandelier or stained glass window. Who can better design a formal rose garden, sculpt garden ornaments or crochet a formal tablecloth?

I think they could show us all how to accomplish a major undertaking without crying for grants, aid and subsidies, but through expertise and sound administration. Perhaps by offering the opportunity we will learn overselves. — B. H. Atkins, 4040 Wilkinson Road.

Smile on Welfare

So the welfare state has finally come to B.C. under Social Credit. After all the boasting for the last three years by Mr. Vander Zalm about how he was finding them all jobs through his wonderful PREP program, the new Minister of Human Resources, Grace McCarthy, has now told us the truth.

Mrs. McCarthy has released the statistics Mr. Vander Zalm refused to give the legislature. She has told us that there are now twice as many "employable" persons on social assistance as there were when the Socreds became government. In December, 1975, there were 22,000 — now there are 40,000. Mrs. McCarthy also revealed that a total of 114,000 persons receive welfare, plus 9,124 persons between age 60 and 64. A grand total of approximately 125,000.

Then there is the question of the cost of welfare. In 1975 the human resources department was spending $475 million per year. The Socred budget this year provided for the expenditure of $552 million. Mrs. McCarthy tells us this will be increased to $588 million because she has, horror of horrors, a "$36 million overrun." So Social Credit is spending $113 million more per year on welfare than the NDP did. Next year, because of the $31 million increase in rates, the total will rise to $624 million per year.

A Fine feature

I continue to be pleased (and amazed) by the depth and breadth of Hilda Beastall's column. By far the most informative and intriguing feature you've got — A. Cooper, Victoria.

Shoot Each Other

Whoever shot my collie last Saturday near Pease Lake in the Highland district will no doubt derive some satisfaction from the fact that the dog, while not dead, is suffering considerable pain at the animal hospital and may well be lame for the rest of its life.

It is apparent to me that the maiming was accomplished by someone who came into the park for some casual target practice. Undoubtedly an animal provides a challenging and amusing target: it moves quickly and shows its distress dramatically when Macho Man's bullet shatters its body. I suppose one ought to feel pity for those who feel obliged to express their virility or release frustration by crippling or killing animals which have no means of defending themselves. In the absence of more stringent gun control laws, perhaps it would be better if such persons were encouraged to form clubs with special preserves, provided by the government, on which they could hunt each other instead.

That way other citizens might feel a bit more secure when walking through parkland, wild and domestic animals could enjoy an increased life expectancy, and the yahoos would still get their kicks while keeping their own population down to manageable levels. — David M. Greer, Durrance Road.

Missing Letter

More than two weeks ago, on Feb. 10, a friend phoned to say she had posted a first class letter to me from a mailbox in a downtown office building. As yet I have not received that letter, which contained information needed by the next Wednesday at the latest. So on that day I had to sit down with pad and pencil to take a page of notes by telephone. I wonder if the post office can think of a reasonable excuse for mail disappearing? I phoned our local sub post office but got no helpful information. However I let them know I was annoyed. The day I expected the letter, a neighbour received another one addressed to me in with her mail. On occasion, neighbors' mail has been left on our box, as well as across the street.

I could list other instances — wherever one goes into groups of people or meetings one never fails to hear complaints about delays or mistakes in mail service. Why do we get so much junk mail with such regularity? We neither ask for it nor wish to receive most of it — into the fireplace it goes unopened. Could it be that my missing letter is lying somewhere between the folds of a supermarket flyer? Thank goodness there was no cheque inside!

I appeal to all citizens with similar grievances — phone your postmaster and let him know you are concerned. It costs nothing but a few minutes' time and when enough complaints are forthcoming, perhaps action will be taken. — Mrs. L. J. Harper, 1617 Jubilee Avenue.

Looking After Their Own

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — You can't beat Ottawa's mandarins for bold greed. In 1975, just before the sudden imposition of wage and price controls — the Anti-Inflation Board and all that — what group of federal employees had a neat raise slipped through cabinet for themselves?

Yes. The "S-Xs", the senior executive officials of the federal government, "the cream", 1,200 of them.

Just after the AIB ended its mandate what group of federal employees had another raise? Without bargaining, of course? Yes. The "S-Xs."

Last week, after slipping into the "Estimates" funds for more support for retired governors-general, Judd Buchanan, the head of Treasury Board, announced that "S-Xs" would be getting only a 7 per cent raise, not an increase of 7.5 per cent as recommended by the best pals of all mandarins, "the Advisory Group on Executive Compensation in the Public Service."

Thanks to this on-going committee of present and ex-leaders of business, first set up by Lester Pearson, we have attained the best-paid senior public service in the Western World, the elite which decorate the top level of Ottawa as Fat City.

So our mandarins, whom the recent estimates showed had a range from $31,400 to $61,200, get bounced higher. Here's one bit of the boggledygook from Buchanan's announcement:

"The average salary of executives classified as deputy ministers will be $58,400, an increase of $3,820 a year. Individuals in this latter group, which compromises 5.4 per cent of the executive population, occupy the most senior executive positions in the public service."

These very top people also got some "fringes" — longer vacations, more free insurance. The top of their scale now, as recommended by the advisory group, is $78,700.

So restraint and common sense do not exist in Ottawa's executive lots. Of all people in the country, these men would know the folly of playing the percentage game across the board of incomes.

What do I mean? Last month the Son of AIB pilloried Bell and its clericals for a wage boost in the 12 per cent range. Twelve per cent of $10,000 a year is only $1,200 a year more, moving clericals up to $11,200. Seven per cent for the top mandarins means $3,800 a year more.

It has seemed to me that Canada got good value from Roland Michener as governor general (1967-1974) and almost as good from Jules Leger (1974-1979). So one does not want to be niggling about these men in retirement. Yet it is disturbing that the federal estimates published last week launch a substantial, costly program of support for retired governors-general.

Look at the current governor general, aged 43, due for retirement at age 48. Under the new dispensation, Ed Schreyer and his family would have substantial funds and staff of up to eight in such retirement. It will be better than getting into the Senate.

Michener at 79 has been vigorous in retirement, and given his rank and social position, it is understandable that he has received and fulfilled many invitations of a public or semi-public kind. The same will happen to Leger, although his capacity to take part will be limited by his afflictions.

The new provisions are "for expenditures in respect of the activities performed by former Governors-General, which devolve upon them as a result of their having occupied office." Eight staff members and $175,000 are set aside for the fiscal year 1979-80. Of course, this has nothing to do with the really handsome pensions which retired Governor-Generals receive.

Of course, the provisions of funds and staff for them means there will have to be considerable activity or its facsimile on the part of these retired gentlemen to justify the vote of funds. The new financing seems both rather extravagent and an impingement on the incumbent and his role.

Prison Reform Stymied

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — Two years ago, after one of the most extensive investigations ever undertaken by a parliamentary committee, a special, all-party sub-committee of the Commons Justice Committee rang the alarm bells on Canada's penitentiary system as loudly as it possibly could.

In a unanimous report, the 13-member sub-committee painted a nightmare portrait of a jungle in which the strong prey on the weak, prison directors live in fear not of their prisoners but of their staffs, and "hoodlum guards" brutalize inmates and deliberately incite them to riot in order to qualify for danger pay.

"Large-scale reform," the sub-committee declared, "is imperative . . . as a matter of the utmost urgency." It made 65 recommendations, including the removal of the penitentiary service from the public service system and its establishment as a separate agency.

In the two years since that report was presented, the Justice Committee has watched with mounting anger and frustration as the Solicitor General's department ignored all the major recommendations of the report while making a big show of implementing a handful of minor ones.

That frustration proved to be the father of invention. Resorting to an ingenious — and unprecedented — Parliamentary manoeuvre, the committee managed recently to bring its anger to the floor of the Commons and force a day-long special debate.

Ostensibly, the committee was advising the House that, in order to proceed adequately with its current study of the rights of children, it would need to have its terms of reference expanded to include the "incarceration of children, and the penal system as it relates to both children and adults." But once its request reached the floor of the House, all pretence was ended.

"If you scratch away the parliamentary niceties," Conservative James McGrath declared in opening the debate, "what you will find is a mini-revolt by one of the standing committees of this House."

The revolt was directed at what Liberal Simma Holt described as the "crisis and tragedy" of a penal system that renders inmates "more dangerous when they come out than when they went in."

But it was also directed at something far more basic even than that.

The top bureaucrats of the penitentiary service "are not implementing our report, but rather finding ways not to implement it," Holt charged.

"Twenty months ago we recommended that regional headquarters be eliminated," she reminded the MPs. "What has happened since our report was tabled? Regional headquarters were enlarged."

Conservative Bruce Halliday had much the same thing to say about what he called "the most important issue facing not only the prisons, but governments in general."

Bureaucrats "have assumed the role of the elected officials," he said. "They have taken on the role of policymaking" as well as that of implementation.

He described how, on learning that the Solicitor General's department had rejected one of the sub-committee's recommendations on the basis of a commissioned study, he had requested a copy of the study. Sorry, he was told, the study is for departmental eyes only.

"We have lost track entirely," he told his fellow MPs, "of the relationship which should exist between the elected representatives of the people and the people we hire."

A number of MPs compared the current Solicitor General, Jean-Jacques Blais, unfavorably with his predecessor, Francis Fox, who was responsible for launching the Justice Committee on its penitentiary study.

Fox, they said, recognized that the wave of unrest in Canada's prisons indicated that his department must be doing something wrong. Blais, as Halliday put it, has simply been "conned" by officials into stonewalling on their behalf.

HOLT
. . . raps bureaucrats

In the aftermath of the debate, Mark MacGuigan, the Liberal MP who chairs the Justice Committee and also chaired the sub-committee which produced the penitentiaries report, assessed the result of the insurrection.

"We won," he said. "But we won nothing."

Parliament unanimously voted to expand the Justice Committee's current terms of reference to include "the penal system as it relates to both children and adults." That means the Committee is free to make further recommendations that the Solicitor General's department will be free, once again, to ignore.

In the short term, MacGuigan is doubtless right. In the longer term, though, the Justice Committee's hollow victory may prove to have been a landmark on the road to a renewed Parliamentary democracy.

GEN. PINOCHET . . . a rival in the ranks?

Pinochet's Uneasy Throne

By DIETER KRONER

(Kroner writes for the daily newspaper Neue Zurcher Zeitung of Zurich, Switzerland, from which this article was excerpted by Atlas World Press Review)

The nights have grown peaceful in Santiago. The country's new rulers have, by and large, vented their feelings of hatred and revenge. What remains are the nightmares of those who have suffered as a result — and the anxiety of the hired torturers, now beginning to fear the day of reckoning.

But five years under the new leader, Gen. Augusto Pinochet Ugarte, have made their mark. As our taxi driver put it — and later evidence confirmed his words — "Children here again respect the authority of their parents, and citizens again obey their superiors." Translated into social terms this means that in Chile, as a hundred years ago, the wealthy can be rich without a bad conscience. What is new is that the poor, whose ranks are now being swelled by members of the middle class, are more defenceless than ever.

At the time of the coup d'etat of Sept. 11, 1973, the majority of Chileans trusted the middle-class mentality and origins of the military leaders and, on the basis of recent Chilean history, assumed that their ideals were shared by them. Today that same majority feels itself increasingly betrayed by its supposed saviours.

The destruction of Chile's middle class — or rather its gradual economic and political proletarization — is now in full swing. According to the current timetable the first popular elections are to be in 1985 — a long-enough span, so the government hopes, to make new economic and political structures irreversible.

The economic steps taken by the military junta so far involve two major adjustments: First, small domestic industries, laboriously built up and aimed primarily at the domestic market, have been sacrificed to the interests of financially powerful export-oriented enterprises; second, there has been a return to the large landholdings of earlier epochs.

With the receding of widespread public fear, which is already taking place, the junta for the first time faces the danger of being challenged. The civilian opposition has never had any illusion that resistance to the regime has any prospect of success unless it begins to be articulated in the military itself. In his own branch of the service, the Army, Gen. Pinochet has succeeded in keeping the reins firmly in his own hands. But the main focus of potential trouble has always been the Air Force. Its former commander, Gen. Leigh, not only resisted Pinochet's claim to absolute power, but toward the end of his career his overtures to trade unions and contacts with civilian political groups made him the focal point of a counter-movement to be taken seriously.

This problem was by no means resolved through his brutal dismissal with 17 other generals.

The group which has formed around Gen. Leigh no longer tries to hide its views. The demand is now being voiced that the junta return to the "principles of Sept. 11," which, prior to their perversion, at least verbally reflected the democratic ideals of the Chilean middle class. This demand is a deliberate attempt to bridge the chasm between the military and the broad masses of citizens and to create a common starting point for the joint restoration of the country's traditional democratic institutions.

At least in the short term, however, Gen. Pinochet's position does not seem seriously threatened either by the Letelier case or by his brusque dismissal of Gen. Leigh. The vehement criticisms voiced abroad have triggered a reaction of solidarity in Chile, resulting in a sense of cohesion behind Pinochet which should not be underestimated.

Taking the High Road

russell baker

One of the deeds progress will have to answer for sooner or later is its destruction of civilized travel. Thus, when Ayatollah Khomeini wanted to return to Iran to claim his triumph, he was forced to fly.

For a person as strong as the Ayatollah, this may have been no hardship. The newspapers said he even made the trip in a plane in which both smoke and alcohol were forbidden. This is consistent with his Islamic principles, of course, but it also attests to a faith in airplanes more profound than the ordinary traveller can muster.

Consider, for example, the hypothetical case of a man — let's call him Harry — who has been sitting in Washington directing a revolution in California. After weeks of public rioting in the drive-ins, Gov. Edmund Brown has been forced to flee to Morocco.

★ ★ ★

Harry's advisers tell him it is time to proceed to Los Angeles and instal the new order. "Get me a compartment on the Royal Blue to Chicago, and a bedroom on the Super Chief to L.A." says Harry.

"You've been away a long time, Harry. The railroads don't work anymore. I've booked you nonstop by jet."

Harry has flown twice in his life, once from Washington to Buffalo in a blizzard, and once from Buffalo back to Washington because the alternative was to fight the wolf packs. He is still unable to reminisce about those flights without becoming ill.

"Get me a first-class cabin on the first good ocean liner to San Francisco" says Harry.

"You've been away a long time, Harry. They don't run ocean liners even from New York to Europe anymore, except in the summer tourist season."

"Rent me a car and I'll drive," says Harry.

"You haven't priced car rentals in a long time, Harry. With what it would cost you, you'd have to raise property taxes to pay the bill. In California it would kill you politically."

"Then buy me a car," says Harry.

"You haven't pulled up to a gas pump in a longtime, Harry. With the price of gas today you'd be broke before you got to Omaha."

Harry is about to say, "In that case, buy me a horse," but he realizes that this mode of travel would inspire his enemies in the press to denounce him as "a man on horseback."

"Why don't I just pass up the revolution this time?" Harry suggests.

Harry's advisers know what the trouble is: Harry is afraid of being strapped into a cylindrical metal container, shot to an altitude of six miles and propelled across the continent at 550 miles an hour. Harry is afraid that if the metal container falls down or collides at such speed with passing objects, or rigidly fixed mountains, he will lose his poise.

"Harry," says his closest adviser, "I want to show you something to put you at ease."

Harry examines sheets of statistics. They prove beyond dispute that it is ridiculous, childish, cowardly, stupid and unworthy of a grown man to believe that flying is more dangerous than taking a hot bath.

"In fact, Harry, taking a hot bath is so much more dangerous than flying that they don't even permit bath-tubs on airplanes."

"I'm not interested in the revolution," says Harry. "Let Howard Jarvis run it."

"Harry! You think I like it up there with the pilots and the stewardesses always telling me to sit down and fasten my seat-belt? I don't like it a bit better than you do. That's why I smoke, Harry. The secret is to smoke. That way you get so depressed about killing yourself slowly with cigarettes that you don't mind the thought of getting it all over with in a flash."

"Tell them I said to bring back Jerry Brown," says Harry.

"If you drink, Harry, you can do it. A bottle of slivovitz at the airport just before boarding, then some martinis right after takeoff . . ."

"Maybe I could hitchhike," says Harry.

"You've been off the highway a long time, Harry. Cross-country traffic these days all uses the interstates where hitchhiking is against the law. Take some valium, fellow. That's what a lot of people do. You won't know whether you're flying or eating boiled bananas."

Harry reaches his decision. Leaving his advisers in uncertainty, he runs a hot bath and fearlessly immerses himself. "Tell my followers that I must stay here and face great danger on their behalf," Harry says, groping for the soap which has, as usual, slid under his shoulder blades. "Tell them I shall come to lead them after I have conquered danger here and established a great transcontinental railroad to bring them undrugged, undrunk and unsmoked to the distant east."

Oil Shortages to Dominate IMF Talks

WASHINGTON (CP) — Finance ministers and central bank governors from 139 non-Communist countries — including Canada — meet in Washington today to devise strategies for directing economic growth in a world that faces energy shortages and rising prices.

Canadian Finance Minister Jean Chretien will join other ministers for the interim committee meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the 35-year-old agency that promotes economic growth and financial stability.

Deputy Finance Minister William Hood and Gerald Bouey, governor of the Bank of Canada, also are members of the Canadian delegation.

Briefings Tuesday by U.S. treasury undersecretary Anthony Solomon and conversations with officials show the meetings will be dominated by the uncertainty about world oil supplies.

Solomon said Tuesday despite the shortages suffered since the Iranian cutoff of oil exports, the United States foresees an improvement in its 1979 economic performance. Japan and West Germany will be urged to buy more imports to help other countries by reducing their huge surpluses in international trade.

Around the world, Solomon says the forecast is for moderate expansion of economic activity this year and for little significant improvement in unemployment rates.

The United States intends to tell its fellow IMF members it is determined to push its anti-inflation efforts and to increase its exports.

A prime agenda topic is a proposal for a so-called substitution account — an initiative aimed at adding stability to fragile world monetary markets. The new account would accept surplus U.S. dollars from central banks around the world, replacing them with equivalent amounts of the fund's reserve asset called Special Drawing Rights.

A Special Drawing Right is worth about $1.29 U.S. Using them as a substitute for absorbing some of the $150 billion in U.S. currency now held by foreign central banks would remove some of the dollar weakness plaguing foreign-exchange markets.

Solomon insists the proposal for a new account is not a U.S.-initiated rescue operation for the dollar, even though many claim this is the case.

He claims the IMF simply wants to promote wider use of its SDRs. It is not clear, if the substitution account is set up, how large it would be or how long it would last.

Other possible items for today's meeting include consideration of a development loan application by Turkey. Since it is only a semi-annual meeting, most of the hard decisions are likely to be put over untkl the regular annual meeting in September.

Possible membership in the IMF for China likely will be discussed, at least in a preliminary way, Solomon said. The United States which gave China official recognition Jan. 1, is eager to have the Chinese take on part of the burden of maintaining world economic stability.

Carter Urges Aid for Cities

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Carter asked Congress Tuesday to pass legislation that would provide $400 million over the next two years to more than 1,200 communities "experiencing severe fiscal distress."

According to Treasury Department figures, the nation's 10 most "distressed" cities (in terms of unemployment) would get the following amounts under the first part of the program: Boston, $2.95 million; Buffalo, $1.5 million; Chicago, $12.2 million; Cleveland, $1.3 million; Detroit, $7.8 million; New Orleans, $2 million; New York, $42.8 million; Newark, $2.7 million; Philadelphia, $8.7 million, and St. Louis, $2 million.

The president, who met with state and local officials to outline the measure, told them, "It's not going to be easy to get (it) passed. I think we're going to have to mount a very strong lobbying effort on the Hill."

Gas Still Blowing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Placid Oil Co. says it will drill a second well into the shaft of a natural gas well in the Gulf of Mexico where an explosion and fire killed four and left four others missing.

The "relief" well will be used to pump mud into the blowing well to choke off the underground gas source, a spokesman said.

The fire snuffed itself out Tuesday and troubleshooters who went aboard the fire-blackened platform found a fourth body. Three other bodies were recovered earlier.

Ominous Turn for Worse in U.S. Economy

By ART PINE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economic outlook has taken a visible — and decidedly ominous — turn for the worse.

Although analysts still aren't expecting a repeat of the disastrous 1974-75 recession, the odds that the economy will fall into a serious slump — with a near-double-digit inflation rate instead of the previously expected improvement — have grown markedly in the past few weeks.

By most forecasts, a mild recession later this year or early in 1980 — debated by private economists only a few months ago — now seeems virtually certain. The argument now is over whether the downturn will end up sharper and deeper.

And inflation, predicted as late as mid-January to slow to 7.5 percent or so from the 9 per cent pace of 1978, now is thought likely to remain at 8.5 to 9 per cent — an underlying rate that is rapid enough to heighten the risks of recession.

The worsening stems from three fctors:

—The recent Iranian oil cutoff and the prospect of additional major price increases throughout the petroleum exporters' cartel threaten to send inflation soaring even higher, making any downturn worse.

—Domestic inflation already has worsened decidedly, with pervasive increases both in wholesale and retail prices in January that analysts say seem almost certain to continue and spread.

—Despite some sporadic signs of slowing, the over-all economy still is growing too rapidly for this stage of the business cycle — a situation some analysts fear could lead to more serious overheating and bring on a sharper and deeper recession later.

By far the most serious of these in the view of most analysts is the continued overheating of the economy, which many analysts view as the major reason inflation has accelerated so rapidly. Although a few recent figures have begun to show some signs of a modest tapering off from the fourth quarter's pace, the majority of key statistics are still far too heady.

The consensus both in and outside the administration is that the economy now has firmly entered the period of excess demand that analysts were debating about last autumn. The fear is that unless this excess demand abates soon, it will exacerbate inflation further and produce economic imbalances that will deepen the recession.

Otto Eckstein, former Johnson administration economic adviser and head of Data Resources Inc., frets that businesses already are "scrambling" to place new orders — both to beat expected further price increases and to avert delays from backlogs such as they experienced in late 1978.

While careful not to overdraw the parallel, Eckstein notes that precisely that kind of activity — in the face of a falloff in consumer spending and a slump in housing starts — created the buildup of excess inventories that led to the 1974-75 recession.

"This isn't 1973," Eckstein concedes. "But there's no doubt if this continues, it'll be very dangerous. What we're encountering is a new — and very frightening — stage of the expansion. It's much more urgent now than it was previously to bring real demand growth down."

The new feeling of pessimism has spread to almost every major private economic forecaster. Lawrence Klein, who steadfastly predicted in mid-January there would be no significant downturn in 1979, now considers a recession "likely" — with inflation looking substantially worse as well.

All that does not bode well for the Carter administration, which had hoped to get any recession "over with" before the 1980 presidential campaign, but which now seems more likely to be embroiled in the midst of it as the president begins his bid for a second term.

In his January budget package, President Carter proposed tightening economic policy further, combining a moderate reduction in the budget deficit with the new wage-price guidelines program he unveiled last October to combat inflation.

Now, however, it seems likely that the new burst of inflation will strain Carter's wage-price program to the breaking point, while the downturn — if it comes — will dash any hopes of holding down the budget deficit. And Carter may run into further troubles with a declining dollar.

The irony, however, is that there may be little the White House can do to improve the situation. Key strategists have been discussing the problem at policy sessions, but so far have been unable to think of ways to get out of it.

At least some of the outlook depends on how the oil situation evolves. Analysts say resumption of stability now could head off any further damage, but there seems little solid evidence that this will come as painlessly as hoped. So far, the price increases announced last week seem likely to stick.

At the worst, a further crimp in oil supplies could seriously worsen any recession. And the administration's new plan to try to persuade all major industrial nations to cut back on consumption — while designed primarily to help hold oil prices down — is almost certain to dampen the economy here as well.

At best, analysts say if Iran resumes full production promptly and prices settle down after the current surge, the setback still will be enough to pevent any improvement from last year's inflation picture. At worst, it could guarantee double-digit inflation and cut output sharply.

The inflation speedup presents still another dilemma. Although some of the sharper-than-expected rise has stemmed from a surprise spurt in food prices, the figures show the price surge is spread throughout the economy. Analysts say unions will be hard put to keep wage boosts down if the increases persist.

Most perplexing, however, is the continued rapid pace of the economy. Although housing starts have begun to taper off from the fourth quarter's heady pace, economists say that's due mainly to the impact of state usury ceilings (which limit available mortgage money) rather than to any impact of higher interest rates.

City Urged to Back 'Triangle' Tourism

Seattle, Vancouver and Victoria form a golden triangle of tourist revenues but a joint effort must be launched to keep them coming, Seattle Convention and Visitors Bureau manager Hartly Kruger said here Tuesday.

The Seattle bureau has begun to publicize B.C. as part of a two-nation holiday package and Victoria should start a similar campaign for international holidays.

He urged the VIC to set up a liaison committee to work with the Seattle bureau on international tourist campaigns.

Seattle is already working on behalf of Victoria, he said.

While giving a sales pitch to convention organizers around North America, Seattle officials show slides of the Marguerite and discuss the attractions in Victoria as part of the argument in favor of holding meetings in the American northwest, he said.

A growing number of delegates are likely to make the side tour to Victoria during the Seattle conventions.

It would be to Victoria's benefit to promote Seattle in the same way.

Kruger said it is only an illusion that Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver are competitors for the tourist dollar.

He said anyone coming into the area becomes a potential tourist for all three.

Kruger, who carries the title of executive vice-president of the Seattle bureau, said tourism helped to rescue the economy of Washington State when Boeing, the main industry, went into a slump.

In 1969 the tourist industry had brought in only $200 million and created 15,000 jobs in the Seattle area, he said.

Now, 10 years later, it is worth $650 million a year and has created 50,000 jobs.

"The net gain in 10 years is 35,000 jobs," he said.

Last summer was the best for Seattle with the King Tut display as a special attraction.

Still, Seattle expects to match last year's revenues this year through vigorous follow-up promotion, he said. He has set a target of a 10-per-cent increase.

Kruger said Victoria will lose out on millions of dollars in revenue unless it gets its convention centre constructed soon.

Seattle, he said, is bursting at the seams with conventions. There were 580 last year totalling about 350,000 delegates.

At the annual meeting, presentations were made honoring Ken King, past president of the VIC, Frank Hegyi for organizing the Western Canada Oldtimers Hockey Tournament, and representatives of Sealand, Royal London Wax Museum and Gidden Industries, for being the top sellers of the Victoria trade dollar.

Bus Bombing Injures Five

TEL AVIV (AP) — At least five persons were injured today when a terrorist bomb exploded on a tourist bus near the Allenby Bridge crossing between the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Jordan, Israel Radio reported.

The victims were taken to hospitals in Jerusalem, said a military source who did not know the nationalities of the injured.

A second bomb exploded on an empty tourist bus in Jerusalem, police said. The bus was on the Mount of Olives, near a point where tourists view the ancient walled city of Jerusalem. There were no casualties in this explosion but the bus went up in flames, police said.

Gas Shortage Clips Airlines

Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) for example, is providing its dealers 100 per cent allocations, meaning they can receive as much gas in March as they received in March, 1978. But an Amoco spokesman said this really means a shortage of about five per cent because demand is higher this year.

Meanwhile, several oil companies — Gulf, Continental Oil and Atlantic Richfield — said they will not participate in Iran's auction of crude oil later this month.

Iran, which is resuming exports after three months of civil strife, has said it will not sell its oil to the consortium of companies that were its customers. Instead, it said it will sell to the highest bidder, with prices starting at $18 a barrel. The base price for oil sold by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is $13.35 a barrel.

Executives of several other U.S. concerns also said their companies will not bid for Iranian oil, but they did not want to be identified.

The largest U.S. oil company, Exxon Corp., hasn't joined the boycott. However, the company's chairman, Canadian-born C. C. Garvin said: "It is my belief we shouldn't buy oil at these prices."

Several other OPEC members, including Qatar, Iraq, the United Arab Emirates and Kuwait, have increased prices, about nine per cent.

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

The education of John MacDonald has been a slow process, complicated by a few wrong turns.

It's been a long time since MacDonald, a 29-year-old native Indian from Watson Lake, a small Yukon town on the Liard River just east of Whitehorse, was last in a classroom.

He's back in one now, completing his Grade 12 at Camosun College. He wants to be a conservation officer and plans to enrol next year in a wildlife management program at Lethbridge College.

A member of the Liard band, he quit school at age 15 and left his isolated (television just arrived a few years ago, he says) home to see the rest of Canada.

Watson Lake, population 1,200, is the first town across the Yukon border travelling the Alaska Highway. Residents are mainly civil servants and miners who work at nearby Cassiar Mine.

He Appreciated Home

MacDonald was glad to leave, but four ago years decided he'd had enough of city life and moved back to the Yukon.

"I intend to live up there for the rest of my life," said MacDonald, who described the southern Canadian cities as damp, confusing and full of pitfalls for a northern native Indian unaccustomed to their bright lights and glitter.

"I really began to appreciate nature . . . before I took it for granted."

After spending two summers working for the Yukon government as a deputy conservation officer, the federal government agreed to pay his $708 a month salary while he attended school.

When the grant ends next year, MacDonald says he will try and save enough money to finance his second year at college.

After finishing school MacDonald expects to be hired by the Yukon government and sent to a tiny community inside the Arctic Circle where the people adhere to the old traditions and "accept everybody, regardless of race, color or religion."

If that happens, MacDonald will be the first native Indian on the Yukon government's payroll.

Few in Government

In the north, there are few native Indians in government, business or the professions. MacDonald remembers meeting an Indian lawyer once, but that was a long time ago.

But native people, particularly the younger ones, are becoming political and eager for education.

Some leave the territories to get an education and don't return, but many do. Most of them are involved in band activities and determined to improve the plight of their people.

MacDonald's sister and some of his friends are attending technical school in Edmonton. His sister is studying biology, most of his friends are taking business courses.

Of 10 other Yukon Indians now taking courses at Camosun, most are enrolled in business administration or law, sponsored by Indian Affair's Northern Careers Program.

Moving from the Yukon to the city for the first time is often rough, says counsellor Danny Henry, who works for the Saanich native Indian school board.

Henry, who co-ordinates the Yukon careers program, says his task is to ease the transition. He makes living arrangements and steers them toward social agencies such as the Native Indian Friendship Centre.

It's hard to lose the feeling of being alone, even among other native Indians, because of cultural diversity.

The 40 native Indians on campus represent 22 bands, most of them with their own dialect, Henry said.

But organizations like the Native Social Club, of which MacDonald is president, help them get acquainted.

Alienation keeps most northern students apart from their classmates for a while, but they gradually relax and make friends outside their own group.

In their northern environment they had little conception of time and find it difficult to stick to schedules and structured classroom situations.

Hated the School

MacDonald was six when he left home to board at a government-run residential school for native Indians where he learned English and was encouraged to forget his own language.

MacDonald hated the school and stayed only one year.

Public school in Watson wasn't much better. Native Indians were regarded as stupid, lazy and generally inferior by the white students and teachers, according to MacDonald.

Discrimination was a fact of life in Watson Lake when MacDonald was growing up, but after his 10-year absence, he noticed a change in attitude.

The situation improved once Indians started standing up for their rights and taking control of their lives.

"Once we started initiating land claims, the white community started respecting us," MacDonald remarked.

Bonus of 20% On U.S. Dollar Proposed in City

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

All Victoria businesses should guarantee a 20 per cent bonus on the American dollar during the peak tourist season, newly-elected Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin said today.

"This may be two or three points above the bank rate but it is worth taking a bit of a loss to be able to publicize a 20 per cent rate," he said in an interview.

"Last year we guaranteed 10 per cent. Let's make it 20 per cent this year."

Higgin, a realtor, called for support from all Victoria businesses and said the ministry of tourism, if it accepts the plan, likely would pick up a share of the promotion costs.

The exchange rate on the dollar is one of Victoria's main selling points, along with the city's natural beauty and climate, he said.

"Let's make the most of the difference on the dollar and make it an even 20 pr cent."

A survey of downtown hotels and motels showed almost everyone paying 15 per cent, or about two points below the bank rate.

Higgin said 15 per cent is a fair rate but it should be boosted to 20 per cent as a gesture of goodwill and to increase business.

The plan will be proposed to the VIC's 540 members and to non-members as well.

Higgin said Victoria will have to work hard this year to match the 1978 tourist season "which was a spectacular success."

Two great seasons back-to-back would do wonders for the local economy, he said.

"People are forever talking about getting industries for Victoria but this is one we already have and we can expand it with a little effort. We have the government, the armed services, the retired wealth and the tourist industry and the only one we can do anything about is tourism."

He said he wants to double the VIC's membership to more than 1,000 to obtain additional funds for external promotion, which is vital if the industry is to grow. He also hoped for higher spending on Vancouver Island promotions by the ministry of tourism.

"The average length of stay in Victoria is one-and-three-quarter days and that is utterly ridiculous. No one can see Victoria in that short a time. The problem is the tourists arrive with the idea of spending only a day or two in Victoria and then they head to Vancouver.

"We have to go down where they are and tell them that Victoria is a tourist destination, not a passing-through place. We have to sell them on the idea of a five-day stay, that is the length of time it takes to see the major attractions."

This would double or even triple the tourist revenues, he said, and help to pay for some of the amenities, like parks and flower baskets that Victorians enjoy.

He said visitors should spend a full day visiting the Provincial Museum and should set aside another day for Butchart Gardens.

A third day could be spent touring local attractions and a fourth day could be used on castle tours.

The fifth day could be for waterfront drives and parks.

New Look At Tour Bus Sale

The Foreign Investment Review Agency has been ordered to re-examine the sale of a Victoria tour bus firm owned by the provincial government to Gray Line Seattle Inc.

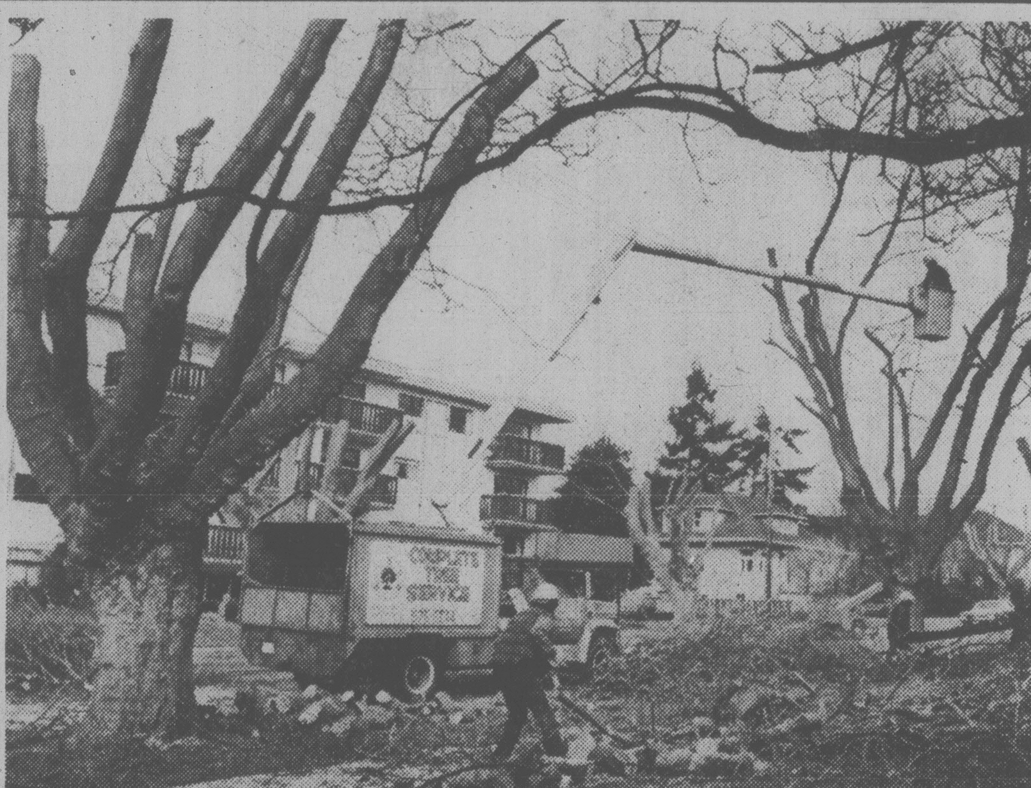
Federal Trade Minister Jack Horner ordered the agency to determine if the sale of Gray Line of Victoria to the U.S. company came under its jurisdiction.

The agency earlier refused to examine the issue because the bus company was being sold by a government agency.

Horner's order was revealed in a letter sent to Gordon Dowding, an officer of Marguerite Tours Ltd. of Victoria.

Dowding, a former NDP MLA and Speaker of the legislature, has asked the B.C. Supreme Court to examine the government sale and issue a judgment declaring it illegal. The party has criticized the sale to U.S. interests.

Gray Line Seattle bought the bus line late last year for $511,000, outbidding a Victoria firm by $149,000.



URBAN LOGGING or protective pruning? That's the question Fairfield residents are asking these days as city crews lop the limbs of dozens of fine old trees. The city parks department says it's a routine operation designed to promote lower growth — but residents along Chester Street say it looks darn unsightly, and they fear the hackers may get carried away. Plugged Drain Backs Up on Official

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

If water from a plugged drain on municipal property floods an adjoining resident's basement and he has to pay someone $50 to pump it out, he can claim from Saanich, right?

Wrong.

At least, that was the somewhat confusing word Tuesday night from a Saanich official as the public works committee discussed a proposal to simplify minor insurance claims and provide a more sympathetic attitude toward claimants.

Citing one situation in which he was indirectly involved, Ald. John Mika said he was astounded at the rigmarole the person had to go through in trying to press a claim for a small reimbursement.

"It was our property, our pipe and we were charging someone else who had nothing to do with the damage," he said.

But Dick Gibson, of the municipality's insurance department, said the definition of liability isn't that simple; there's a difference between moral responsibility and legal responsibility.

"The occurrence on our property was not our fault. It occurred, but we did nothing to make it occur," he added, as aldermen broke up laughing.

The matter was brought up for discussion by municipal ombudsman Ald. Mary Casilio, who said she receives numerous calls from residents complaining about the treatment they have received from Saanich in submitting claims for sewer and drain blockages.

She recommended that all claims up to $100 be adjusted promptly by the municipality, as is the practice in Oak Bay and Esquimalt, and that only claims for larger amounts be sent to the municipality's insurers for settlement.

Gibson opposed the proposal, pointing out that the official responsible for handling the claims would have to make his decision on the basis of legal responsibility, and could be held personally responsible for any illegal expenditures.

"Pressures could also be brought to bear causing conflicts of interest and unfair judgments," he warned.

But Mika was loath to accept the explanation and the assurance that the present Saanich policy is based on legal advice.

The committee passed his motion that council seek a fresh legal opinion as to the question of liability, together with recommendations for a possible revision of claim-handling procedures.

In other business, the public works committee:

— Requested further technical information on a request to ease traffic problems on Epsom Drive, by developing Queensberry Avenue from Fairlane Terrace to Epsom Drive.

CHEK Television, whose station and offices are on Epsom, has repeatedly requested road improvements and Mayor Mel Couvelier said he would like to see Saanich display more co-operation than in the past.

— Recommended that $11,000 be included in the 1979 budget for constructing a sidewalk on the north side of Crease Avenue, from Harriet Road to the pedestrian underpass on Douglas.

Union Won't Apologize to Alderman

Saanich Ald. Geoff Vantreight isn't going to get any apology from Local 374 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

But he has received two friendly words of advice — "cool it" — from Mayor Mel Couvelier, together with an unsolicited endorsation of the way he is tackling his new job as parks committee chairman.

Vantreight asked for the apology by Tuesday night after the union accused him of interfering in the day-to-day supervision of public works crews.

But a union spokesman said no apology had been sent and Vantreight will not get one.

Meanwhile, the alderman consulted Couvelier on how he should handle the controversy which has flared up over his alleged job-snooping tactics.

(Vantreight has denied charges that he has been spying on workers from behind trees).

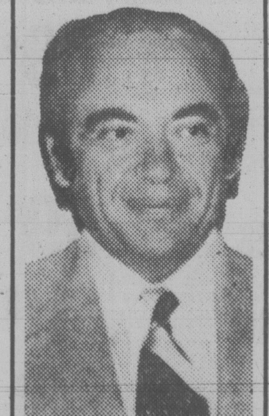
"Geoff asked me my opinion and I said to him I thought he should cool it because no useful purpose would be served in continuing," the mayor said today.

Asked to comment on Vantreight's performance to date, Couvelier added:

"I am very pleased with the effort Ald. Vantreight is putting into his committee chairmanship responsibilities. I do believe he is performing a useful role.

"The only thing I would do differently if I had the ability would be to minimize the confrontation kind of approach."

Couvelier stressed, however, that he believes a committee chairman should involve himself intimately in the affairs of the department for which he is responsible to council.



THREE-YEAR agreement has been signed with the Windsor Symphony Orchestra by Laszlo Gati, former conductor of the Victoria Symphony. The appointment of Gati as music director ends a void which has seen the Windsor orchestra without a director since the 1977 death of Matti Holli.

Elderly Woman Injured

An elderly Victoria woman is in critical condition in Victoria General Hospital after being struck by a car on Quadra near Princess Tuesday night.

Victoria police said Beatrice Booth, 76, of 1030 Linden, stepped out between two parked vehicles into the path of an oncoming car driven by John Achadinha, 21, of 3257 Milgrove.

She received head and arm injuries in the mishap which occurred at 7:25 p.m.

Uranium Search Fought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Almost every group that appeared Tuesday before the provincial royal commission inquiring into uranium mining asked for an immediate ban on exploration.

The British Columbia government has already temporarily banned the mining of uranium in the province.

Speakers at the first session of the inquiry felt that exploration is just as dangerous as mining because both involve digging a hole and the possible release of harmful radioactivity.

Commission chairman Dr. David Bates said he couldn't reply to the demand until the commission knows more about the subject. He promised an answer within two weeks.

The opening session also heard suggestions on what should be the inquiry commission's terms of reference.

Meanwhile, Ted Thexton, manager manager of domestic building development for Atomic Energy of Canada, told a service club that fossil fuels can't keep pace with the demands of the economy.

Thexton said alternatives such as solar and wind power can't supply enough energy and the gap can only be filled with nuclear power. He also equated energy growth with the growth of unemployment in Canada.

Thexton said that in order to prevent higher unemployment, the gross national product must grow from three to four per cent a year and to achieve that, an energy growth rate of up to three per cent a year must be obtained.

The AEC official said Canada's existing energy sources must be more than doubled by the year 2000.

First impression of Canada for Le Van Hao and family was confusion

Viet Muddle Sorted Out

KELOWNA (CP) — This Okanagan city's newly-adopted Vietnamese refugee family was moved into larger accommodation Tuesday as immigration and employment officials moved to tighten up the procedures that left the Le Van Hao family temporarily homeless.

The nine-member family was placed in a local motel which has cooking facilites, and is located close to a shopping area and bus routes, said Bob McFarland, Canada Employment centre manager.

Several of the seven children were also given medical checkups Monday, and Le Van went grocery shopping, his first introduction to Canadian currency.

Le Van, a truck driver while in Vietnam, has not yet found a job, but is registered with the employment centre. He received two job offers on the weekend — one from a logging company, the other to train as a specialty cook — but neither fit his qualifications.

Meanwhile, immigration and employment officials have been investigating why the family arrived here by air late Friday to find no sponsor or government agency to meet them.

"One of the main problems was that the family's official destination was Vernon, but it arrived at the airport at Kelowna," said McFarland.

The Vernon office had been advised to check out the family's Canadian sponsor, he said, but that office assumed the Kelowna office would handle the arrival. However, the Kelowna office was never notified of the arrival because the family was officially bound for Vernon, he said.

"It was essentially an internal communications problem that won't happen again."

After sitting at the airport for several hours, provincial human resources officials moved the family to a local motel.

McFarland said that in future immigration and employment offices both here and in Vernon will be notifed when immigrants are expected.

Another problem in the case, McFarland said, is that the name of the Vernon man given as a sponsor wasn't really a sponsor but a "contact."

The Le Van family members are officially classifed as small boat refugees so they do not require a sponsor to get into the country. However, they do require the name of someone in the country who will help them get settled.

The employment centre hopes to get a local community organization to co-ordinate the orientation later this week.

U.S. Spray Ban Hurts Okanagan

VERNON (CP) - A federal agriculture researcher said Tuesday that export considerations will force Okanagan Valley fruit farmers to stop using a herbicide temporarily banned in the U.S. but considered safe by the Canadian government.

Dr. Norman Looney of the Agriculture Canada research station in Summerland said if the U.S. ban on 2,4,5-T-P continues, the B.C. Interior fruit industry will not use the herbicide this season for the first time since the 1950s.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has invoked emergency powers to temporarily ban 2,4,5-T-P and the related 2,4,5-T after studies revealed a high incidence of miscarriages and birth defects in an Oregon community near a herbicide application zone.

Canadian officials are studying the American ban but have taken no action to suspend its use in Canada.

"We have used it (2,4,5-T-P) in the Okanagan for many years and we are quite confident that as we use it, it is very safe," said Looney.

He said it will probably not be used this season, depending on what U.S. authorities decide.

The B.C. agriculture ministry is recommending fruit farmers use 2,4,5-T-P as a spray to prevent fruit from dropping, said a ministry official.

"If it is not used, the fruit would fall to the ground as it ripens before the farmer has a chance to harvest," he said. "The use of the chemical gives the orchardist time to get on to his land."

The employee, who asked that his name be withheld, declined to elaborate, saying the ministry had instructed employees not to talk to the media about the herbicide, but to put all inquires to a ministry information officer in Victoria. The officer was unavailable for comment.

Meanwhile, six Vancouver Island groups have formally protested plans by Rayonier Canada Ltd. to use the herbicide in a 454-acre area near Holberg on northern Vancouver Island.

The provincial Pesticide Control Appeal Board has scheduled hearings March 20 and 21 in Port Hardy to hear briefs opposing the forest company's plans to dispense the spray to control alder between March 15 and April 30.

Mount Waddington Regional District directors and the village of Alert Bay, east of Holberg, also oppose the company's plans.

Driver, 82, Dies

NANAIMO (CP) — Howard Turnbull James, 82, of nearby Lantzville, died Tuesday when his car struck a logging vehicle on the Highway 19, about 13 kilometres north of here.

Theft Charged

VERNON (CP) — A former RCMP corporal has been charged with two counts of theft following the disappearance of funds at the RCMP detachment in this Okanagan community.

RCMP said today that Charles Edward Reiger, 38, of Nanaimo, is to appear in court April 9 to face charges.

An internal audit of RCMP exhibits in the detachment office last month found that sums of $148 and $175 were missing, RCMP said, adding that the sums were not related to court exhibits.

Reiger was a corporal when discharged Feb. 28, RCMP said, and had served with the force for 17 years.

Hawks' Expertise Left Cats Looking

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

A choice selection of things they said after Portland Winter Hawks' 5-2 Western Hockey League victory over Victoria Cougars on Tuesday:

Rudy Pilous, one-time coach of a Victoria professional team and now an executive with Winnipeg Jets of the World Association: "They move it so well, Portland gets the puck tired."

"We played extremely well for two periods, had a bit of a letdown," said Portland manager Brian Shaw, "but very disciplined."

"Our players hadn't seen Portland for six weeks," said Victoria coach Jack Shupe, "and all they could talk about was the opposition. When it was time to go on the ice, my guys all stood around to see how good Portland plays."

Can't call anyone a liar. There was truth in all that was said.

The Western Division-leading Winter Hawks were very, very good as they boosted their season's won-lost-tied record on the road to a rather impressive 18-6-9. More impressive are the 25 victories, seven ties and only three losses since the Christmas break.

They skated strongly, body-checked effectively and passed well, especially in moving the puck up the ice. And, for most of the way, with discipline.

The Cougars, who came to life only after Portland established a 5-0 lead, were not at their best. There was some zip in their skating but the passing and checking was woeful.

Which brought out more truths from Shupe.

"The only players who played with only effectiveness were our 17-year-olds. I thought the rookie line (Brad Palmer, Torrie Robertson and Brad Yachimec, the latter called up from the Alberta Junior League for the balance of the season) was as good as we had, and that (Robert) Jacobson was our best defenceman."

"The 19-year-olds didn't do a thing except towards the end.

"And when they decided to play some hockey, we made donkeys of them (the Hawks).

"And as badly as we played, we still could have scored 10 goals. Yachimec should have had four himself."

On excellent chances, Yachimec, playing in the WHL against his older brother for the first time, was either foiled by Portland netminder Bart Hunter or else shot wide of the target.

But he wasn't the only one to feel scoring frustration. Gary Lupul, Greg Adams and Torrey all hit goalposts. On another breakaway, Lupul lost control of the puck at the last minute and couldn't get a shot away. Mike Shields, Barry Pederson and Geordie Robertson also were glaring, non-scoring victims.

That's where discipline, passing and skating paid off for the Hawks. Their goals, by Bart Yachimec, Perry Turnbull, Florent Robidoux, David Babych and Don Stewart, came easy. Passing and good position set up the first three. The last two were ones Victoria netminder Steve Amiss would like to forget.

Bob Smith and George Fritz scored Victoria's pair within a 24-second span midway through the final period, and only then did the Cougars come to life.

A trifle late, as it turned out.

Only six minor penalties were called, two to Victoria and four to Portland. Victoria's attempts to make use of the extra-man advantage was particularly inept because of passing refusals. Cougars' power-play hit a low point during a delay-of-game penalty to Hunter. Victoria failed to get a shot at the Portland netminder during the two-minute advantage.

The loss, coupled with New Westminster's 6-5 victory over Seattle Breakers cut Victoria's second-place advantage over the Bruins to five points.

In other games, Regina Pats continued to make a move towards a playoff position in the Eastern Division by upsetting Saskatoon Blades 3-2, Brandon Wheat Kings defeated Calgary Wranglers 8-3 and Billings Bighorns clipped Medicine Hat Tigers, 7-3.

RAIN AND AVALANCHES PLAGUE WHISTLER RACE

WHISTLER, B.C. — Heavy rains sent dozens of avalanches sweeping down Whistler Mountain Tuesday, closing it to skiers and opening the possibility that Friday's World Cup downhill ski race will be cancelled.

Two avalanches hit the 3,185-metre downhill course with the larger one spewing three to four metres of snow and debris almost across it.

While race officials talked hopefully of freezing temperatures and stable conditions that would allow them to save the race, their optimism melted away — along with much of the mountain's snow — in rain that has been falling almost steadily since Sunday.

"We've lost at least two feet of snow," said Peter Andrews, the Canadian Ski Association's race chairman.

A technical committee was to inspect the course today, then meet with team officials to discuss a delay or cancellation of the race, the last of 10 World Cup downhills this season. The main concern, said Andrews, will be safety.

Andrews said there is enough snow left on the course, but temperatures must fall below freezing long enough for crews to make changes in contouring and safety barriers and for the skiers to take their mandatory three practice runs.

"We need a three-day period," he said. "One day for preparations, two days for practice runs and the race."

A race not counting toward the World Cup could be held as late as Sunday or Monday, said Andrews, but an official race must be run by Saturday because at least 13 of the 54 skiers here are entered in a giant slalom race Monday at Heavenly Valley, Calif.

Mountain manager Al Turner said Tuesday was the first time in its 14-year history that Whistler has failed to open because of avalanche danger.

Professional ski patrollers cleared most of the regular ski runs of the danger, setting off hand charges and dropping explosives from helicopters to set off smaller, more controlled slides.

Dream Becomes Reality For Rookie Flyer Goalie

By Canadian Press

Rookie goalie Robbie Moore had dreamed he would be playing, and when he awoke Tuesday he learned Philadelphia Flyers had chosen him to make his first National Hockey League appearance.

Moore, 21, just up from Maine Mariners of the American Hockey League, responded with a 5-0 victory Tuesday night over Colorado Rockies.

Of the dream that he was playing, the five-foot-five Moore explained: "When I woke up in the morning, the covers were all over the place. I realized it was a dream, then somebody told me it was in the papers that I was playing."

In the only other NHL game Tuesday, Buffalo Sabres defeated New York Islanders, 3-2.

Moore's first NHL test was not difficult, being called upon to make only three hard saves as the Flyers outshot the Rockies 44-22. It was the Flyers' eighth victory in 13 games, to go with two losses and three ties.

The victory also pulled the Flyers to within four points of idle New York Rangers and Atlanta Flames, tied for second in the NHL's Patrick Division.

Mel Bridgman's 19th goal of the season at the 51-second mark of the opening period gave Moore all the scoring support he needed, and the Rockies didn't register a shot on goal until nine minutes into the game.

The inactivity did't bother Moore.

"No, I thought it was just great," he said. "I was hoping they'd stay up at the other end all night."

"Not seeing any rubber (shots on goal) in the beginning of the game makes you lose your concentration. That just makes it tougher when you're playing in the big leagues for the first time."

While Moore was having an easy time in the Flyers' goal, his new team-mates mounted a 17-shot attack on Rockies goaltender Bill Oleschuk in the first period and took another 16 in the second as Paul Holmgren's marker gave Philadelphia a 2-0 lead.

Holmgren, Ken Linseman and Al Hill scored in the third period.

"They just wore us down," said Colorado coach Aldo Guidolin. "They're just bigger and stronger than we are. Our goalie did a great job, but one man doesn't make a difference in a game like this."

At Uniondale, N.Y., Ric Seiling's second goal of the game, a 25-foot shot with 6:36 remaining, gave Buffalo the win and sole possesion of second place in the Adams Division — two points ahead of idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

THE MESSAGE CAME QUICKLY

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — It took only 30 seconds for the Saginaw high school hockey team to figure out it wasn't going to be its night.

That's how long it took Traverse City to blast three goals into the Saginaw net. The scoring act was reated continually until the final buzzer sounded and Saginaw, which hasn't won a hockey game in at least a year was beaten 48-0.

RAMS GRAB SPOT IN HOOP TOURNEY

Mt. Douglas Rams used the back-door route to grab a berth in the British Columbia high school boys' "AA" basketball championship next week in Vancouver.

Rams captured the spot in a special challenge game, beating Hillside of West Vancouver 96-80 Tuesday night on a neutral court at Victoria High School.

Jay Louckes counted 24 points to lead the Rams while Russ Thornton added 23 and Vince Cullen chipped in 20.

Finns Drop WHA Trip After Oiler Signings

The Finnish Hockey Association has cancelled a trip to Canada this month by a national team to protest what it considers a breach of agreement by a World Hockey Association team on recruitment of Finnish players.

A Finnish spokesman said today Edmonton Oilers of the WHA have signed two of Finland's national players — goalie Hannu Kamppuri and defenceman Risto Siltanen — despite a 1977 agreement banning such action during the playing season.

Kamppuri and Siltanen were due to leave Finland for Canada on Thursday to join the Oilers, he said.

"We think we have had more than enough of WHA dodges," Finnish association chairman Goerna Stubb said. "This is a flagrant breach of agreement by the WHA."

The Finnish club was to play exhibition games with three WHA teams — the Oilers on March 20, Quebec Nordiques on March 21 and Winnipeg Jets on March 25.

Meanwhile, in WHA games Tuesday, Real Cloutier and Curt Brackenbury each scored twice to set the pace as Quebec Nordiques rebounded from 2-0 and 3-1 deficits to defeat Oilers 4-3 and snap an unbeaten streak at 13 games while Birmingham Bulls downed Winnipeg Jets, 5-4.

Ketola returned to Finland in 1977 when the Calgary franchise folded and has led the Assat team to the Finnish championship the last two years. spokesman said, adding that Ketola could arrive here by March 23.

Island Swimmers Gain Provincial Meet Berths

Competitors from the Greater Vancouver area dominated the British Columbia regional synchronized swimming championships during the weekend but several Vancouver Island swimmers also earned berths in the provincial finals at Powell River in June.

The top six finishers in each event qualified for the provincials.

Heather Middleton and Marion Hvozdanski of the host Victoria Crystalettes finished second in the 15-and-over duet while clubmates Sharon Lloyd and Kelly Lloyd placed fourth in the 11-12 figures and sixth in the 13-14 solo, respectively.

Dawn Coney of Port Alberni won the 15-and-over figures while clubmate Lynette Keil topped the 15-and-over solo. Port Alberni won the team event in the same age bracket.

HALIFAX SELECTED

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1981 Canadian men's curling championship will be held in Halifax, the third time Nova Scotia has staged the event.

Fry Doesn't Expect Streak to Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — Barry Fry's Winnipeg rink was the only undefeated entry after six rounds in the Canadian men's curling championship Tuesday, but Fry says the "competition is just too tough" to keep up the winning streak.

"You're going to run into somebody, probably, one day who's going to come up with a heck of a game.

After defeating Northern Ontario's Larry Pineau of Thunder Bay 10-3 Tuesday Fry said, "We'll just play them one game at a time and if we can sneak a couple of more out, nobody would be happier than us."

Going into the seventh round one step behind Manitoba were Quebec's Jim Ursel of Montreal and Saskatchewan's Rick Folk of Saskatoon with 4-1 won-lost records.

Ontario's Bob Fedosa of Pickering, Alberta's Paul Devlin of Edmonton and Prince Edward Island's Wayne Matheson of Charlottetown stood at 3-2. Newfoundland's Jeff Thomas of St. John's, Northern Ontario and British Columbia's Glen Pierce of Vancouver were tied at 2-3. Nova Scotia's Alan Darragh of Dartmouth had 1-4 and New Brunswick's Richard Belyea of Saint John and the Territories' Don Strang of Yellowknife trailed at 1-5.

In other sixth-round action, P.E.I. swept Quebec 10-3, Alberta defeated Newfoundland 7-5, Saskatchewan defeated New Brunswick 8-6 and B.C. edged the Territories 7-6.

Ursel, who won the championship two year's ago, said the 10-3 beating he took from Matheson "a bit of a disaster.

"We weren't in it at all; we just didn't get our weight and P.E.I. played very well."

Ursel, a veteran of five championships, said his rink tried to play catch up but "we didn't really have a chance."

The win was Matheson's third major upset. He whipped Alberta and Saskatchewan earlier in the round-robin tournament and moved into the seventh round with a mark of 3-2 and a giant-killer reputation.

Matheson, a psychologist competing in the national championship for the first time, said "we have some heavy-duty teams to play but I like our chances."

"Our boys were hitting very, very well,' he said, commenting on the Quebec win.

Folk stole three on the sixth end for a 5-3 lead but Belyea, who was rallying from a 10-1 battering from Manitoba in the fifth round, responded with two on the seventh and one on the eighth.

Folk blanked the ninth and scored one on the 10th for a 6-6 tie. He stole two on the extra end to win.

Key games today pitted Saskatchewan against Manitoba and Quebec against Alberta in the afternoon.

If Manitoba beats Saskatchewan it will be Fry's 12th win in a row. He won six games consecutively in the Manitoba playoffs leading to the national meet.

A continuing winning streak could lead Fry to Manitoba's 20th national championship in the 50-year history of the event.

Argos Hire Hudspeth

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts once more looked to the National Football League for help when they announced that Tommy Hudspeth, former head coach of Detroit Lions, has been named general manager of the Canadian Football League team.

President Lew Hayman, the man put in charge of restructuring the Argos front office after an ownership change earlier this year, announced the hiring of Hudspeth today.

Hudspeth, 47, gained CFL experience as an assistant coach with Calgary Stampeders from 1961 to 1963. From Calgary he went to the college coaching ranks in the United States before winding up with Detroit in the NFL where he took over as head coach of the Lions for four games of the 1976 season. He was released following the 1977 season.

In making the announcement, Hayman stressed that Hudspeth, who signed a three-year contract, would have full control of all on-field operations.

Rafe Mair's Attitude Reflects Commitment

(First of Two Parts)

Beneath his political veneer, Environment Minister Rafe Mair leaves a distinct impression of caring for his new portfolio on a deeper level than what would be considered adequate to do the job.

Mair, who on Dec. 6 took up a post that was expanded to include the Fish and Wildlife Branch, is a confirmed trout fisherman.

This point alone puts elevates him above his predecessors — Jim Neilson and Sam Bawlf — who were both more urban than rural individuals.

And, although it's a little early rate his performance on several outstanding environmental disputes within the province, his activities to date lend credibility to an oft-expressed opinion that Mair's presence is "like a breath of fresh air."

Mair and this writer covered a wide range of topics during a recent interview and while he seemed to have a good grasp on the over-all issues, because of the limited time in office, wasn't totally briefed on certain specific problems.

He said that two main things will have to be done within the branch. One is to get "better internal management" and the other is to "get better dialogue going between the Fish and Wildlife Branch in particular — but I suppose the ministry in general — and the public."

★ ★ ★

"One of the things I have never been able to understand," he explained, "is why any government would try to end-run an environmental group."

"You're not always going to agree with them, but if you're going to do something that's going to irritate the hell out of them, why not tell them you're going to do it? It's bad enough when they're mad at you for doing what you did, but it's twice as bad when it appears to all the world that you're hiding the fact.

Mair felt B.C. Hydro had done just that in a couple of areas.

"They have minimized the impact on fish and wildlife and tried to romance people past the problem.

"I don't want to do that."

Part of the process in creating a dialogue with the public involves the series of meetings Mair will attend thoughout the province during the next few months.

Mair appeared to leave the door open for introduction of some form of all-encompassing wildlife legislation, perhaps in the spring session of 1980.

This would possibly incorporate three factors — a multiple land-use policy to "protect the watersheds and rivers", a "shoreline and estuary policy" and "a policy of reclamation."

"I get so distressed with some people, including I suppose from time to time one or two of my colleagues, who are so proud of our salmon fishery and tourist industry . . . yet think the fish are brought in by the stork."

One of the areas in which Mair plans to push hard is the joint federal-provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program. He said the province, which is putting up roughly five per cent of the funds over the 15-year program, has a "glorious opportunity" to have an input to the program far out of proportion to it's monetary contribution.

Another part of Mair's process of upgrading the branch involves a trip to Scandinavia starting this week to view an area similar to British Columbia where forestry, fish and wildlife coexist in a meaningful way.

"I don't think you can transplant other people's programs into the North American culture — but you can learn a hell of a lot," he added.

He warned, too, that "some of the attitudes in B.C. are going to have to change.

"We are no longer in a position where you can just walk out and shoot anything you want or do whatever you like in the outdoors."

Mair explained that a lot of people in British Columbia — across all party lines and philosophies — were concerned with the lack of a plan for the outdoors.

"They want something done . . . Someone on the government to invest themselves.

"I hope to be able to do that."

Braves Leading Playoff

Saanich Braves took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Patterson Division playoff final Tuesday, exploding for seven third-period goals to trip Juan de Fuca Gulls 10-5 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Pearkes Arena.

Bruce Tuck led Braves with two goals. Single tallies were added by Tom King, Tracy Patterson, Steve Craig, Scott Connors, Bill Adkin, Murray McLaren, Wayne Himmelman and Marty Irvine.

Peter Adamek blocked 43 shots on the Juan de Fuca goal and Marty Wakelyn made 40 saves for Saanich.

The fourth game will be played Monday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Reg Midgley Resigns Post

Reg Midgley, who has served as a director on the executive of Western Speedway since 1966, has put his share up for sale and is resigning his position.

"I don't believe in what they're doing," said Midgley this morning in the wake of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association's rejection of a contract offer by Western during the organization's regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Midgley also served as manager of Western for 11 years but gave up the position two seasons ago to devote more time to his business interests.

Bill Price, vice-president of VITRA, said that his organization was unanimous in turning down the offer and has decided to race exclusively at Nanaimo's Gradview Bowl during the coming season.

A dispute blew up several weeks ago between VITRA and Speedway management over backgate receipts — the funds paid by drivers and pit crews which are used to pay for insurance, a crash fund, a points fund and guaranteeing the purse.

The drivers' group wants to retain control of backgate fees.

Western's directors, who have committed $250,000 to $300,000 to improvements at the Langford oval this year, have asked for the backgate receipts in their contract offer.

Price said VITRA has scheduled 10 to 12 stock car and super-stock events at Nanaimo during the coming season, which opens May 6. The first few races will be on Sunday with the balance of the events scheduled for Saturday nights under a new set of lights.

In addition, Price announced that Coca Cola has agreed to sponsor the Island points series, contributing $2,000 to a points fund.

Tony Mortel, manager of Western, said this morning that the track will be going ahead with its schedule.

"We will be carrying on," he stated.

Mortel said the season will consist of jalopy, demolition and sprint car racing along with several open super-stock and Canadian-American Modified Racing Association and Washington Racing Association events.

In addition, he said there was a definite possibility that some motorcycle and four-wheel-drive races will be set up.

Liverpool Held to Draw

LONDON (Reuter) — Liverpool, held to a 0-0 draw by lowly Chelsea last Saturday, fought out another goalless stalemate at Coventry Tuesday night.

The English First Division soccer leaders were always in control, but Coventry, after three successive home defeats, hung on for a point.

Everton, Liverpool's city rivals and second in the title race, cut Liverpool's lead to three points with a 2-1 away win over relegation-threatened Middlesbrough.

Birmingham City kept its slim hopes of staying in Division I alive with a 3-1 home win over fellow-strugglers Queen's Park Rangers, while Brighton boosted its chances of promotion from Division II with a fine 3-1 away win against Oldham.

Blazers and Clippers Locked in Tight Race

By Associated Press

Five weeks remain in the National Basketball Association's regular season, and a hot race is shaping up between the surprising San Diego Clippers and the injury-riddled Portland Trail Blazers for the sixth and final Western Conference playoff berth.

San Diego, 35-32, has won eight of its last nine games and leads Portland, 33-31, by a half game.

It's quite a turnaround for the Clippers, who were a dismal flop in Buffalo last season, compiling a 27-55 record. Only two players from that team still are on the roster — Randy Smith and Swen Nater.

"It would be an incredible accomplishment for us to get into the playoffs," said San Diego coach Gene Shue, whose team has a 15-4 record in games decided by three points or less. "We were disorganized early in the year, but we were still able to win the close ones. Then we developed team confidence."

One Clippers player who never has lacked confidence is guard Lloyd Free, the Prince of Midair who makes enough of his 25-foot rainbow jumpers to rank as the NBA's second-leading scorer with a 28.6 average.

"I made the playoffs three years in a row with Philadelphia and I know just what it takes — confidence," said Free. "If you think you can do it, you've got it made."

The Clippers have been denigrated by some because of their guard-oriented offence that depends on the individual talents of shooters like Free, Smith and rookie Freeman Williams.

"Everyone knocks one-on-one basketball," said Shue. "But I think it can be quite successful in the NBA. It allows our shooters to get position under the boards, so that when our shooters do miss, we get the rebounds."

Portland, by contrast, relies on the cohesive team play that carried it to the NBA championship two years ago. But the machine doesn't run as smoothly without Bill Walton, the star centre who has been out all season because of a broken foot. Injuries to other Blazers like Dave Twardzik, Lloyd Neal and Bob Gross also have hurt.

Things are pretty well set in the Eastern Conference, with New Jersey holding a commanding lead over its nearest rival, Cleveland, for the final playoff spot. The Nets have been playing well recently and are unlikely to blow that margin.

"We're not even thinking about the teams behind us, we're looking ahead," said Nets playmaker Eddie Jordan. The Nets trail second-place Philadelphia by only two games in the Atlantic Division.

Twelve of the NBA's 22 teams qualify for post-season play — the four division winners and the next four with the best records in each conference. The four division winners receive first-round byes, while the other eight teams engage in best-of-three series. After that, every series is best-of-seven, which means it almost certainly will be June before a champion is determined.

Washington Bullets appear to have the Atlantic Division title clinched. The defending NBA champions enjoying a nine-game bulge over Philadelphia and the '76ers show no signs of closing the gap — having lost nine of their last 11 games. They are without all-star guard Doug Collins, sidelined by injury.

San Antonio Spurs, Kansas City Kings and Los Angeles Lakers are the other divisional leaders, but all have challengers.

The Spurs, seeking to repeat as Central Division titlists, lead Atlanta Hawks by three games and disappointing Houston Rockets by four games. The Kings looked to have a lock on the Midwest Division as recently as last week, but have lost their last four and now lead the potent Denver Nuggets by only four games.

The Lakers may have the biggest fight of all. They are involved in a three-way struggle, leading Seattle SuperSonics by one game and Phoenix Suns by two games in the strong Pacific Division.

Incidentally, the Suns are only 12-10 since the acquisition of power forward Truck Robinson from New Orleans Jazz. Robinson has sidelined the last week with a viral infection.

Good Shots Ease Pain

By Canadian Press

Had Tom Owens thrown up one more air ball at the game's start, he might have called it a night, which would have been good news for New York Knicks considering what happened instead.

After an inauspicious start, the Portland centre scored 34 points Tuesday night to lead the Trail Blazers to a 118-110 victory over the Knicks in National Basketball Association.

"The index finger on my shooting hand was very sore," Owens said. "I had hurt it in the Cleveland game and before tonight's game, it continued to hurt. Then my left hand began bothering me.

"I figured that if it continued to hurt after five minutes of play, I'd ask the coach (Jack Ramsey) to sit me down for the night. If I can't handle the ball, there's no sense in playing.

"My first jumper was a complete brick. I began to think 'That's it.' But then the shots stated falling and I forgot about the pain."

Elsewhere Tuesday night, Houston Rockets nipped Denver Nuggets 119-118, San Antonia Spurs downed New Jersey Nets 103-99 and Atlanta Hawks beat Philadelphia '76ers 94-91.

SMU Extends Skein

St. Michael's University School and Victoria Titans maintained their one-two pace with victories Tuesday in the Russell Division of the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League.

St. Michael's added an eighth win to its unbeaten record by thrashing Mt. Douglas Mountainmen 54-0 and Titans kept four points back with a 13-3 decision over Oak Bay Barbarians.

Don Fennerty sparked St. Michael's, which led 24-0 at half time, with four tries. Ross McLean kicked six conversions and three penalty goals, Neil Patterson connected for two tries and Tom Todesco, Duncan Lee and Jamie Ellis scored single tries.

Paul Pynn and Mark Cardinal each scored a try for Titans while Mark Wyatt kicked a penalty goal and a conversion. Nick Alexencho kicked a penalty goal for Barbarians.

STRIKERS ADD GERD MUELLER AFTER SIGNING PERUVIAN ACE

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Fort Lauderdale Strikers on Tuesday announced the signing of West German soccer star Gerd Mueller, who led his team to the World Cup championship against Holland in 1974.

Mueller led the German league in scoring seven times in the past 12 years and was named German player-of-the-year in 1967 and European player-of-the-year in 1970.

The 33-year-old forward is the second World Cup star to join the Strikers in less than a week. Peruvian player Cubillas signed with the North American Soccer League club on March 1.

We don't order carpets.

'CLASSY' WE AIN'T*

At Fuzzy Wuzzy, what you see is what you get. No sample books. All our carpets are lined up in big rolls around the walls. Easy to see. Every imaginable colour. Hundreds of different sizes. Probably exactly what you want.

We call our carpets roll-ends and remnants because we have contracts with many of the large carpeting outlets to deliver to us what they have left on their rolls. And they do. By the truckload. So we have lots. And lots.

You see what you want, you can have it that very day, if you like. No waiting. And we'll roll it out on the floor, so you can walk on it, get the whole effect instead of trying to imagine it from a 2 ft. square sample. Now that's the smart way to buy carpet, because it costs you far far less than it would to order it.

LOSS GREETED LIKE TRIUMPH

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — FC Cologne scored a narrow 1-0 victory over Glasgow Rangers in their first-leg quarter-final match of the European Cup of National Champions Tuesday night.

The lone goal was scored on a header by Dieter Mueller in the 58th minute.

The match was one-sided with Cologne pressing for a goal right from the start but the Germans could not capitalize on more than a dozen good opportunities.

They were stopped time and again by a solid Rangers defence, which also was lucky on a number of accasions.

Cologne was awarded 13 corner kicks to only three for Glasgow.

At the final whistle the Scottish spectators in the crowd of 35,000 celebrated the outcome as if it was a victory.

Oldtimers Ready For Tokyo Event

A team from Victoria will be among nine Canadian entries in the world oldtimers' hockey tournament to be played in Tokyo later this month.

Victoria Kinks, formed with the nucleus of the Racquet Club team that played in the Western Canada tournament here in January, will leave for Japan March 14. Ron Hansen will serve as Kinks' coach.

At least one member of the Victoria squad, Ed Sibald, was been selected to play for Canada in a special international tournament.

Junior Field Hockey Registration

Several community centres — Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Juan de Fuca, Cedar Hill, Lambrick Park and Panorama Leisure Centre — will hold registration sessions for Greater Victoria junior boys' field hockey leagues on March 12.

Registrations ($5 plus a $10 uniform deposit) will be accepted from 7 to 9 p.m.

Rookie Injured

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League have reactivated injured defenceman Jim Schoenfeld, but have lost the services indefinitely of rookie defenceman Bill Stewart, who has been sidelined with a back injury.

It's 'Play Ball' With Umpires Idle

By Associated Press

The cry of "Play ball!" was being heard at five exhibition baseball locations today...but major league umpires were not doing the shouting.

In fact, if the contract dispute between the 51 umps and the two major leagues isn't settled by Friday, Chicago Cubs' head groundskeeper at Ho Ho Kam Park in Mesa, Ariz., will help officiate the game against Seattle Mariners.

"He can make up his own ground rules. Nobody will able to argue with him," quipped Cubs general manager Bob Kennedy.

The dispute, of course, is somewhat more serious than that. The umpires have authorized Richie Phillips, head of the Major League Umpires Association, to try and renegotiate individual contracts even though the union and baseball have a contract in force for a few more years.

"I see no possibility that this thing will be settled in time," Phillips said Tuesday from his Philadelphia law office. "Without individual contracts, the umpires will not work.

"It's an individual action on the part of 51 individuals who are unhappy. I'm not feeling any pressure to give in. In fact, the only pressure I'm getting is that some of the individuals are thinking of re-evaluating their situations to ask for more money."

Dick Butler, supervisor of umpires for the American League, said the exhibition games would be officiated by former minor league umps and college baseball arbiters.

"We don't foresee any problem," Butler said. "Every town's got plenty of umps. Most of these guys will have done umpiring for us before. They won't be as good as our guys, but the players probably won't notice. They're concentrating more on getting in shape and making the ballclub than on umpiring."

Only one of today's five scheduled exhibitions pairs two major league teams — California Angels entertaining San Diego Padres at Palm Springs, Calif.

Meanwhile, the world champion New York Yankees face Grambling State University at Grambling, La., St. Louis Cardinals meet University of Missouri at St. Petersburg, Fla., while Pittsburgh and Seattle oppose a couple of Japanese clubs — the Pirates against Seibu Lions at Bradenton, Fla., and the Mariners vs. Yakult Swallows at Tempe, Ariz.

The Yankees' weekly brouhaha involves, of all people, shortstop Bucky Dent, who never makes waves. The Yanks' World Series hero, who can become a free agent following the 1979 season, says he will do just that if he isn't signed by the start of the campaign.

"They don't want to talk before the season, then I don't want to talk at all," Dent said. "I just would rather not talk during the season. I'm not threatening; I just feel that way.

"I don't want to play out my option and leave New York. I like playing in New York. I have one thing on my mind and that's playing baseball during the season. I'll honor my contract and play as hard as I can."

Los Angeles Dodgers, the Yankees' World Series victims the past two seasons, are far ahead of where they were last year at this time, according to manager Tom Lasorda.

"We've won two National League championships in a row — not many clubs do that — and yet everyone is working harder this year than they did last year," said Lasorda. "Complacency? I haven't seen any. I'm particularly pleased with what I've seen so far from (pitcher) Andy Messersmith and (catcher) Joe Ferguson."

INJURED SKIER STILL 'CRITICAL'

BURLINGTON, Vt. (Reuter) — Italian skier Leonardo David was reported still in critical condition but showing some improvement today from head injuries suffered in a fall during a men's World Cup downhill race at Lake Placid, N. Y., Saturday.

"Two days following surgery, repeated scans show no further clots. No major complications have arisen and no associated injuries are apparent," a medical bulletin said.

Reasons All Dollars

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders kicker Cyril McFall says there are 5,000 reasons why he rejected a last contract offer from the Canadian Football League club, and they're all dollars.

Negotiations between McFall, a five-year Stampeder veteran on his option year last season, and Jack Gotta, general manager-head coach, have been discontinued.

"The difference between what their ultimate offer is and what I feel I'm worth is $5,000," said McFall. "As far as I'm concerned negotiations are off and the impression I got from the Stamps is that they're finished negotiating, too."

"That's because I'm pretty sure I could only get what I feel I'm worth in the National Football League. The money down there doesn't even compare with what I'd get up here — it's so much more."

Gotta said: "The money we've offered puts him right in the same category as the other fine kickers in the conference."

Last season McFall kicked for 163 points, four behind Edmonton Eskimos' Dave Cutler, who won the CFL scoring title. McFall kicked 37 field goals, one more than Cutler.

Bath Rink Captures Top Event

Sherri Bath made two clutch shots on the last end to give her Victoria Curling Club rink a victory over clubmate Ruby Niemeyer in the 'A' event final of the annual women's Daffodil Bonspiel last weekend.

Bath, who skipped the Vancouver Island representative in the provincial junior women's playdown this season, combined with Mathy March, Carolyn Hagedorn and Paula Patzer in the Daffodil event at the Victoria club.

An Oak Bay quartet skipped by Blancye McCallum captured 'B' event. Dot McDonald guided a North Shore Winter Club crew to 'C' event honors and Wilma Fenwick's host-club rink won 'D' event.

Air in Bottle to Replace Ships?

Two West Coast lighthouses have begun an air-sampling test program which may replace the role of weatherships in monitoring global carbon dioxide.

Lighthouse keepers at Amphitrite Point near Ucluelet, and Kains Island at Quatsino Sound, are taking daily samples in vacuum bottles to compare with results obtained in a long-established program based on Station Papa 700 miles off Vancouver Island.

The monitoring program by the Institute of Ocean Sciences is part of a study involving Sweden and the U.S. to plot the rise in atmospheric CO2 as a factor in climate change.

Walter Cretney of the ocean chemistry section said scientists hope to get results parallel with the Station P record over the two remaining years of the weathership program. It is expected the weatherships will be retired after more than 20 years of continuous service.

IOS director-general Dr. R.W. Stewart said the sampling might go on using ships on regular West Coast service.

Lightkeepers already perform duties for the Atmospheric Environment Service by taking temperature, barometric, wind and sea state observations.

Stewart, who recently returned from Geneva and a meeting of the World Meteorological Organization, said international concern is also being shown in atmospheric levels of other gases which may have a bearing on the global circulation system and climate.

He said scientists recognize the need for more research to try to understand variations in warming and cooling, which affect the rate of melting of polar ice caps, surface temperatures, floods, droughts and famine.

"We're still quite unable, in the present state of the art, to understand why these things work," Stewart said.

He is a member of a group overseeing the work of the Global Atmospheric Research Program, which is attempting to improve the understanding of climate change and make possible more accurate long-range weather forecasting.

It is believed carbon dioxide, mostly from the burning of fossil fuels, affects the degree of solar radiation on earth.

But scientists have modified the alarmist view of the consistent rise in CO2 over the past 10 years.

"It was pointed out rather forcibly that we shouldn't assume the rise of CO2 is necessarily bad," Stewart said.

Research Ship Back Home

Scientists from the Institute of Ocean Sciences are home after an uneventful two-month cruise aboard the research vessel Parizeau on behalf of the Global Atmospheric Research Program.

Aside from touching briefly at Honolulu outbound and coming home, the ship made land only once at Christmas Island where a member of the ship's company required medical attention and was flown home

The Parizeau is now in refit at Yarrows for spring and summer field work in B.C. waters, including a new oceanographic program on the Pacific Shelf.

The IOS team was led by Dr. Bill Crawford whose main interest was the effect of the ocean undercurrent upon turbulence and mixing, with simultaneous surface wind measurement.

Victim Pulled Knife On Accused But 'Just as a Joke'

The victim in a stabbing last fall took a knife to the man accused of murdering her in an incident several months earlier, an assize court jury was told Tuesday.

But a witness, Diane Watson, said "it was just a joke, no big deal."

She was testifying for the prosecution in the second day of the trial of Sidney Blair Rhodes, 22, accused of first degree murder in the death Oct. 12 of Susan Marie Calve, 17, whose naked body was found Oct. 14 in woods near Cedar Hill Community Centre.

Watson said Calve was her best friend and on July 10 they made arrangements to purchase from Rhodes two ounces of Colombian Gold marijuana for $160, each of them paying $80 cash to Rhodes.

But the marijuana was never produced by Rhodes at any time, she said.

Five days after the arrangement, the two girls, Rhodes and another man were walking on North Dairy Road when Calve dropped her purse and had her arms around Rhodes' neck from behind. She said words to the effect "give me my money back, Blair."

Watson said Rhodes shrugged off Calve and asked to see her knife which she gave him. It was a hunting knife about five or six inches long.

Rhodes started to tell her she had done it all wrong, the knife wasn't sharp, that you couldn't saw through a person's neck but you had to go for the jugular vein and you had to point the knife right in, Watson said.

Rhodes gave the knife back to Calve. Watson said everyone was surprised at the incident and she had never seen her with a knife before.

Watson said this was the only drug transaction the girls had with Rhodes. She said Calve was not involved in using drugs other than marijuana or selling any drugs.

Asked by defence counsel Patrick Sweeney to recount all the events of July 10, Watson began by saying she and Calve met Rhodes about 2 p.m. at Hillside Shopping Centre and they went upstairs at Sears to have coffee.

She said Rhodes "started to talk and talk and talk about how he would like to work on a hash farm and how he would smuggle heroin out of the country if he worked out there."

At this point Rhodes, who has sat quietly in court taking copious notes, burst out "oh bullshit man."

Mr. Justice D.E. Andrews called an immediate adjournment and warned that if there was a further ourburst, Rhodes would be gagged.

After the adjournment, Andrews said he was going to excuse the outburst and because only 10 minutes of court time remained he adjourned the trial to today.

Pathologist Dr. John Marsden, who performed the autospy on Calve Oct. 15, said there were 40 wounds, some of which were slash or cutting wounds and some were stab wounds. The front left neck had seven wounds and the internal jugular vein was opened.

He first saw the body on the evening of Oct. 14 and gave a rough estimate that the girl had been dead about two days, give or take at least 24 hours.

He made no observations of the body having been dragged or moved.

Marsden found no evidence of sexual assault but he added that wounds in the chest or vaginal area are not necessarily found in cases of sexual assault. He agreed that when such wounds are found, it is very suggestive of a sexual assault.

The dead girl's father, John Arnold Calve, said he last saw her alive on the evening of Oct. 11. He notified police she was missing Oct. 13.

He knew she smoked marijuana but that was all. He said she was not involved in selling drugs.

He also said he had never seen her carrying a knife.

Before the Judge

An 18-year-old Saanich man who only did one-tenth of his community service work was jailed 21 days by Judge Blake Allan in provincial court Tuesday.

Ricky Melvin Remple, 880 Vernon, pleaded guilty to breaching his probation between July 31 and Nov. 8 last year.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said Remple was convicted July 31 of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08. At that time, Judge Fred Green imposed a $100 fine, placed Remple on six months' probation and ordered him to perform 100 hours of community service work.

Mulligan said Remple was assigned to do his work at Cool-Aid on Fernwood but only completed two hours of it a month after his sentence. In all, Mulligan said, Remple finished 10 hours of the work.

Remple said he wanted to do the work at the Oak Bay Recreaction Centre.

* * *

A Victoria man who drove while impaired 32 days after he was convicted of a drinking-driving charge was jailed for 30 days.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

When to draw trumps and when not to draw them is a problem you face almost every time you're declarer in a suit contract. There is no all-encompassing formula that tells you when to do one or the other; what you do in each case depends on the circumstances you face.

Let's consider this deal where the defence starts with three rounds of hearts and you ruff the third one. Should you draw trumps at this point? First let's see what happens if you do.

You play three rounds of trumps and then lead the A-K and another diamond, hoping for a 3-3 division of the suit. In that case, you'd have ten easy tricks. Unlucky! It turns out that the diamonds are divided 4-2, and down you go.

This is not really a surprising development; the odds are approximately 2-to-1 against finding the six missing diamonds divided 3-3. Second, let's suppose that you don't draw trumps but start out by leading the A-K and another diamond.

In that case, if the diamonds are divided 3-3, you're practically certain to come home safe and sound. Whatever is returned, you plan to draw the outstanding trumps as soon as possible and so wind up with ten tricks.

What happens if the diamonds prove to be 4-2 (the actual case)? You plan to ruff the fourth round of diamonds in dummy (with the ace of spades if necessary) and then draw trumps, hoping to find the normal 3-2 trump division. In the actual deal, you make ten tricks without even breathing hard.

It is obviously better, in hands of this type, not to draw trumps at once. By leading diamonds first instead of trumps first, you establish yourself as a distinct favorite to make the contract, instead of an underdog. As usual, you follow the line of play that offers you the best chance for the desired outcome.

"I know you only have one car, but you're not letting the energy crisis bother you," said Bill, eyeing his friend's new gas-guzzler. "You're anti-social!"

Dave smiled. "Not really," he replied. "Of course it only does 10 miles to the gallon, but I've given each of my kids an economy car that gives three times that mileage, the same as my wife's car. So for the family our cars average 20 miles per gallon."

Not Pyromaniac, Prof Deduces

BURNABY (CP) — A criminology professor at Simon Fraser University says recent firebombings in the Vancouver area probably have been sparked by economic or political motives, or by both.

Ehor Boyanowski said in an interview Tuesday that the firebombings are most likely not the work of a pyromaniac.

Most of the 19 firebombings in the last 10 weeks have been directed against banks and government offices.

Boyanowski said this suggests the attacks might have by someone who is upset or depressed at the economic and political situation in Canada.

"Maybe it's somebody who can't get a job, can't get UIC (unemployment insurance). . .somebody who feels betrayed by the system. Then again, it could be somebody with a very superficial complaint against a bank. . . . refusal for a loan for a car or a trip."

Boyanowski discounted the idea that a pyromaniac is responsible for many of the firebombings because none has resulted in serious blazes. Pyromania is usually related to relieving sexual frustration, he said.

"If it is a pyromaniac, he's certainly not getting a hell of a lot out of it. And he's probably suffering from terminal impotency."

Boyanowksi said it is difficult to piece together a profile of the firebomber because of the lack of information, but "you can formulate various hypotheses."

"It could be someone who is suffering various delusions, or someone who has a real gripe. They might be trying to make a statement, lashing out at the system or trying to be vindictive."

He said it also could be a more ideological group with a specific although as yet unannounced political motive.

Eight of the attacks have been against banks. The Canadian Bankers Association has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible.

$500,000 Undeclared In Tips by Waiters

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Federal income tax officials say more than $500,000 in waiters' tips earned at two city hotels in a two-year period were not declared for income tax.

One waiter was fined $1,200 for tax evasion last week and "several more" prosecutions were under "active consideration," said a Revenue Canada spokesman Tuesday.

Almost 100 hotel workers' tax returns were re-examined and their claims reassessed as a result of the audit, he said.

Ed Carlson, secretary-treasurer of the Vancouver Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders' Union loca, said the government was being "unfair" by putting the onus of remembering all tip income on the workers.

Supervisor Unit Vetoed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board Tuesday turned down a request for the certification of 70 B.C. Hydro transit supervisers as a collective bargaining unit.

Doug Cronk, spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said the labor board rejected his union's request on the grounds that the supervisers are not a unit appropriate for collective bargaining.

The union will appeal the decision.

Courtenay Votes May 12

COURTENAY (CP) — City council fixed May 12 as the date of a civic byelection Monday night after Alderman Ross Sinclair resigned for personal reasons.

He had been a councillor in this Vancouver Island city for four years and was returned by acclamation last November.

Spawning Area Leased

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 500-acre prime waterfowl and salmon spawning area in the Fraser Valley has been leased to the federal fisheries department for 99 years, it was announced Monday.

Fund chairman Bert Hoffmeister said the conservancy, located on the Chehalis River delta, was leased to the government for $1 a year.

Murder Attempt Charged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jose Augusto Ribiero, 26, who was shot by a police officer last January, Tuesday was ordered to stand higher court trial on a charge of attempted murder.

Ribeiro was arrested after a man acting erratically on a Vancouver street swung an axe at an officer before being shot down by another policeman.

Funding Is Cut Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funds to the high-profile Downtown Eastside Residents' Association have been cut off by Vancouver city council.

The community services committee had recommended a $12,000 grant for one DERA staff member but the recommendation was voted down by aldermen.

Pair Guilty of Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — A B.C. Supreme Court jury has found two people guilty of second-degree murder in the stabbing of a hotel management official last August at his North Vancouver home.

The jury found Ronald Roger Gourgon, 32, and Lisa Margaret Knowles, 24, guilty in the slaying of Andreas Stanatakis. Knowles was sentenced to life in prison but will be eligible for parole in 10 years. Gourgon is to be sentenced Friday.

Delta Vote Date Set

DELTA (CP) — An election will be held April 28 to choose a replacement for former mayor Tom Goode who resigned last week after declaring bankruptcy.

Ald. Bill Reid will serve as acting mayor until the election and nomination day has been set for April 10.

Airline Bargain All Gone

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada's "great spring seat sale" is sold out for long-distance flights, a spokesman said Monday, and now the airline is looking for ways of warding off prospective passengers.

Gerard Lareault said the airline has withdrawn advertisements for the cut-rate fares but reservation phone lines are still swamped by people calling for seats which are no longer available.

CP Air, Air Canada's privately-owned competitor, says it still has low-rate seats left on some legs of its routes, but not on all flights.

Lareault said Air Canada still has room on short and medium-range flights, such as Montreal-Chicago.

The price cutting began when Air Canada put 445,000 excess seats on sale for the seven-week perid beginning March 27. The airline stipulated that passengers book a week in advance and stay for a specified length of time at their destinations.

Prices were slashed from 48 to 68 per cent. For example, a round trip to Los Angeles costs $159 instead of the regular $430.

Japan Fares Slashed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Japan Air Lines filed Tuesday for approval of a new individual advanced purchase excursion fare between Vancouver and Tokyo from March 15, 35 per cent below current economy class fares.

Subject to approval of the Canadian and Japanese governments, the new fares would be $727 during the period Nov. 1 to May 31 and $794 during the peak season June 1 to Oct. 31, the airline said in a news release.

Booking would have to be made at least 30 days before planned departure and the ticket would have to be bought within seven days of flight confirmation. Tickets would be valid for a minimum stay in Japan of 16 days and a maximum of 45 days.

A cancellation penalty would be 15 per cent of the fare and stopovers in Honolulu would not be permitted.

A JAL spokesman said 10 per cent of the airline's Boeing 747 economy class seating would be allocated for discount fares. Regular economy class return fare for Vancouver to Tokyo is now $1,114.

CP Air announced similar fare reductions Tuesday subject to government approval.

Fire Guts Boat, Five Rescued

Five people were rescued from a lifeboat today after an unidentified 100-foot vessel was gutted by fire four miles east of Sheringham Point in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The five people were picked up the freighter G.B. Church.

The ocean sciences vessel Richardson — on marine search and rescue work for the herring roe season — was sent to the scene and a Buffalo aircraft from CFB Comox was standing by.

Take-It-Along Parties Cut Cost, Boost Fun

By KAY SPICER

This winter our gatherings are take-it-along parties and they are great fun. When the work load and the food costs are shared one person isn't burdened. Help and food costs are going out of sight.

Here's a few tricks help to make casseroles, salads, desserts and even soup totable. Thank heavens for foil, plastic wrap and plastic bags. With their help spilling and breaking problems are eliminated.

Plan a shared party with your friends. The best parties always have a plan. Decide collectively on the menu and theme, then assign a host. The host can find out what each person wants to provide. This allows the person great with casseroles to make those while the desert expert can do his/her thing, too.

Unmold molded dishes at the host's home, dress and toss the salads there. Plan to reheat hot dishes but let the hostess know what heating space and time is needed. Then the meal-time strategy can be programmed.

Most casseroles improve if they are refrigerated overnight so if you are the casserole chef prepare the day before your shared party.

COQ AU VIN

Makes 8 servings.

1 roasting chicken (4 pounds)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup brandy
2 cups red table wine
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
½ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon rosemary
⅓ cup all-purpose flour
2 cups chicken broth (cold)
12 small white onions
16 small whole mushrooms or 1 can (10 ounces) mushrooms, drained
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley (1 teaspoon parsley flakes)

Remove fat from vent of chicken, chop finely. Cut chicken in pieces. Heat chicken fat in large frying pan and simmer until all fat is rendered.

Remove rendered bits with slotted spoon. Brown chicken pieces on all sides, salt and pepper them, cover and continue cooking slowly, turn pieces occasionally, for 10 minutes. Warm brandy, pour over chicken, light immediately. Shake the pan back and forth until the flames subside.

Shake flour and broth together in a screw-top jar to make a smooth mixture. (Or mix very well so there are no lumps.) Pour into pan, stir briskly to avoid lumps. Cook two minutes.

Pour over chicken. Add onions. Bake, covered, in 300 degree F. oven for 50 to 60 minutes or until chicken is tender. Heat butter in clean frying pan, saute mushrooms five minutes.

Cook over medium heat about 30 seconds or until underside is delicately browned.

Turn; cook 15 to 20 seconds. Stack on plate; cover. Chill. Immediately before serving, place banana half on each crepe; roll up. For each serving, top 2 filled crepes with 2 scoops of ice cream and ice cream topping; garnish with whipped cream and chopped nuts if desired.

Death Diet Fad Dying Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The liquid protein diet fad, believed to be linked with more than 40 deaths, has just about died itself.

Health department officials still are working on a number of recommendations about the potential danger of protein diets. But they say publicity about the deaths has already alerted the public.

The liquid protein itself is not poisonous and medical experts cannot prove a relationship between the liquid and the deaths.

But many who had chosen the diet to lose weight quickly generally stopped eating anything else for months. It is product misuse that has generated most of the concern.

In the United States, for example, the Food and Drug Administration received reports of 44 deaths associated with protein diets.

The patients were all women between 25 and 51 years who used the diet from two to eight months. Twelve were under medical supervision and 14 had been taking vitamin and mineral supplements.

Recommendations that the health department take some action to prevent the same thing happening in Canada followed an inquest into the death of a 25-year-old Burlington, Ont., woman who lost 139 pounds during five months on liquid protein.

She was on the borderline of starvation when admitted to hospital in 1977 and died of myocarditis, an inflammation of heart tissue that is considered rare in women under 60.

"Under no circumstances should people put themselves on drastic unsupervised diets," says Dr. Errol Marliss, a University of Toronto medical teacher and researcher.

Seeking More Nutrition? Substitute Yeast Doughs

With much emphasis on the use of less refined grains in everyday food as replacements for white flour products, it occurs to me that homemakers will be preparing more nutritious meals by substituting yeast doughs of wholewheat and other flours for the usual pastry coverings in savory foods and even for crusts for fruit pies.

For those who have not thought of this approach, why not use a roll-out yeast dough recipe in place of rich pastry in making a meat pie or a meat roll? This workd well for making pizzas at home, and in making fruit rolls at Christmas time and other festivals. Why not use a yeast dough more often and enjoy a variety of nutritious flours in place of pastry flour?

With a basic yeast Roll-out Dough, we can make any type of pie with vegetables, meat, or fruits. So here is the dough recipe to file for use at a moment's notice. Although it is activated by yeast, there is no tedious rising time. The one period of rising takes place in the oven.

YEAST ROLL-OUT DOUGH

½ cup warm water
1 tsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. yeast (or 1 pkt.)
½ cup hot water
⅓ cup soft margarine
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup skim milk powder
2 small eggs
1½ cups wholewheat flour
2 Tbsp. wheat germ
2 Tbsp. wheat bran
1¼ cups unbleached flour (approx.)

Measure warm water into large warm mixing bowl. Stir in 1 tsp. sugar. Sprinkle yeast over surface. Let stand 10 minutes until bubbly, then stir.

Meanwhile in small bowl, measure margarine, 2 tsp. sugar, salt and milk powder. Pour hot water over all and set inside.

Add wholewheat flour; beat until smooth. Beat in wheat germ and wheat bran (both are bought in one-pound plastic bags).

Then stir in unbleached flour, enough to make a soft dough that can be tossed around on a floured board to knead a little. I have found it possible to do this with the wood mixing spoon — turning and folding the dough repeatedly while keeping the hands clean to deal with telephone, or other items being prepared at same time.

Divide the dough into two equal portions. Wrap one portion and put into refrigerator for second pie or roll.

Roll out the other portion on floured waxed paper to make a rectangle about 8 by 10 inches.

SAVORY VEGETABLE FILLING FOR ROLL

Thin slices Cheddar cheese
1 Tbsp. fine chopped chives
1 Tbsp. fine chopped celery
3 Tbsp. fine chopped green cabbage
½ cup mashed cooked soy beans or split peas and lentils
A pinch of thyme, organo
A few grains of nutmeg and cinnamon.

Lay cheese slices on rectangle of dough. Mix remaining ingredients together; spread over cheese and roll up beginning on long side, using waxed paper to keep dough from breaking the roll.

Seal ends by inching dough together; place roll on greased baking pan or cookie tray.

Put into cold oven. Turn heat to about 95 deg. F (35 deg. C) until roll has risen to about one-half more than original size. Then turn off heat; leave roll in oven to rise to double original, 10 to 15 minutes.

Then turn heat up to 400 deg. F (200 deg. C) for 10 minutes to stop the rising and start the baking. After 10 minutes turn heat down to moderate 177 deg. C to continue baking for about 20 minutes or until lightly browned. You may need to cover loosely with foil to prevent scorching with the high heat after rising, but remove later to allow proper cooking and browning.

Serve hot (or cold) in slices, with Raisin Sauce or heated canned tomatoes in winter. Or sliced fresh vine ripened tomatoes in summer. The second portion of dough should be made into a Pizza Pie to discover how fine a good this can be when made at home.

Make either one 12-inch Pizza, or two 8-inch in a pair of layer cake pans. Then one can be frozen to use when needed later.

Pizza fillings consist of practically any savory food you care to use, but quantity needs to total between three and four cups.

Cooked rice or macaroni is a good beginning; shredded green cabbage, chopped chives, parsley and celery — all lightly cooked in margarine for 2 or 3 minutes. Add to cold cooked rice or macaroni.

In same pan, lightly cook a cupful of mushrooms, or thinly sliced carrot and parsnip for special flavor. When almost tender, add these to the previous mixture.

Now add a pinch of thyme, oregano, ½ teaspoon salt and toss all together to blend.

Press the dough into the greased pan or pans, forming a rim of dough by moulding with the hands.

Bake either at the same time as the roll (above) or at another time using the same method, beginning at "Place roll in Cold Oven."

This type of Pizza Pie may also have either Raisin Sauce or heated canned tomatoes as an accompaniment.

Once you have made your first Pizza, you'll probably make one or two each week, for possible variations are limitless.

As you become used to the routine of making and baking, it takes less and less time to put them together.

With good filler ingredients just to your own taste, you are assured of top nutrition, for the yeast dough recipe gives balance to the meal with its wheat, eggs and milk.

Florida Blanc Mange

(Serves 5 or 6)

½ c. sugar
6 tbsp. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
4 c. hot milk

To make Blanc Mange mix thoroughly in top of double boiler the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in hot milk with wire whip and cook stirring constantly over boiling water until thick.

Stir a little into the beaten eggs, return to double boiler and stir and cook about 5 minutes. Cook to room temperature.

Pour into six large stemmed glasses and chill covered with a large sheet of saran. Near serving time cover tops completely with alternating crescents of grapefruit, orange and papaya and serve.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: There are two sides to the lament voiced by DON'T DRIVE.

I am a "Do Drive" living in a retirement community surrounded by "Don't Drives". When I moved here I invited some "Don't Drives" to ride with me to shopping centres and various civic affairs. No doubt this was a welcome gesture to them, but it later became such a headache that I quit offering.

There is the "Don't Drive" who, when invited to go to a shopping centre, asks to be driven all over the city on her little errands.

There is the "Don't Drive" who shows up with two or three of her friends, unknown to me, whom SHE has invited to go along — each with their own little errands that will take "only a minute."

There are the invitations extended to me solely because I drive and can provide transportation for five or six of my hostesses' "Don't Drives".

But most of all, I resent the "Don't Drives" who have never driven because they're "too nervous," but are the world's most unnerving backseat drivers.

DO DRIVE

DEAR DO DRIVE: You must be living in the wrong retirement community. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I live in an area with a large population of senior citizens, many of whom do not drive (My eyes are poor, so I can't drive.)

However, I've never wanted for transportation anywhere. Two or three neighbors call me daily, offering to drive me wherever I want to go.

Perhaps it's because I keep a record of all the rides I get. I mark down the approximate amount I would have paid had I hired a taxi. Then, periodically, I give each person who has driven me a box of groceries whose cash value equals the cab fare I saved.

DON'T DRIVE, DO PAY

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of relatives you never hear from unless they're drunk?

SHIRLEY

DEAR SHIRLEY: It could be worse. You could have relatives you never hear from unless they're BROKE.

DEAR ABBY: I am still laughing about something that happened this morning. The character who gave me that laugh sounds like someone who'd write to you.

I am a switchboard operator for the telephone company. When I answered a call this morning there was no response on the other end of the line. After I had said, "Good morning," for the third time, I heard a somewhat embarrassed little female voice say, "Is this REALLY the telephone company?"

I assured her it was, and asked her to whom she wanted to speak.

She replied, "Nobody, I guess. I found this telephone number in my husband's coat pocket and my curiosity was killing me."

It's usually your fault if the used car you buy turns out to be a lemon, says a college's automotive laboratory instructor. Don't assume anything the seller says about the car is true. Check it out yourself or pay a mechanic to do it. A spare tire may not fit the wheels; the battery may be old (check to see if it's dated); floor mats can hide rust or certain accident repairs. No statements are any good unless they are in the seller's writing.

Easy as Cooking Hamburger

60-Minute Gourmet

By PIERRE FRANEY

Cooking steak Diane, a tasty and popular dish, is not much more complicated than preparing and cooking a well-made hamburger, only with more sophisticated seasonings. One of the key points in the preparation is cooking steak quickly. The total cooking time on both sides is about two minutes. The other ingredients are butter and oil, chives, mustard, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. When chives are out of season, chopped shallots serve the purpose or even chopped green onions.

Almost any very tender cut of meat will do for this dish. The maitre d'hotel for whom the dish is celebrated used boneless sirloin, pounded to about ¼-inch thick. Filet mignon also works well. Pounding the meat with a mallet is important, for it breaks down the fibres and hastens cooking.

Because of the haste with which the steak is cooked, an accompanying dish may be more time-consuming and elaborate. Mixed buttered vegetables go well with steak Diane.

STEAK DIANE

STEAKS

Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 tblsp. olive oil
3 tblsp. butter
3 tblsp. chopped chives or shallots
2 tblsp. cognac
3 tblsp. chopped parsley
1 tsp. imported mustard
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tsp. fresh or canned meat broth, preferably beef, although chicken can be used

1. Place the slices of filet mignon or the sirloin steaks on a flat surface and pound with a flat mallet to about ¼-inch thickness.

2. Sprinkle the meat on both sides with salt and pepper.

3. Heat two tablespoons of oil and two tablespoons of butter in a large skillet and when very hot, add two of the steaks. Cook about 1½ minutes on one side and turn. Cook 30 seconds on the other side. Do not cook much longer or they will be overcooked and dry. Transfer the steaks to a hot serving dish.

4. Add the other steaks to the skillet and cook them identically in the fat that remains in the pan. Transfer the steaks to the serving dish.

5. Remove skillet from the heat and add chives. Return skillet to the stove and cook about 10 seconds. Add the cognac and stir. Add parsley, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Add the broth and stir. Swirl in remaining tablespoon of butter. Sprinkle the steaks with pepper and pour the sauce over them. Serve at once.

Yield: 4 servings.

MIXED BUTTERED VEGETABLES

3 potatoes, about 1½ lbs.
½ lb. green beans
Salt to taste
3 tblsp. butter
1 clove garlic, barely crushed
Freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Peel the potatoes and cut them into ½-inch slices. Stack the slices and cut them into ½-inch strips. Cut the strips into ½-inch cubes. Drop the cubes into cold water. Set aside.

2. Trim off the ends of the green beans and cut the beans into one-inch lengths. Set aside.

3. Drain the potatoes and put them in a casserole or saucepan. Cover with water and salt to taste. Bring to the boil.

4. In another saucepan, bring enough water to the boil to cover the beans when added. Add the beans and salt to taste. Bring to the boil.

5. Cook the potatoes about three minutes and drain.

6. As the beans continue to cook, heat the butter in a large skillet and add the potatoes. Add the crushed garlic clove and toss over high heat. Stir as necessary. When the potatoes start to brown, reduce the heat to moderate. Add salt and pepper to taste. Continue cooking, tossing and stirring, about eight minutes.

7. When the beans have cooked for a total of eight minutes, drain them.

8. Add the beans to the potatoes, toss and stir to blend. Cook two or three minutes to blend flavours. Remove the garlic clove and serve.

Yield: 4 servings.

By L. L. Coleman, MD

I'm 44, and for the past 24 years I've been on a diet. You name it and I've passed through the water diet, the fat man's diet, the drinking man's diet, the La Jolla diet, the Mayo diet, the nine-day diet, the two-week diet, the all-protein diet. I've joined groups, I've had hypnosis, I've gone to a psychologist. I've tried the diet-of-the-month, the gourmet reducing diet, and now the Scarsdale diet. I'm still fat. Is there anything left for me? — Mrs. E.E.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

There certainly is something left for you. A better understanding of why crash diets do not work. It is a simple mathematical formula. If the number of calories you take in are greater than the number of calories you expend in your daily activity, you must gain weight. If, on the other hand, you eat fewer calories than your body needs for fuel for the day's activity, then you will lose weight.

The only variation of this axiom occurs when there is some physical disorder. Thyroid imbalance or other hormone disturbances change the metabolic process and affect weight. There are other problems that alter the water balance mechanism. When a complete physical examination shows that there is no such dysfunction, then concentration on calories and numbers cannot be sidetracked.

No one denies the important relationship between psychological stress, anxiety, social problems, financial problems and the compulsive drive to eat.

You have already learned that any short-term diet, no matter how much weight you drop while on it, is worthless unless you follow through with a readjustment of your eating habits — not for nine days, not for two weeks, but for the rest of your life.

I must emphasiz that calories must be counted — for they do count. Many people believe that the general category of non-fattening foods is all they need to observe. Yet, even the non-fattening foods can pile up calories if you eat more than a reasonable portion.

$50M Boost By Levesque

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — Premier Rene Levesque opened a new session of the Quebec legislature Tuesday by announcing a series of measures to aid the Quebec economy.

The measures include a $50 million income supplement program for the working poor and legislation controlling the sale of Quebec farmland to non-residents.

But Levesque's performance was upstaged by the opposition Liberals who walked out of the house before the inaugural speech to protest television coverage of the proceedings.

The unprecedented walkout was sparked by the decision of two television networks to provide live coverage of Levesque's speech Tuesday but only delayed coverage of opposition replies today.

Liberal house leader Jean oel Lavoie said he has been unable to convince the Quebec network of Radio Canada and the provincially-owned TV network Radio Quebec to change their plans.

In what is being called "a pre-referendum throne speech, Levesque outlined economic and social measures with a little something for most Quebec voters.

He promised government subsidies to promote small industry, fisheries, pulp and paper and agricultural enterprises.

"In our opinion 1979 is a year where the economy will have top priority," Levesque said.

But when asked at a news conference whether the government's real priority is a referendum on independence the fall, Levesque said no date has been set for the vote.

The premier promised a major policy paper defining the government's option of sovereignty-association will be presented sometime after the summer recess.

Major legislation to be presented in the coming session will include bills governing health and safety on the workplace and minimum working conditions.

The premier pledged to increase grants for the handicapped, free dental care for children and for home care of the elderly.

Last-Minute Push on Housing Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet launched urgent behind-the-scenes negotiations Tuesday night in an effort to get amendments to the National Housing Act passed by the Commons by the end of this week.

He appeared to give the opposition virtual carte-blanche to delete portions of the bill and to make amendments.

He apparently was moving to get provinces out of a difficult position and two opposition housing critics said in interviews he agreed to drop the most controversial part of the bill — a graduated mortgage plan.

The bill, introduced last December, would streamline 10 separate housing programs worth $339 million last year into one program worth $250 million this year. The government did not appear to attach much priority to the bill until last week, when debate on second reading — approval in principle — started.

Conservative and New Democratic MPs speculated that the sudden urgency meant an election will be called on Friday. But a government spokesman discounted this possibility.

The government has been under pressure from provinces and municipalities to pass the legislation so a number of housing programs depending on it — some held up for as long as a year — can begin.

By agreement among all parties the vote on approval in principle will be held first thing Thursday. Opposition MPs said Ouellet is asking them to let the House immediately begin detailed clause-by-clause study of the bill instead of shipping it off to a committee as usual. The minister feared it might become bogged down in committee and not pass before Prime Minister Trudeau calls his spring election.

Ouellet was not in the Commons Tuesday night and did his negotiating by telephone.

Word of the minister's attitude toward the graduated mortgage plan came from Jean Piggott of Ottawa and Bob Rae of Toronto, the Conservative and New Democrat housing critics, respectively.

Both parties have strongly criticized the proposal that would permit monthly mortgage payments to start small and to increase annually. The idea is to allow those starting out in life to buy houses when their income is relatively low and to pay higher payments as their income increases.

But the opposition has said the proposal would entice young persons to buy houses they could not afford. And they said the final cost of the house would be higher than it would be under the current mortgage payments.

A major thrust of the bill is to shift more housing responsibility to provincial governments and to authorize housing budget cuts announced in the government's spending restraint program of last August.

The Liberal government has already announced plans to dismantle the urban affairs ministry at the end of this month, saying it has accomplished its purpose of stimulating provincial and municipal government interest in housing programs.

Campaign TV Ad Limits Set

TORONTO (CP) — Political parties will have to reserve their election television advertising time within five days after a general election is announced, under new Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission regulations.

If the allotted time is not reserved within that period, broadcasters will not have to pre-empt commercials to accommodate political advertising.

The Liberal party is being allowed 155 minutes; the Progressive Conservative Party, 131 minutes; the New Democratic Party, 63 minutes; the Social Credit Party, 22 minutes; the Communist Party, eight minutes; and the Marxist-Leninist Party, eight minutes.

Ontario Backs One Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A tough stand on constitutional matters and a moderate approach to boost the economy were key elements in the Ontario government's speech from the throne Tuesday.

Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon, accompanied by the traditional monarchal pomp, opened the third session of the legislature by reading the 10-minute speech.

The speech, a statement of government polices, showed the government's emphasis on constitutional issues by containing a resolution supporting a one-Canada concept.

Premier William Davis told a news conference that the resolution would likely be introduced in the legislature later this month.

Davis added that he is concerned that Quebec Premier Rene Levesque has talked about sovereignty-association without defining it.

It would be a mistake for Quebecers to assume they could have economic union with the rest of Canada the day after voting for sovereignty-association.

On Monday, Davis, in a speech in Washington, D.C., described Premier Levesque as mischievous and unfair in statements he has made in the United States.

However, NDP Leader Michael Cassidy said the premier is inflaming opinions in Quebec with the dangerous kind of rhetoric he has been using here and in Washington.

Commons On Cable

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and Cable Satellite Network will join forces to provide live coverage of the House of Commons by satellite, a cable television industry executive said Tuesday.

The CBC surprised cable executives Jan. 19 with its announcement that it planned to provide live satellite coverage of the Commons.

The satellite broadcasts could start by mid-March to 15 Canadian cities, the cable spokesman said. The venture is temporary until the end of the current Commons session, he said.

Mails Fail Postal Workers

CALGARY (CP) — Like many Canadians this time of year, about 2,000 Calgary postal workers are worrying over their income tax.

But unlike most other Canadians, the Calgary posties have no T-4 slips to submit with their tax returns.

A union official says the forms — mailed from Ottawa Feb. 14 along with T-4 slips for other post offices in the region — were lost in the mail.

Jim Hall, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers Calgary local, says the postal workers must do as other taxpayers facing the same situation: estimate their earnings for the year and forward that, along with the name and address of their employer, to the federal revenue department.

Controllers Accept 14.7%

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers Tuesday voted by a slim margin to accept a two-year agreement with the federal government which calls for a 14.7 per cent increase in wages over the life of the contract.

Jim Livingston, president of the 2,400-member Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said the contract was accepted by 53 per cent of the membership.

"One of the big problems was that the members weren't satisfied with the wage increase in the second year," he said.

The contract includes an eight per cent salary increase in the first year and a 6.7 per cent boost the second year.

It increases the average salary to about $21,060 this year and about $22,470 next year. Average wage before this contract was about $19,500.

Inmate Gouges Eyes

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A prisoner at Millhaven penitentiary gouged out his eyes with his thumbs in a bizarre scheme to escape from the federal institution, provincial police say.

The plot was to free Dennis Dale Hunter, 29, of Youngstown, Ohio, from the ambulance that rushed him to hospital after he gouged out his eyes Sunday but the plan failed.

Doctors had to completely remove one eye and Hunter has only about two-per-cent vision in the eye there were able to replace, police said.

Hunter was reported in satisfactory condition Tuesday.

Police had been told an escape attempt was to be made and arrested Hunter's wife, Samantha, in Kingston earlier Sunday.

The couple is charged with conspiracy to escape custody.

Police said other arrests may be made within the next few days.

They said they did not know the prisoner was planning to mutilate himself in the escape attempt.

Hunter, who was serving sentences totalling more than 20 years for armed robberies in Vancouver and Winnipeg and for escaping custody in Saskatchewan, had apparently been told by other prisoners that U.S. prisoners with permanent disabilities are not kept in prison.

An OPP spokesman said reports Hunter inflicted his own injuries were "nonsense, and not established fact." He said an investigation was under way into what was believed "an assault by another inmate."

Reform Bill Soon On Rape

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday he expects to soon introduce a bill to reform the laws on rape.

But he admitted it has virtually no chance of being passed before Parliament is dissolved for a general election.

Replying to questions from Conservative justice critic Eldon Woolliams, Lalonde told the Commons his officials now are drafting a bill which will take into account representations fron women's groups.

The new legislation would remove rape from the Criminal Code and replace it with charges of sexual assault and aggravated sexual assault, Lalonde said.

Women's groups criticized a government law reform proposal last year on grounds that it did not go far enough to recognize rape as a crime of violence, rather than a sexual crime.

The bill which died on the order paper last year would have removed the word rape from the Criminal Code and would have treated the offence as a form of indecent assault or, when serious harm resulted, as aggravated indecent assault.

Can't Stop SIN: PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday that despite Conservative objections, he cannot stop people from use using their social insurance numbers — known as SIN — as an identification card.

He told Conservative Ray Hnatyshyn that his government does not encourage such use, but he could not stop people from using their SIN cards as identification cards if they wanted to.

Hnatshyn, from Saskatoon-Biggar, has for several months been crusading against widespread government and private use of SIN as an all-purpose identity card.

He and other Opposition MPs say it could be an invasion of privacy, because the single identifying number could allow a computer operator to piece together everything about a person's life from cradle to grave.

HOT WORK: Shovelling snow is no pleasure under any circumstances but Geza Nameth found some consolation when he was able to strip down to his shorts in Tuesday's warm weather in Calgary. Temperature there was expected to soar to 14 today.

Firm Fears Retirement Age Change

OTTAWA (CP) A western mining company says that lifting the retirement age above 65 on a large scale could increase unemployment, frustrate promotion-seeking workers and lead to more firings and demotions.

Sherritt Gordon Mines Ltd., with operations in Alberta and Manitoba, made the statements Tuesday in a submission to the special Senate committee on retirement age policies.

The company made clear that it would not lose, and likely would gain, money if employees were permitted to retire late so its opposition to the idea is "not economically motivated."

The committee is considering whether mandatory retirement at age 65, a common practice in Canada, should be banned by law. It has suggested that workers should have the right to work past 65 if they are able and willing.

The brief said most employers practise responsible retirement age policies and thus no interference was warranted "except perhaps on an individual basis if irresponsible behavior can be demonstrated."

The company argued that late retirement by one senior worker delays promotions for as many as eight people beneath, so such a policy would lead to "increased frustration and turnover at all levels in an organizaion."

"However, if mandatory retirement is prohibited or even significantly delayed, it would not only increase the incidence of this problem, but more important, it would eliminate retirement as a practical solution."

More workers would have to be fired or demoted as a result.

Also, the company warned that the economy can create only a limited number of jobs and there already are nearly one million unemployed, many of them young.

"It would appear that any benefit retirement legislation might provide for our senior citizens will be offset in equal proportion by the detrimental effect on our young citizens."

Sherrit said there is more interest among workers in early, not late, retirement formally in collective agreements and informally in conversation.

The problem of low income faced by retired persons would not be solved by lifting retirement age or by indexing pensions, Sherrit said.

"Rather it must come from the elimination of inflation so that individuals can defer sufficient income during their working years to live comfortably during their retirement years."

Clark Has $2.5 Billion Energy Plan

MONTREAL (UPC) — Conservative leader Joe Clark has announced a five-point energy policy which he says would cost $2.5 billion over the next decade and make Canada self-sufficient in energy by 1990.

Clark Tuesday proposed building a natural gas pipeline to Quebec City and expanding the capacity of the oil pipeline between Sarnia and Montreal.

Liberal policies had left Canada's energy supplies at the mercy of events abroad, he said in a major policy address to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce.

A Conservative government would limit the annual increase in domestic energy demand to 2 per cent, offer incentives for better home insulation and encourage more efficient use of energy facilities.

"There is no good reason why, in 1979, Canadians in the eastern half of the country should have their supplies of gasoline and heating oil disrupted by events in Iran," Clark said.

"There is even less reason why we should be looking to other countries for protection against further disruption. Five years ago, Iran seemed the most stable nation in the Middle East.

"The answer to Canada's energy needs lies in Canada and nowhere else."

Clark said the Liberals wasted the last 10 years by failing to formulate long-term energy policies. As a result, "eastern Canada relies on risky foreign sources for 60 per cent of its oil. Our country pays out $3.5 billion in foreign exchange to cover that dependency . . ."

He said Canada should shift from oil to more plentiful natural gas and renewable energy resources.

He also promised to renew federal-provincial co-operation on energy matters, something he said existed before the Trudeau years.

Clark wanted construction on a gas pipeline to Quebec City to begin immediately and would also consider extending that line to the Maritimes. The Sarnia-Montreal oil pipeline capacity should be doubled to about 50,000 barrels a day, he said.

He called for more exploration and production of the nation's energy resources, particularly through tax incentives.

Rampaging Inuit Wreck Plan for School

MONTREAL (CP) — Feeling homesick and alienated in the south, a few Inuit students went on a drunken rampage in a suburban motel on the weekend and dashed the immediate prospects of a high school for Quebec's 4,400 Inuit.

Their temporary school, in the western suburb of Dorval, opened last October when Kativik School Board commissioners couldn't find adequate facilities in the Arctic.

Foster homes were found for only seven of the 42 specially-picked students, and the rest were accommodated at a local motel. But after a few months, 20 of the students had dropped out of the Kativik Senior Education Centre.

On the weekend, a few of the 18 students lodged in the motel broke a toilet which flooded the room below. The next night the same room was sacked by three students.

The manager, citing a long list of damage to motel property and drunkenness among students, called school commissioners and said the Inuit would have to leave.

Principal Andre Mercure said the students from the motel were transferred to hastily-set up dormitories in the school building.

But without proper bathroom or shower facilities in the former grade school, that arrangement couldn't be permanent. The commissioners decided to send the students back to their homes in Fort Chimo, Great Whale River and Payne Bay.

Tuesday, disappointed student Charlie Tooktoo prepared to head for Great Whale River, about 1,100 kilometres north of Montreal on Hudson Bay, where he has landed a job teaching grade 4 pupils.

"We had a lot of problems," 23-year-old Tooktoo said. "There was a lot of drinking and homesickness. A lot of the students were not attending classes.

"The food was terrible. We ate frozen dinners. Some of the students missed hunting and fishing. Others missed not being able to go skidooing."

Louise Clement, one of the four teachers at the centre, said she was saddened by the school's closing, but "the Inuit were caught in a cross-cultural situation."

Appeal Planned

TORONTO (UPC) — Attorney-General Roy McMurtry has announced the Crown will appeal the acquittal of the Pink Triangle Press and three of its officers cleared last month of using the mails for distributing indecent material.

The publishing company and its officers were charged with using the mails for indecent, immoral and scurrilous purposes following the publication of an article in a gay liberation describing intimate relationships between adult men and young boys.

He Crushed Me, Says Margaret

LONDON (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, estranged wife of the Canadian prime minister, said in an interview published today she left her husband because he treated her "like the most worthless woman ever hatched on this earth."

In The Daily Express interview, Mrs. Trudeau also is quoted as saying "nothing happened" during the weekend she spent in Toronto with the Rolling Stones rock group before her marriage broke up in 1977.

The Daily Express next month will serialize extracts from Mrs. Trudeau's autobiography, Beyond Reason.

She told columnist Jean Rook that she wrote the book partly for money, saying: "I'm broke."

Asked by the columnist why she left Trudeau, she is quoted as replying: "Because he crushed me, gave me nothing to do, treated me like the most worthless woman ever hatched on this earth.

"Because he wouldn't see that I didn't just want a dumb marriage, to be nothing but a decoration at his table. Because Pierre would never accept that I was under stress because I had to be a free soul, a real person, and not just a public figure."

As for that celebrated weekend in Toronto with the Rolling Stones, Margaret said: "Nothing happened, really nothing — except (guitarist) Keith Richards took heroin and we had to look after him.

"But that was the one bad, wicked thing I did — I'll admit it. That was done in anger, but my fairy-tale marriage was at an end, and I was so mad, so bitter, it seemed a fitting thing to do in my circumstances. And I do just love rock and roll."

In another newspaper interview Margaret is quoted as saying her back "is the most sensitive part of my body."

"I only have nice thoughts about anyone who rubs it."

The saga of the woman headlined in The Daily Mirror as "First Lady of Scandal" continues unabated for a third day.

The British morning tabloid, which claims a circulation of four million, bills the series as "the intriguing revelations of the premier's wife who joined the jet-set at play."

Among these revelations are:

"I fall in love with each man I'm involved with, I love the wild feeling of freedom, I only have nice thoughts about anyone who rubs my back."

The series is under the byline of Alan Markfield, described as a reporter who has known Margaret in various parts of the world.

In today's segment, Markfield quotes Margaret:

"I'm always trying to find someone better than Pierre, but I keep failing.

"I like sleeping in men's silk pyjamas, but just the tops.

"I wonder all the time if a man wants to go out with me because I'm me or because I'm Margaret Trudeau.

"I'll never leave Pierre."

Most Top Firms Foreign Owned

OTTAWA (CP) — More than half the 500 leading enterprises in Canada in 1976 were foreign-controlled.

Statistics Canada this week released three-year old figures showing 275 of the 500 largest non-financial corporations were foreign controlled, 207 were private Canadian companies and 18 were government-owned enterprises.

The statistics are contained in a report to Parliament on the activities of 230,262 non-financial corporations.

Highlights of the report are:

—The leading 500 enterprises — although they represented only one quarter of all companies — accounted for 64 per cent of corporate profits and 53 per cent of sales.

— The composition of this top quarter of the corporate sector was almost unchanged in 1976 from the previous year. In 1975, there were 277 foreign-controlled companies; 207 were private Canadian companies and the remaining 16 were Crown corporations.

— The 100 largest enterprises accounted for 43 per cent of profits and 36 per cent of sales. This group included 55 foreign-controlled firms.

— The 25 largest enterprises accounted for 24 per cent of profits and 21 per cent of sales. This group included nine foreign-controlled companies and four companies owned by the government.

Ownership information was available for only about a third of the companies in the report.

Among these 68,429 corporations (which represented all companies with assets of more than $250,000 or annual sales of at least $500,000), the federal agency found 3,630 were foreign-controlled.

Looking at the foreign sector, statisticians found the United States not only dominant, but increasing its share. In 1976, U.S.-controlled companies accounted for 79 per cent of all foreign sales and 84 per cent of foreign profits. The previous year, U.S.-controlled companies took 83 per cent of foreign profits.

British-controlled firms ranked second at nine per cent of foreign sales and six per cent of non-resident profits.

Other important foreign participants noted by the report were France, Japan, West Germany and the Netherlands.

Canadians paid $3.8 billion to non-residents in 1976, an increase of $62 million from the previous year. These payments included $845 million in interest, $73 million in dividends and $1.6 billion in business service charges.

Equal Rights For Women —Khomeini

QOM, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Khomeini, father of the Iranian revolution, said Tuesday women could have equal rights with men under an Islamic republic. Many women have said they fear a loss of status under the new order.

During Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's reign women were protected under a family law abolished after Khomeini's forces took power Feb. 12. Husbands could not divorce their wives in absentia. Women could argue their case before a Moslem priest or take their case to court.

Under orthodox Islamic laws, such as exist in Saudi Arabia, men are permitted 18 concubines and four wives.

"Islam encourages women to participate in all affairs like men," Khomeini told thousands of women, who were wearing their traditional ankle-length veils at a mass gathering.

"Under Islamic laws, if a man mistreats his wife, he first receives a warning. If he does not heed the warning, then he is given a light punishment. And if that does not stop him mistreating his wife, then the local religious leader has the right to obtain the wife's divorce."

Khomeini said women could arrange for the right to divorce their husbands at the time of marriage.

Dr. Kazem Sami, minister of health and social welfare, said the use of contraceptives is permissible under the tenets of Islam but that abortion is frowned on.

But many women still say they fear becoming second-class citizens in the Islamic society Khomeini plans for Iran.

Thousands of women plan to attend a protest at Tehran University on Thursday, International Women's Day.

Indicating a strict return to Islamic structure, Tehran's educational department chief, Ali Akbar Salimi Jahromi, abolished co-education as of the new school semester. He did not say whether this would apply to private schools.

Vietnam Agrees To Swift Pullout

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam agreed today to allow China to withdraw its 100,000-man invasion army peacefully, if it left quickly, but charged Peking's troops had launched new "barbarous acts of war."

Both sides claimed victory in the 19-day war and Peking said its withdrawal already had begun. But Hanoi's charge of continued Chinese attacks threatened chances for peace, with both sides reserving the right to renew full-scale combat.

"Chinese aggressors continued barbarous acts of war in Vietnam on (Tuesday and today) and were duly punished," Radio Hanoi said in a broadcast monitored in Bangkok only hours after Vietnam agreed to allow a speedy, peaceful pullout.

On the most active battlefield, Radio Hanoi said Chinese troops blew up two bridges over the Ky Cung River near the provincial capital of Lang Son, 80 miles northeast of Hanoi.

But Chinese attacks also were reported in the northwestern and northern regions Tuesday and today in what appeared to be a prelude to a military disengagement along the 450-mile border.

Vietnam said that "to show our good will for peace," its would refrain from attacking the Chinese withdrawal, but added that "if their units continue acts of war on their withdrawal route, they will be severely punished."

Western military sources said there were signs a tacit cease-fire was taking hold along the 450-mile battlefront, although sporadic and sometimes fierce fighting continued in some locations.

But the sources said the situation remained fluid. Chinese troops appeared ready to withdraw, but none had actually pulled out of Vietnam by this morning, the source said.

A report from Peking by the Japanese news agency Kyodo said "a portion" of the Chinese force had returned to China Tuesday. The report was not confirmed.

Vietnamese forces remained on alert and Hanoi ordered more military units formed. Radio Hanoi said the nationwide military mobilization, announced Sunday, remained in effect.

Peking claimed its invasion had been successful. "Our frontier forces are victoriously returning to their original positions and will stand guard watchfully on the frontier of our motherland," the People's Daily said today.

Won't Abdicate, Shah Vows on TV

Times News Services

The shah of Iran said in a television interview broadcast nationally in the United States Tuesday night that he has no intention of abdicating his throne and that with three more years in power his programs would have been successful.

"Why should I abdicate? I left my country to help straighten things out. It obviously has had the opposite effect," Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi told Barbara Walters of ABC television.

"If only I'd had three more years. All my programs would have been working and people would have seen what I was trying to do."

In Tehran earlier in the day, Deputy Premier Abbas Amir Entezam said Iran would set up a special court in a few days to try the shah and his family in absentia but he did not say what charges would be brought against the former ruler.

Miss Walters said the interview was conducted Monday in the Moroccan capital of Rabat on the grounds of a heavily-guarded estate lent to the shah by the King Hassan of Morocco.

She said the shah would not allow sound cameras to be used and was reticent about speaking at length on any topic.

In Tehran today, the Iranian revolutionary regime announced the execution of six more men convicted of morals charges.

Tehran's Islamic Revolutionary Court said the men were members of a ring in Tehran who kidnapped young boys and supplied them to homosexuals. This brought the number executed by Ayatollah Khomeini's forces to at least 40 — 13 on morals charges and 27 officials of the shah's regime.

A communique said the six were shot Tuesday night at Qasar Prison after a two-day trial. Earlier Tuesday, three men were shot in Shiraz, 1,000 kilometres south of Tehran, for sodomy, and Monday night four men were executed in Tehran for raping a male college student.

The new regime's insistence on adherence to Islamic law was further underscored by the public flogging of an adulterous couple in Jamshid Abad, east of Tehran.

Prison Bars Too Firm for Actors' Fantasies

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — The make-believe world in which most actors live is inevitably shattered when they work in prison films on location behind bars with hundreds of convicts.

Paul Muni, Jimmy Cagney, Edward G. Robinson, Burt Lancaster and other stars never forgot their experiences with life's losers in the big house.

And so it is with Peter Strauss, who spent a month at Folsom, California's maximum security facility for hardened criminals, starring in The Jericho Mile, a two-hour ABC-TV movie to be aired March 18.

"I came out of Folsom traumatized," said the actor. "We finished the film in October but I still hear the shouts and clang of the doors, I can still feel the cold in my bones and smell the concrete.

"I'll never forget what I saw and heard and experienced in there. But it was rewarding, too, because I saw a side of human nature I'd never be exposed to in any other way.

"While I was there I never felt threatened, although I worked with hundreds of cons every day, including celebrity prisoners, axe murderers and slashers who got a lot of publicity before they were sent up."

Strauss, who burst to national prominence three years ago in the role of Rudy Jordache in the Rich Man, Poor Man miniseries, purposely chose a prison film to break away from his clean-cut young U.S. senator role.

He followed Rich Man, Poor Man with the title role in Young Joe, The Forgotten Kennedy. He felt he needed a vehicle that would convince producers he could play a variety of roles.

In The Jericho Mile he portrays a convict who shuts himself off from the rest of the prison populace to run around the prison track almost all day every day until he is running close to a four-minute mile.

Faculty Ensemble Presenting Bach

A pair of concerts devoted to the music of J.S. Bach will be presented by University of Victoria Faculty Ensemble Sunday and Monday.

Distinguished guest soloists will participate in the performance of two cantatas; the Wedding Cantata, in which noted Vancouver soprano Ingrid Suderman will join the instrumental ensemble and Cantata for the Feast of the Purification, with the solo part being taken by baritone Bernard Turgeon.

Joining the Faculty Ensemble, led by violinist Paul Kling, will be bassoonist Jesse Read and Erich Schwandt on harpsichord. The ensemble will perform Bach's Trio Sonata and Sonata in E Major.

These concerts are part of the dinner-music series offered by the Division of University Extension in collaboration with the School of Music.

On Monday, for a fee of $11 per person, the subscriber will be able to enjoy a social hour and dinner at the UVic Faculty Club prior to attending the concert.

During dinner an informal introduction to the performance will be provided by a School of Music faculty member. The evening begins at 5:45.

The concerts take place in the recital hall of the Music Building at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday and 8 p.m. on Monday. Those wishing to attend only the concert on either day may purchase tickets at $3 for adults, $2 for students and senior citizens, at the School of Music general office.

Pilot Lost Tooth In Plane Crash

O'Hanlon said today he has no idea what caused the accident.

Cameos Highlight Shadow Box

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Passing comment on the production of a play, no matter how objective one attempts to be, is almost always likely to contain some element of a personal and subjective nature.

The Shadow Box, Bastion Theatre's current production, is one of these. Michael Cristofer's play is about mortality, confrontation with the inevitable end of life, with our desperate need for fulfilment and the vanity of regret for those things unattained. It is a thoughtful and inward-reaching piece of theatre and each person who sees it will respond to it in a closely personal way.

To say that, while recognizing the qualities of the writing and its truth my own feelings remained detached to the point of boredom at times, is a reflection on the particular performance seen this week.

The play I saw seems to fall into two quite separate halves; in the first director Edwin Stephenson appears to aim at milking the broadest possible comedy from the script; in the second the tendency is to allow the actors to come close to a maudlin interpretation with more than a touch of melodrama and to produce the effect of pontification in the longer speeches.

Of the three dying patients who are living in the three cottages on the grounds of a hospital, sharpest moments of truth come from John Krich as Joe whose passion of longing for the lifestyle he missed and will now never know, has a poignancy compounded by his effort to maintain a calm acceptance. Anne Casson's old, agonized and confused Felicity, sustained in life by a false hope, provides another quite superb cameo.

In fact such separate and individual fine portraits are both the strengths and weaknesses of Stephenson's production. They stand out too separately in an over-all performance that lacks consistency — the failure to firmly yet delicately weave together and balance all the play's elements.

Doris Chillcott's Maggie, Joe's wife, wrenched and desperate in her inability to cope with the situation, provides some of the finer moments. Her obsessive unpacking of homey and unneeded items she has brought with her for her visit to Joe, is an effectively rendered scene. So too is Kathleen Hildebrandt's moving almost-monologue with the Interviewer.

One forgot the actor in these scenes, became involved with the emotions and personality of the character. Not so with other members of the cast who seemed to be groping for a complete understanding of what they were — to be trying just too hard.

The impersonality of the Interviewer — a voice floating from the back of the auditorium — was lacking. The impact of the patient's dilemma would have been emphasized by more suggestion of professional paternalism.

Fisheries Wants To Avoid Fight

The provincial fish and wildlife branch wants to stay out of a scrap that has erupted in the Queen Charlottes between the forestry department and federal fisheries.

But a branch representative said today that there can be no doubt that a 50-acre streamside tract of timber, recently put under a cutting ban by fisheries, could create environmental problems if logged.

The forestry department has approved logging at the site, located on steep slopes along Riley Creek on Rennell Sound, despite the federal ban. The move has sparked a confrontation between the two levels of government that could end up in court.

Jim Walker, head of the fish and wildlife habitat protection department, said the branch doesn't want to get embroiled in the fight but would prefer that the area not be logged.

He said that the matter is a jurisdictional dispute over who has ultimate authority when fisheries and forestry values are in conflict — and as such has to be resolved by the two agencies involved.

"But on a technical level it is pretty clear to us that logging in that area will be deleterious to fish habitat," said Walker.

Fisheries spokesman Dave Schutz said the forestry announcement had come without warning but that such an action had been expected to take place.

He said since the federal government toughened up Bill C38, the Fisheries Act, a showdown has been inevitable.

Tourist Season Disaster Without E & N Upgrading

A tourist season "disaster" on the E & N Railway was predicted today by Save-the-Dayliner spokesman John Cooper unless Via Rail comes through with improved equipment or scheduling.

He pointed to a 200 per cent improvement in passenger totals for February compared with a year ago — 3,200 vs. 1,100 — consistent with improved use of the system throughout 1978.

"A very strong pattern is establishing itself. There is a continual increase without extreme highs or lows. It is established as a regular means of transport on Vancouver Island," Cooper said.

With the system already loaded with domestic travellers and the tourist season looming, "If we don't get some additional equipment and added runs this summer, it's going to be a disaster."

Cooper said February figures are a good indicator because a year ago January the public thought the service was coming to an end and many made hasty trips thinking it would be their last opportunity.

When the execution was stayed, the panic subsided, but the rate of passengers continued to climb, Cooper said.

The tandem Budd rail car service is popular with Victoria and up-island residents with business to do on the island, with sports groups, excursionists and school tours. Cooper said group travel has had to be limited to 60 persons, or about one-third of capacity to be fair to the general public.

The committee which Cooper represents has appealed to Via Rail, the new operator of the passenger service, to add more equipment and run an expanded schedule.

But he said Via claims the CPR is charging too much for the use of its line and the government-backed Via organization can't afford to expand service. He said the charge, which Via won't specify, is made on the basis of trips and mileage.

Rest of Canada Can Buy Free B.C. Shares

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. shares will be listed on stock exchanges across Canada after provincial residents have received the five free shares promised by the government, the company has announced.

The decision, announced Tuesday by company president David L. Helliwell, will allow other Canadians to buy what British Columbians get free.

Premier Bill Bennett had announced in January every one of the province's 2.4 million residents would be given five free shares in the government-owned company with an option to buy 5,000 more.

Helliwell said 100 million shares are now offered at a discounted $6 per share "because no one knows what effect the giveaway will have on the market price and there will be no (income) dividends issued for several years."

He said the per-share book value of the company holdings is between $10 and $12.

The company's portfolio is resource oriented, owning or controlling Canadian Cellulose, Plateau Mills, Kootenay Forest Products, Westcoast Transmission Co. and a gas license on 2.3 million acres of Crown land.

"It is top heavy and these industries are cyclical. I imagine one of the things it will have to do is broaden the holdings, but we're in a holding pattern now until the stock is distributed," Helliwell said.

Meanwhile, the NDP's BCRIC critic said Tuesday it will cost B.C. $20 million to distribute the free shares — not $3 million as estimated by the provincial government.

Victoria MLA Charles Barber said the $3 million is only the first drop in a very deep bucket.

If only two million of the 2.4 million eligible B.C. residents apply for free shares, at five dollars a transaction, the cost will total $10 million, he said.

Barber said there are also the expenses of hiring between 60 and 70 keypunch operators for processing the applications, the cost of printing and mailing the premier's invitation to acquire the shares, the cost of producing prospectuses and a number of other hidden costs.

Helliwell said Tuesday that the corporation is budgeting $2.5 million for the distribution of the free shares.

That cost includes printing the prospectus, registering stock for those that own more than 100 shares and and other overhead. The corporation has also agreed to pay 25 cents for each share sold by banks and other financial institutions.

Applicants for shares must be 16 years or older, a Canadian citizen or one who has qualified or applied for citizenship, and a resident for the last 12 months.

Parents or legal guardians may apply for free shares on behalf of children. Those eligible also may purchase up to 5,000 additional shares at the $6 price.

Applications for free shares must be made between March 15 and June 15, the prospectus said, and will be distributed on B.C. Day August 6.

The prospectus says that there is no tax payable on the free shares. However, if an individual sells his shares, he may have to pay a capital gains tax if the shares rise in value. If dividends are paid in future, the holder will also be subject to taxation.

Man, 67, Beaten To Death

The victim of what is thought to be the seventh murder in Vancouver this year is Herbert Jackson. Police say they are holding a 51-year-old suspect.

Banks Balk at Quick Loto Payoff

Fifty dollar Loto Canada winners who don't trust the mail are having to wait longer for their money because banks have made it harder to get instant cash.

George Fleming of Victoria complained Tuesday he was unable to collect $50 for a winning ticket at three different banks.

He said the Canadian Imperial bank at Mayfair demanded he give up his ticket even though it is still eligible for a later draw.

The James Bay branch of the Royal Bank had no list of winning numbers and the Gorge-Tillicum branch of Canadian Imperial had a telex from regional office instructing tellers not to cash $50 tickets.

Fleming says the situation is ridiculous, especially when the Provincial and Western Express lotteries provide for mid-draws by tearing the ticket in half, paying off and allowing the winner to hold the remainder until the final draw.

He tried unsuccessfully to have a photocopy certified by the bank to retain but was refused.

This way, there would be less incentive to use winnings to buy more tickets for the final draw.

Recycling Push Urged In Saanich

Saanich council's public works committee suggested Tuesday night the municipality play an active role in encouraging residents to recycle their garbage.

Promoting the idea of recycling such items as newspapers, tin cans and bottles will require both a public awareness program and incentives, perhaps in the form of tax concessions, aldermen agreed.

As a first step toward launching such a program the acting committee chairman, Ald. Howard Sturrock, undertook to explore the feasibility of establishing a special ad hoc advisory group of citizens.

The suggestion for the task force came from Mayor Mel Couvelier, who said residents with experience in the field of recycling would be the best-equipped to advise Saanich on promotion techniques.

"Basically we're talking about a selling campaign," he added.

The discussion was prompted by a number of letters from residents, commenting on a recent questionnaire concerning garbage pickup which was circulated by the municipality.

Several residents complimented council on trying to sound out public opinion on garbage collection, but expressed disappointment that the questionnaire contained no reference to recycling.

One described the oversight as "incredible," considering that Saanich was the first municipality in the Capital Region District to support a pioneering recycling effort eight years ago, by making available the Borden Street depot for a nominal $1 a year.

The same writer, Barbara Corry, 3355 Maplewood, argued that it is unfair for those residents who recycle their garbage and whose collection needs are minimal to be charged the same as those who simply don't bother and avail themselves of the full pickup service.

"Why not consider rewarding those who conserve and ask those who wish to continue their non-conserving lifestyle to be the ones who pay extra?"

Ald. Sturrock agreed with the residents that significant economies could be made, both in salvaging materials and in reducing the volume of garbage which must be transported to the Hartland Road dump.

Sally Ann Draws Support, No Cash

The Salvation Army was looking for $100,000 but all it got Tuesday was a vote of support from the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

The Sally Ann is campaigning for funds to build a new complex at Wharf and Yates, and hopes municipalities will contribute $100,000 over the next three years.

The intermunicipal group voiced strong support for the campaign and said it will recommend that Victoria, Esquimalt and Saanich all make grants. But the committee didn't specify the amount member municipalities should contribute.

Oak Bay has already pledged $10,000.

The complex will cost an estimated $3 million, with $1.5 million coming from Salvation Army funds. The provincial government will chip in $1 million and the remaining $500,000 will be raised in the current campaign.

MO-PED

MO as in motor
PED as in pedal

Its like a strong bicycle that goes by itself. Its got pedals when you want them, a motor when you need it.

There are no oil levels to check, no clutch or gearshift to operate. If you can ride a bicycle, you can ride a Mo-Ped even better.

To enjoy the fun and economy of 200 + m.p.g. in B.C. you only need a regular driver's license or learner's permit (not Class 6), basic insurance, registration and license plate, $48. (Add $22 if under 25), a lightweight, comfortable helmet and a

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

Now, Gardening at Every Level

hilda beastall

As the art of gardening spreads to all levels of our surroundings, hanging containers become more necessary. There is no longer the familiar plot of ground under our feet in which to plant our favorites.

Highrises, lowrises, with rooftop areas, balconies, sundecks, or the lowly patio are all potentially suitable for gardening.

With plants decorating the sidewalls or hanging free, the effect is of being quite literally surrounded by plants. This is a new dimension for many city dwellers.

To begin using hanging containers, be moderate, so that your living space on balcony or patio is not suddenly restricted to merely foot space.

Better than shutting out the surroundings is the framing of a view. A distant tower, steeple, hill, tree, or even a tall building may be framed by your balcony plants thus softening its impact as it becomes a part of your view in a very intimate way. And remember you probably have other features in your over-all view that can be used for framing when you tire of the first choice.

What kind of containers can be used? As with plants containers in table and window displays within the home, today there is really no limit.

Most important from a safety point is that wires, cords, and holding hooks should be strong, new and adequate to support the combined weight of container, soil and plants plus their extra weight when newly watered.

Containers may range from recycled styrofoam coolers and bleach containers, large size food cans to indoor plastic garbage pails and plastic-lattice clothes baskets.

Most attractive will be wicker baskets of the many lovely shapes seen in displays of this work in specialty stores and departments. You may be making your own. But remember that the container will be mostly covered by the growth of drooping and trailing plants.

Remember too that plastic deteriorates in hot sun but not in winter cold; so put these containers where sun will not be constant. Tin will heat quickly and to a point is helpful in early root formation in spring.

Containers without drainage holes get at least one inch of bulky material in the bottom, either stones or lightweight non-absorbing material. The soil mix goes on top.

For containers such as wicker or wire baskets, or others having drainage holes, line with a sheet of plastic with just one hole for drainage. Open lattice sides or the old wire basket type need first a sheet of stout plastic at the bottom and up the sides for an inch or so, then sheet moss (sphagnum moss, from some florists) for the remainder of the depth to retain the soil mixture.

Especially compounded for hanging containers are lightweight potting mixtures of sterilized soil, peat moss, and perlite. If you have access to garden soil, make your own from compost heap (sterilized as described in recent column), leafmould, and perlite which can be bought in small size bags.

Watering for hanging containers on balconies is a frequent job, for less can be given than on ground level. But the rewards are in having growing plants as part of daily living.

'Perfect' Puff Does It Without the Additives

GATLINBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — Ira T. Lapides claims he has invented the perfect cigarette, less harmful than major brands because it is "100 per cent tobacco."

The Gatlinburg tobacco shop owner calls his cigarettes "Gatlinburlier Smokies." They now are being marketed in Florida, Ohio and Michigan.

"Our cigarette is all tobacco," Lapides said. "One hundred per cent quality tobacco leaf; no stems, no reconstitutes and no additives. I'm not saying that my cigarettes are not harmful, but the other major brands are more harmful simply because of all the additives."

Lapides got into the cigarette manufacturing business after doing a research paper on the topic at the University of Tennessee.

"I found that there was widespread use of such chemicals as saltpeter and aluminum derivatives to control the burn rate and the amount of tar produced in a cigarette," he said. "And I had to ask myself: Which is hazardous, the tobacco or the additives?"

Lapides said consumers are not aware of the contents of the cigarettes they smoke.

"Cigarette manufacturers are not required to label their products as to contents and most of the American public is still unaware that their cigarettes are not 100 per cent tobacco," he said.

Lapides said his cigarettes have a .9 nicotine rating and .15 tar.

CLUES ACROSS

4. WILY not wild. The clue's concern with wits favors "WILY." "Wild" is comparatively pointless.
6. RAIDING not raising. RAIDING troops are something to "contend with" (i.e., in that they represent adversity). In the other case, it's more a question of having to contend with some sort of problem in raising troops; ostensibly, there is nothing to say that "raising troops" is a difficulty.
7. SERVE not nerve. "May tend to," in the clue, is an understatement for nerve. Also, "a certain player" hints at SERVE (tennis).
8. MASTER for muster. "No time for half measures" suggests a case for strong action. MASTER is more apt, since one's own supporters are presumably quite willing to be mustered promptly.
10. SOLE not solo. Aptly, "just a SOLE musician" emphasizes the fact that he is only one player as opposed to many. On the other hand, the term "solo" carries a certain endorsement of excellence; a soloist is not "just" a mere soloist.
11. PLAY not plan. To PLAY is more to the point, since to plan, in itself, does not actually mean to do anything.
12. SIGN not sigh. Aptly, to SIGN is a conscious act (repeated so many times that you can't remember how many). To sigh is merely an instinctive thing, not really relatable to the idea of remembering or forgetting.
16. MOVE not love. Arguably, a real love is not in itself either discreet or indiscreet, nor a thing to be embarrassed about. MOVE is more satisfactory.
20. TRAWLER not trailer. The idea of novelty resting in the "trip" suits TRAWLER better. One thinks, rather, of it being a change to camp or live in a (presumably parked) trailer which, usually, is not itself the prime vehicle of the excursion.
21. STARE not start. A start, in itself, can hardly look expressive of guilt.
22. BREED not creed. Men are brave according to their nature (or "BREED") rather than what their creed might happen to be.

CLUES DOWN

1. CRIME not grime. The clue's somewhat rhetorical turn of phrase suits CRIME better.
2. MISSING not kissing. Aptly, the fact of two parted characters MISSING each other could be relevant to the story or situation. Two affectionate people kissing seems an extremely trivial thing in terms of something to "read about."
3. RIDE Not hide. It is inapt to say "hide surreptitiously" (as if anybody could possibly hide openly).
5. LIVELY not lovely. If it doesn't please the critic, it isn't lovely as far as he is concerned.
9. FAST not last or past. In the clue, "the effort" means the effort he is making. FAST is most apt, since running last or past, as such, involves no particular effort.
13. SOILED not coiled. The clue's use of "get" (rather than "be") suits coiled less well.

Third World Tab for Arms: $56B

LONDON (Reuter) — About half the 38 countries in the world spending more than $1 billion a year on defence are developing countries, a British government policy document published Tuesday shows.

It said that in 1976, the military spending of the developing countries was $56.3 billion — almost three times the net official development aid they received.

"If this trend were continued, an increasing amount of the resources transferred for economic development would indirectly help to promote military activities in the Third World," the report on British arms control and disarmament policy said.

The study said that a disturbing feature of the last decade had been the growth of military spending in the Third World — from six per cent of the world total in 1966 to 15 per cent in 1976.

Stating that millions of people have been killed and maimed since the end of the Second World War by conventional arms, the report said Britain was pressing for multilateral arrangements to curb the worldwide buildup of conventional weapons.

The United States and the Soviet Union between them control more than 70 per cent of the world's arms trade.

The report said Britain welcomed the recent initiative by Latin American and Caribbean states to open discussion on limiting the supply of arms in their area.

"We are ready to participate in discussions, as a supplier country, when the countries of the region have agreed on possible measures of restraint."

It praised the objective of the Indian Ocean littoral states to have peace and stability in their region.

Angola Raids Threaten Plan

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A United Nations peace plan for South-West Africa was threatened today by South African raids on guerrilla bases in Angola and the South African government's rejection of alleged modifications favorable to the guerrillas.

South Africa has agreed to the UN proposal for a ceasefire in the territory March 15 provided the South-West Africa People's Organization (SWAPO) "undertakes to stop violence."

But the government ordered strikes against SWAPO guerrilla bases Tuesday because it said the organization was stepping up raids and there were new interpretations to the UN plan for South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

Under the UN plan, a peacekeeping force of up to 7,500 troops and administrators would supervise the ceasefire, universal voter registration among the territory's one million inhabitants and establishment of an independent government.

The plan also calls for all but 1,500 of the estimated 30,000 South African soldiers in the territory to pull out, while those remaining would be confined to bases monitored by the United Nations.

But Prime Minister Pieter Botha told Parliament in announcing the raids: "If there are others who wish to deviate from the plan, they must bear the consequences. Our position remains unchanged."

South Africa says its objections to the latest proposals by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim are that SWAPO guerrillas would be permitted to occupy bases inside the territory once the ceasefire begins March 15.

The government also complained that SWAPO bases in neighboring Marxist-ruled Angola would not be monitored by the United Nations.

Gen. Magnus Malan said South African planes and troops launched their raids Tuesday to counter SWAPO's "aggressive and defiant campaign of terrorism and violence directly mainly at the local population of South-West Africa."

FBI Peanut Report Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department says there is a possibility a special prosecutor will be named to look into President Carter's family peanut-warehouse business. But the department says such an action would be "a rather extraordinary step."

Federal investigators have been investigating operations of the warehouse, including $6.5 million in loans it obtained from the National Bank of Georgia in 1975 and 1976, when former budget director Bert Lance was president of the bank.

In a meeting Tuesday with Republican members of the House of Representatives judiciary committee, justice department officials said they have received a lengthy FBI report and will decide soon how to proceed with the case.

Terrence Adamson, department spokesman, said several possible options were listed for the legislators, including "the rather extraordinary step of appointing a special prosecutor."

Huge Libyan Lift Of Arms to Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Libya is flying massive amounts of military equipment into Uganda in preparation for a Ugandan counter-attack against Tanzanian invaders that could come in about a week, Western diplomats said today.

They said tanks, fighters planes, heavy artillery and infantry weapons have been flown to Entebbe, Uganda's international airport on Lake Victoria, in a mission that began about a week ago. They said Libyan and Ugandan cargo planes are making daily flights.

The expected Ugandan counter-attack could open up the decisive phase of the four-month-old war, the diplomats said. "The next week or so should show whether the military balance has shifted in favor of Uganda," one diplomat said.

Ugandan President Idi Amin said two days ago that a counter-strike was in the offing. In Uganda Radio broadcasts, he said the time was coming to hit the enemy hard and called on his troops to fight to the last man.

Western diplomats said Tuesday about 1,400 Libyan troops have been flown into Uganda to bolster Amin's faltering forces. In Tripoli, Libya's official news agency denied the report and said the only Libyans in Uganda were teachers, doctors and bank workers. The denial made no mention of military supplies.

But Western sources said Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy was disappointed and angered by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere's rejection of mediation efforts made by Libya and by the 49-state Organization of African Unity. They said Khadafy decided to give Amin, a fellow Moslem, "all the support within Libya's means."

Nyerere and Amin have been enemies since 1971 when Amin overthrew former Ugandan President Milton Obote. Obote, a Socialist theoretician like Nyerere, took up exile in Tanzania, along with his supporters.

Tanzanian invaders reportedly have captured Masaka, a provincial capital 133 kilometres south of Kampala, the Ugandan capital. The town was reported Tuesday to be deserted and in ruins from bombardment.

Diplomats said Tanzanian artillery has been shelling the town of Lukaya, about 40 kilometres beyond Masaka on the road to Kampala, for about a week but without a further Tanzanian advance.

The diplomats said Tanzanian units also are about eight kilometres from Mbarara, the southwestern Uganda garrison town where heavy fighting has been reported.

Hookers In Public Gallery

LONDON (AP) — Prostitutes trooped into the public gallery of the House of Commons Tuesday and watched members of Parliament approve the first stage of a bill to repeal laws which make street-walking a crime.

When the vote was announced, some of the girls started shouting and were hustled out by stewards. "The poor darlings didn't understand what was happening; they thought we'd lost," said the bill's sponsor, MP Maureen Colquhoun.

Helen Buckingham, 39, a prostitute campaigning against police persecution of her profession, had threatened to name prominent men, including MPs, among the clients of prostitutes unless the bill was approved. "There is no need now," she said.

Parliament ratified the first stage of the protection of prostitutes Bill by 130 votes to 50. Opposition is expected to mount for the second reading on May 18.

"I know my bill has very little chance of becoming law but I am very glad about the vote," Mrs. Colquhoun said.

The bill would protect prostitutes from police harassment, exploitation and victimization, abolish imprisonment for soliciting and get rid of the police description of "common prostitute."

"That is very offensive to women," said Mrs. Colquhoun, a 50-year-old Labor MP.

She said the law classifying two women living together as "a brothel" should be amended because it forces prostitutes into the hands of organized crime through dependence on pimps.

"The women must be able to live together to protect one another," she said.

Earthquake Rattles Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — An early morning earthquake rocked the island of Hawaii on Tuesday, but police said no damage was reported.

The quake measured between 4.5 and five on the Richter scale and was centred about 30 kilometres below Kilauea volcano on the slopes of Mauna Kea, a Hawaiian Volcanic Observatory spokesman said.

Guides Lead Climbers Out

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — Experienced mountain guides cautiously led 18 college students down from the gale-raked 3,000-metre level of Mount Rainier on Tuesday, as other rescuers prepared to recover the bodies of two climbers swept away in an avalanche Sunday.

Winds of 80 kilometres an hour were reported in the area as four guides headed down from Camp Muir with the students. The protected, well-stocked camp is about one kilometre from where veteran mountaineer Willie Unsoeld and a student, Janie Diepenbrock, were killed by an avalanche at the 3,300-metre level.

Two of the student climbers stayed behind at the camp to lead three National Park Rangers on a trek to the avalanche site in an attempt to recover and bring down the bodies, said Larry Henderson, an official of Mount Rainier National Park.

The rescued climbers, all students from The Evergreen State College, were being brought to a base camp at Paradise, at the 1,600-metre level, Henderson said.

Clouds and high winds made it impossible to use a helicopter in the rescue, said Thompson.

Davis Wants To Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Davis, a former cabinet minister who resigned as an MLA after being convicted of fraud, said today he will seek the Social Credit nomination in the North Vancouver-Seymour riding.

Davis, 62, resigned the North Vancouver-Seymour seat Sept. 15 after he was convicted of converting first-class airline tickets to economy fares and pocketing the difference.

Davis, former energy, transport and communications minister, said he has represented the North Vancouver area federally and provincially for 15 years.

"I know a lot of people," he said. "I'm going back in there to do a job."

New Zealand Parks Cars To Save Gas

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — Motorists in New Zealand, which already has a ban on weekend sales of gasoline, will have to leave their cars at home one day a week under a government plan to save fuel.

Energy Minister Bill Birch told reporters today that 2.4 million stickers are being printed in seven colors and each car will have to carry a sticker showing which day it cannot be used. Offenders will be fined.

HELI-FLOPPER: Student pilot Alan Piche survived but there was $5,000 damage to the helicopter he flopped in mud near Niagara Falls, Ont. Chopper gets a lift from the mud to a waiting truck.

Only Quebecers Like Grits: Gallup

Times News Services

Progressive Conservatives were ahead in the rest of the country, especially the West.

The latest poll showed the Liberals held steady with 39 per cent of the popular vote in February, the same level as in January. The Conservatives slipped two points to 38 per cent while the New Democratic Party gained two points to 19 per cent. Other parties had four per cent.

Undecided voters remained high, at 33 per cent.

Prime Minister Trudeau told newmen this morning he was still not prepared to set an election date.

The latest survey, described by Liberal campaign strategist Senator Keith Davey last month as "the really important poll," said the Liberals remained strong in Quebec with 60 percent of the decided vote. The Tories were ahead across the rest of the country with a slight majority in Western Canada and a plurality in Ontario and the Maritime provinces.

The Liberals have completed a slow climb back to the top position from last November's survey, when the Conservatives led the Liberals by 45 per cent to 35 per cent.

The Conservatives led by two points in December and one point in January.

Clark said the only results he wanted to see were on election day. "I would mind being down on election day but that's for the electors of Canada to decide. I think that they are going to give us the chance to form a new government and I'd like to give them that chance to give us that chance."

NDP House leader Stanley Knowles said, however, the poll indicates Canadians are having second thoughts about Clark's leadership ability.

"I think it's interesting that the Conservatives have lost two points, we've gained two points and the Liberals stayed where they are," Knowles said.

"It seems to me that a possible interpretation is that an awful lot of Canadians don't like the Liberals but they're not too sure as they were that Clark's a good alternative and Broadbent is making hay with his campaign about prices and employment.

Senator Al Graham, Liberal party president, said the fact that Liberal strength remained unchanged between January and February indicates the governing party is in a solid, stable position.

But it was clear Canada was in for "a very close election."

Graham declined to predict when he feels the election will be called — the decision is Trudeau's alone to make — but the party was ready any time.

Liberal Crosses The Floor

OTTAWA (CP) — MP Ralph Stewart left the Liberal party for the opposition Progressive Conservatives today, saying he is tired of the socialist tendencies of Prime Minister Trudeau's government where "a few of the elite make all of the decisions."

The 50-year-old MP for Cochrane said he plans to run against Liberal MP Keith Penner for a newly-altered Northern Ontario riding that takes in parts of both their current constituencies.

Stewart had represented the Liberals since first being elected in 1968.

But he said he wanted to wait until the eve of an election to make his move because his constituents had elected him as a Liberal.

Stewart earlier had decided against running in the next election, and he said he sacrificed "a lot of personal security" by changing his mind.

Widow, 82, Beaten, Left Tied to Chair

MONTREAL (CP) — An 82-year-old widow was resting in hospital Tuesday after being beaten unconscious by thieves and left tied to a chair for almost 24 hours.

Doris Shaw, who is waiting to undergo operations to repair broken bones in her nose and around her right eye, said she was making a sandwich Sunday night when the doorbell rang.

"I opened the door and one of two men pushed me out of the way," said the 115-pound woman who lives alone. "I was pushed into the kitchen and bound to a chair by a thick black coil they brought with them."

The bigger of the two thieves kept asking where her money was, she said.

"Using both hands, he punched me over and over on either side of my head and with each slap screamed, 'Where's your money?"

She said she told the men she had no money. They ransacked the house, then left.

The woman tried to manoeuvre herself closer to the phone, but the coils dug into her body, making the attempt too painful, she said.

"I screamed and screamed for help but no one heard me."

After spending the night bound to the chair, Mrs. Shaw heard someone coming.

"I screamed for help but it wasn't my neighbors, it was the big guy again.

The man left again. A neighbor found her later and phoned for help.

Mrs. Shaw said she feels safe where she is but is terrified to return home.

Gas Supply Clips Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Fuel shortages have forced two more U.S. air carriers — United and Delta — to cancel hundreds of flights, and airline industry officials are predicting the tight supply picture may endanger some cheap fares and plans to expand routes.

And, at least 26 U.S. oil companies — including most of the big ones — have started limiting supplies of gasoline to dealers and distributors, an industry spokesman said Tuesday.

United, the largest U.S. airline, said Tuesday it will reduce its flight schedule 3.4 per cent through March because of fuel shortages. That means cancellation of 38 flights each weekday with 118 flights scrubbed on Saturdays and 141 on Sundays, said spokesman Ed Williams.

Delta said it is cancelling nine daily departures from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

Trans World Airlines (TWA) last week was forced to ground numerous flights due to spot shortages. TWA cancelled 24 flights into and out of Kansas City International Airport in the four-day period of Feb. 25-28.

"The idea is to save fuel," said United's Williams. "Shell Oil has told us we can't get our normal supply of fuel temporarily, so we're cutting back through the end of the month."

United will not cancel service to cities with only one flight a day, or to locations where bookings are heavy, he said.

Spokesmen for the Air Transport Association, which represents the U.S. scheduled carriers, said the cancellations represent only a fraction of the 13,500 daily flights nationwide.

However, a Delta official said if the fuel picture doesn't improve, the airline might be forced to delay plans to add flights and routes to its system.

William Jackman of the Air Transport Association said the oil crunch already is leading to higher fuel oil prices and "it's going to be reflected in airline fares."

The U.S. energy department refused to disclose which companies officially have reported gasoline allocations, explaining that the information is proprietary — in other words, a business secret — and cannot be made public by the government, although the companies can do so if they wish.

A number of the companies, but not all, have publicly announced supply restrictions.

Deficits Continue To Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — The deficit in Canada's international spending rose to $5.29 billion in 1978, up from $4.2 billion a year earlier, Statistics Canada reported today.

At the same time, the finance department reported that the federal government spending deficit rose to $9.53 billion in the first 10 months of the fiscal year 1978-79, up from $6.6 billion in the same period a year earlier.

Statistics Canada said that although there was a record surplus in merchandise trade with other countries last year, payments to foreigners for such things as interest on loans and dividends on stocks rose sharply, particularly in the fourth quarter of the year.

In the final three months of the year, the surplus on merchandise trade was $758 million but the deficit in non-merchandise trade was $2.57 billion, up $481 million from the third quarter.

The finance department said government spending deficit for all of the last fiscal year was $9.2 billion and Finance Minister Jean Chretien has said the spending deficit for fiscal 1978-79, which ends March 31, will be $12.1 billion.

Area Economy On Bright Side

The Victoria economy continues to churn up good news with strong retail sales and high employment in the shipyard and sawmills.

But things remain gloomy in the construction industry, local Canada Employment Centre manager Wally Pickering said today.

Unemployment among carpenters and other building trades ranges from 35 per cent to 50 per cent and there is no sign of immediate improvement.

"There is a lot of talk about shopping centres and industrial parks but very little action," Pickering said.

"Construction is the only weak spot in the local economy but it is really bad."

Some skilled tradesmen have had to look for jobs in the forest industry in order to get a regular paycheque. These jobs normally pay less than the building trades.

On the bright side, he said, retail sales in February were very strong. Normally, February is a slow month but this year local consumers were buying heavily in big ticket items like cars, heavy appliances, furniture and sound systems.

This was verified by reports from the banks that Victorians are saving less and spending more, possibly in the belief that another round of price increases is not far away.

The Burrard Yarrows Corp. shipyard was busy and had 450 workers in February. The total this month is expected to go above 500. Work will begin soon on the new provincial government ferry, guaranteeing steady employment for at least 18 months.

Sawmills continue to operate close to 100 per cent of capacity.

The tourist industry is at its low ebb but visitors are expected to arrive in numbers starting with the Easter weekend, April 14. The ministry of tourism is looking for a 12 per cent increase in visitors this year.

The Oakland Industries cannery is still accepting job applications from experienced workers for the herring roe season, although most positions are filled.

BOMB No. 20

VANCOUVER (CP) — A molotov cocktail was hurled through a window of a downtown office of the Canada Employment centre overnight, bringing to 20 the number of such incidents in the Vancouver area in recent weeks. The device failed to ignite. (See also story on page 27).

Supreme Court Rejects Tree Farm Hearings

The Islands Protection Society (IPS) and two Haida Indians have failed in their B.C. Supreme Court bid to force a public hearing over renewal of a tree farm licence in the Queen Charlotte Island's South Moresby wilderness area.

Mr. Justice George Murray in a ruling Tuesday said that under the new Forests Act, a hearing is not required on an application by Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd. to renew TFL 24.

The IPS, together with herditary chief Nathan Young and Gary Edenshaw, had petitioned the court to rule that public hearings are required for the Rayonier renewal.

The petitioners were represented by Vancouver lawyer Garth Evans.

The society, which wanted part of the Rayonier licence area set aside as a wildlife reserve, has criticized the company for environmental problems its logging practices have caused elsewhere in the Charlottes.

Mr. Justice Murray, however, said the plaintiffs could not prove to him there was reason to interfere in the tree farm issue before Forests Minister Tom Waterland makes a decision in the case.

The judge said he agonized for a long time over whether Waterland would be making a broad policy decision in awarding the renewal or whether he was acting as a judge in the case. He concluded that the minister's role was that of a judge.

A spokesman for the IPS said from Queen Charlotte City today that the society hadn't really expected to win the case and isn't too upset with the decision.

"Looking on the positive side — we won all the points of law we brought up, even though the ruling went against us," said the representative.

"And the ruling gives the minister an opportunity to prove he's acting fairly, to be an impartial judge."

The spokesman said IPS members and others concerned with the fate of the South Moresby wilderness will continue to press Waterland to provide adequate protection for the area's environment.

Meanwhile, Charlottes MLA Graham Lea (NDP-Prince Rupert) accused the Socred government of selling out to the multi-national forest firms by not holding a public hearing into the license renewal.

The government and the company are taking a short-term view with respect to the economy, Lea said.

BROADcaster Frum Fires One

TORONTO (CP) — Broadcaster Barbara Frum fired a stinging slapshot at the owner of the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night for his comments on where he thinks a woman's place is.

Harold Ballard said Monday night on the CBC radio network program As It Happens that women on radio are a joke and the best position for a woman is horizontal.

He then hung up the telephone, ending what was supposed to have been a discussion on Ballard's role in the quick firing and rehiring of Leaf coach Roger Neilson last weekend.

On Tuesday's show, Frum — referring to "that unfortunate incident" — read an open letter to Ballard in which she said she realized how tired he must have been as a result of the Neilson incident.

"Many wanted to do naughty things to you. Our more generous listeners thought you should be stoned in the public square."

"But we wouldn't wish such a fate upon you. You already suffer enough by owning the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Hamilton Tiger Cats.

"People have asked me if I was offended. Course not. I don't care what you say — as long as you keep your hands in your pockets.

"Until we meet again on Jock Talk, happy trails to you.

Ballard said in an interview with a local newspaper Tuesday night that he didn't understand all the fuss resulting from his remarks but in case he was misunderstood he repeated them. Most were judged unfit to print.

Rafe Mair's Attitude Reflects Commitment

(First of Two Parts)

Beneath his political veneer, Environment Minister Rafe Mair leaves a distinct impression of caring for his new portfolio on a deeper level than what would be considered adequate to do the job.

Mair, who on Dec. 6 took up a post that was expanded to include the Fish and Wildlife Branch, is a confirmed trout fisherman.

This point alone puts elevates him above his predecessors — Jim Neilson and Sam Bawlf — who were both more urban than rural individuals.

And, although it's a little early rate his performance on several outstanding environmental disputes within the province, his activities to date lend credibility to an oft-expressed opinion that Mair's presence is "like a breath of fresh air."

Mair and this writer covered a wide range of topics during a recent interview and while he seemed to have a good grasp on the over-all issues, because of the limited time in office, wasn't totally briefed on certain specific problems.

He said that two main things will have to be done within the branch. One is to get "better internal management" and the other is to "get better dialogue going between the Fish and Wildlife Branch in particular — but I suppose the ministry in general — and the public."

* * *

"One of the things I have never been able to understand," he explained, "is why any government would try to end-run an environmental group."

"You're not always going to agree with them, but if you're going to do something that's going to irritate the hell out of them, why not tell them you're going to do it? It's bad enough when they're mad at you for doing what you did, but it's twice as bad when it appears to all the world that you're hiding the fact.

Mair felt B.C. Hydro had done just that in a couple of areas.

"They have minimized the impact on fish and wildlife and tried to romance people past the problem.

"I don't want to do that."

Part of the process in creating a dialogue with the public involves the series of meetings Mair will attend thoughout the province during the next few months.

Mair appeared to leave the door open for introduction of some form of all-encompassing wildlife legislation, perhaps in the spring session of 1980.

This would possibly incorporate three factors — a multiple land-use policy to "protect the watersheds and rivers", a "shoreline and estuary policy" and "a policy of reclamation."

* * *

"I get so distressed with some people, including I suppose from time to time one or two of my colleagues, who are so proud of our salmon fishery and tourist industry . . . yet think the fish are brought in by the stork."

One of the areas in which Mair plans to push hard is the joint federal-provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program. He said the province, which is putting up roughly five per cent of the funds over the 15-year program, has a "glorious opportunity" to have an input to the program far out of proportion to it's monetary contribution.

Another part of Mair's process of upgrading the branch involves a trip to Scandinavia starting this week to view an area similar to British Columbia where forestry, fish and wildlife coexist in a meaningful way.

"I don't think you can transplant other people's programs into the North American culture — but you can learn a hell of a lot," he added.

He warned, too, that "some of the attitudes in B.C. are going to have to change.

"We are no longer in a position where you can just walk out and shoot anything you want or do whatever you like in the outdoors."

Mair explained that a lot of people in British Columbia — across all party lines and philosophies — were concerned with the lack of a plan for the outdoors.

"They want something done . . . Someone on the government to invest themselves.

"I hope to be able to do that."

Braves Leading Playoff

Saanich Braves took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven Patterson Division playoff final Tuesday, exploding for seven third-period goals to trip Juan de Fuca Gulls 10-5 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Pearkes Arena.

Peter Adamek blocked 43 shots on the Juan de Fuca goal and Marty Wakelyn made 40 saves for Saanich.

Reg Midgley Resigns Post

Reg Midgley, who has served as a director on the executive of Western Speedway since 1966, has put his share up for sale and is resigning his position.

"I don't believe in what they're doing," said Midgley this morning in the wake of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association's rejection of a contract offer by Western during the organization's regular monthly meeting Tuesday night.

Midgley also served as manager of Western for 11 years but gave up the position two seasons ago to devote more time to his business interests.

Bill Price, vice-president of VITRA, said that his organization was unanimous in turning down the offer and has decided to race exclusively at Nanaimo's Gradview Bowl during the coming season.

A dispute blew up several weeks ago between VITRA and Speedway management over backgate receipts — the funds paid by drivers and pit crews which are used to pay for insurance, a crash fund, a points fund and guaranteeing the purse.

Western's directors, who have committed $250,000 to $300,000 to improvements at the Langford oval this year, have asked for the backgate receipts in their contract offer.

Price said VITRA has scheduled 10 to 12 stock car and super-stock events at Nanaimo during the coming season, which opens May 6. The first few races will be on Sunday with the balance of the events scheduled for Saturday nights under a new set of lights.

In addition, Price announced that Coca Cola has agreed to sponsor the Island points series, contributing $2,000 to a points fund.

Tony Mortel, manager of Western, said this morning that the track will be going ahead with its schedule.

"We will be carrying on," he stated.

Mortel said the season will consist of jalopy, demolition and sprint car racing along with several open, superstock and Canadian-American Modified Racing Association and Washington Racing Association events.

In addition, he said there was a definite possibility that some motorcycle and four-wheel-drive races will be set up.
